—A Bundy time recorder has been set up in the post office, on which the carriers have to record the time made on each trip. By a rearrangement of mails Postmaster Morgan has been able to start the carriers out 20 minutes earlier on the morning trip, which is earlier than the carriers start from many offices in Boston.

—An enthusiastic celebration of the republican victory at the presidential election, Tuesday, was held Wednesday evening, on the summit of Mt. Ida. A large pile of fence rails and railroad ties covered with empty tin barrels and other inflammable stuff was piled 30 ft. high on a vacant lot off Newtonville avenue. The reflection of the huge fire lit up the skies for some distance, and could be seen several miles. Many of the prominent residents of that vicinity, including Mayor Cobb, gathered around to watch the flames. There was also the usual number of Hogan's alloy cadets, who paraded up and down beating tin pans. Assistant Chief Humphrey had hose 1 wagon stationed on the grounds with several companies of men. A large party with a detail of officers, was also present.

—The local Republican torchlight battalions joined the parade in Boston last Friday evening and were complimented by the Boston Herald which said: "The eighth division was a small one and was supposed to bring up the rear of the procession. There were none but Newton companies in this division, but the boys made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in number. They wore uniforms of blue and white, and showed the good effects of considerable drill in marching. They were sound for McKinley and Hobart, and expressed their preference frequently in emphatic terms. There was no police escort for this division, and a small crowd of hoodlums made matters unpleasant for a few minutes while the line was waiting the order to move. They formed a Y wedge and tipped a base drummer over his drum before they were put to flight by a charge of the blue jackets from Newton."

—Free evening educational classes will be held in the Young Men's Christian Association, for the benefit of those young men, who have not enjoyed the advantages of a good education. Munson's system of shorthand will be taught by Mr. S. P. Thrasher. It will be held on Friday evenings, beginning Nov. 19. Two Italian drawing will be taught by Mr. Frederick Fewkes, and the class will meet Tuesday evenings, beginning Nov. 24. Vocal music will be taught by Edward Danforth Hale, A. M., of Newtonville. Two classes will be held each Thursday evening. Elementary at 7.30 and advanced at 8.15 o'clock, beginning Nov. 19. The only requisites necessary to enter either of the classes are membership in the Y. M. C. A., and a small deposit, which will be refunded, if applicant attends 75 per cent. of the course of lesson. No class will begin with less than ten students.

—Last Saturday evening a serious stabbing affair occurred on Washington street near Thornton, in which William Connelly was the victim of a murderous assault. He had left the 11.20 car from Brighton and with two friends started up Washington street in the direction of his home. Two Italians left the car at the same time and followed Connelly and his friends. They were later joined by two others. The quartet passed some remarks with Connelly, who was a short distance behind his companions, and it is said that some blows were exchanged. When just above the corner of Thornton street Connelly was heard to utter an exclamation, and as his friends rushed towards him he fell into their arms. At the same time the four Italians hurried into an adjacent yard and disappeared. It was found that Connelly had received a knife wound under the left shoulder. He was taken to the office of Dr. Carroll, but as the doctor was not at home, he was removed to police station 1. Drs. Bothfeld, Webber and O'Donnell were telephoned for, from Dr. Carroll's office, and were sent to the police station. Upon examination they found Connelly's wound to be three inches deep and that it penetrated the left lung. The physicians decided he would receive better care at the Massachusetts General Hospital than in the Newton Hospital, and requested the use of the Newton ambulance. This was refused, as was the use of the patrol wagon. A hack was sent for and the man was taken to Boston. Connelly and his companions, Andrew Monihan and Thomas King, claim that the assault was entirely unprovoked. It is stated by several that Connelly annoyed the Italian coming out on the car and that he later assaulted him. Sgt. Clay and his officers of this division have made a thorough search of all the Italian camps in Newton and Somerville, but thus far have been unable to find Connelly's assailant. Several were arrested Sunday morning on suspicion, but released on account of the failure of Connelly's friends to identify them. They are unable to give any description of his assailant. Connelly is reported to be recovering.

—Mr. W. C. Bates, who has spent a good deal of time in Venezuela and British Guiana, will lecture in the Real fund course on those countries, Nov. 17.

—Cards have been sent out announcing the marriage on Nov. 2nd, at Brookline, of Mr. Mark A. Lawton of Franklin street, and Miss Elizabeth Morse of Brookline.

—Among the delegates from Newton who attended the Missionary convention at Rochester, N. Y., this week, are Miss Harvey and Mrs. Hoskins of Wesley street.

—A car of potatoes arrived Nov. 4, we believe you can save money by buying your winter supply of potatoes now at the Newton Public Cash Market, 413 Centre street.

—A. Fales & Son of South Framingham have the contract for the handsome house at the corner of Park and Vernon streets, to be built for Mr. Wait, of the firm of Wait & Bond.

—Rev. Albert Baker of Newtonville avenue has received an appointment to the Methodist church at Fairlee, Vt. Mr. Baker was formerly a missionary in India and his family have been residents here for some time.

—The report of the mercy committee of the Epworth League of the Methodist church has been completed, which shows that 2000 bouquets of flowers have been distributed this season, besides a quantity of jellies, preserves and clothing.

—At the Methodist church next Sunday morning the pastor will give the fourth in his series of sermons on St. John's Gospel, topic, "The Cleansing of the Temple." Epworth League at 7.30. No evening service on account of the Y. M. C. A. anniversary at Eliot church.

—Last evening in Eliot Lower Hall Rev. Dillon Bronson gave the third and last lecture in the course on "Europe Revisited." His topic was "Switzerland," and he gave a description of the St. Gotthard tunnel, the Glacier Lakes and mountains and the Geneva National Exposition. Over 100 colored views.

—C. H. Campbell has taken taken the agency for the Plymouth Foundry parlor and cook stoves, which are very highly endorsed by those who have used them, and they are sold at a reasonable figure. Stoves are a necessity, and it will be a great convenience for Newton people to be able to buy stoves right at home. Mr. Campbell invites all in want of stoves to call and see them.

—At the Communion service of the Methodist church society in Eliot Lower hall, last Sunday, seven members were received into the church. A public installation of newly elected Epworth League officers was held in the evening. The reports of last years work was read by the retiring officers and the gathering was addressed by Rev. Mr. Bronson and Prof. George K. Morris.

—The great interest in the election was shown by the number of old men who visited the polls. On this account Eliot lower hall is not a convenient polling place, as the stairs make it very difficult for aged or infirm men to vote. With the vacant space now in Newtonville, it would be easy to have the polling place on the ground floor, or a booth might be erected as in Ward One.

—The Hunnewell Hill Club kept open till after midnight, Tuesday, receiving election returns, and was a popular place for the gentlemen living in that vicinity. Many guests were present and Captain Pressey served a fine lunch all through the evening. Soon after ten the result seemed so certain that the visitors began to leave, but the enthusiasts remained until the last bulletin.

—The delays at the railroad crossings are the source of much complaint, and their length seems to be needless. It is not uncommon to see 25 or 30 teams, and 50 or more people on each side of a track, while the dirt trains switch back and forth in the most leisurely and aggravating manner, to those who want to catch a car. It would seem that the delays might be made shorter, without interfering with the work.

—There was a very pretty wedding at the Immanuel Baptist church, Wednesday evening, when Miss Clara Emma, daughter of Mr. S. A. D. Sheppard, was married to Mr. Edward Enos Blake. Both are popular young people of Newton, and the church was filled with their relatives and friends. The pulpit platform was filled with chrysanthemums, and the large screen at one side and the organ gallery were also decorated with the same flower. The ceremony took place at 7.45, and the bridal procession was led by the ushers, Messrs. Robert K. Sheppard and Kenneth M. Blake of Newton, Frank S. Pierce of Salem, William S. Forbes of Boston, Arthur E. Fowle of Newton Centre, and Louis Guion of Upper Falls. Then came the bridesmaids, Miss Grace M. Dennison of Newtonville, and Miss Lillian Kimball of Roxbury. The maid of honor, Miss Ethel Harwood, preceded the bride, who was escorted by her father. The groom and his best man, Mr. Harold Blake, entered from the vestry and met the bride at the altar. Rev. Geo. E. Merrill, pastor of the church, officiated, using a modified form of the Episcopal marriage service. The bride wore white corded silk, with long train, trimmed with point lace, and the tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore white muslin over pink silk, and the bridesmaids white muslin over cream silk. An informal reception for the relatives and more intimate friends was held at the bride's home, corner of Arlington and Pembroke streets. Later in the evening, Mr. and

—Gentlemen and children who appreciate first class hair-cutting go to Burns', Cole's block.

—For a satisfactory hair cut or shave Frank T. Feld's is the place. Elliot block, Elmwood street.

—Dr. Clara Whitman Reed has removed from 47 Centre street to 140 Church street, opposite Farlow Park.

—Mr. F. O. Stanley lectured before the Watertown Unitarian Club, Wednesday evening, on the X-Files.

—A new mail from Boston, arriving here at 3 o'clock, has been put on. Also a mail leaving for Boston at 1.30.

—Capt. L. R. Landy of South Framingham is to inspect the properties of Co. C at the Armory this evening.

—The Social Science Club held its first meeting for the season on Tuesday, at the residence of Mrs. W. H. Blodgett.

—J. Henry Bacon is offering great bargains in handkerchiefs, from 3 cents up to $1.20, at about half regular prices. See adv.

—The first meeting this season of the Monday Evening Club will be held Nov. 9, at the residence of Mr. A. W. Fuller on Newtonville avenue. The topic will be "Vacation Experiences."

—Mrs. Mabel Jenness Venter will lecture on "Artistic Dress and the Social Graces," under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary, in the Y. M. C. A. hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 18.

—The action of the old depot was not held yesterday afternoon on account of the rain. It is now probable that the building will be sold at a private sale, to be partly moved away or torn down. It is said that several prominent Nonantum gentlemen are negotiating for its purchase and will remove it to that place.

—There are letters in the postoffice for James Dillon, Henry Deuette, Venola D. Orazie, Antonio Frischette, Thomas Frank, Luigi Gagliardi, Lino Adina, Leo Pavanani, Martin Pine, Mrs. Curtis, Sarah G. Francis, Maggie Greenough, Mrs. Ladin, Mrs. Lydia Thorp, Mrs. A. J.

THE VINE-CLAD RHINE HILLS.

NEWTONIANS TAKE THE TRIP UP THE FAR-FAMED AND HISTORIC RIVER.

From Bonn to Mainz (Mayence) by boat up the Rhine, sung for ages by all poets, and praised by all tourists, one may easily expect too much and be disappointed. So with some, today, the scenery did not come up to their expectations. It was another case of golden dreams and leaden reality. Not so with our little party. We had read much and were not wholly free from the glamour of romance cast upon all this valley. History and legend were not unknown to us, and they had bathed all this Rhinevalley with peculiar light. From Caesar's crossing the river to Blucher's, the Rhine has flowed on, vexed or unvexed, to the sea, and witnessed triumphs of war, and triumphs of peace. This city of Mainz has its own recent story to tell, more sweet to the German ear than to the Frenchman's.

We expected much, and we realized much, I surely, for my part, as much as I anticipated. The day was fair, for the most part cloudy, but there came occasional bursts of sunlight into the valleys and upon the "vine-clad hills." The autumn colors of gold and green, and brown and red, lay upon the landscape. The landscape, itself, never flat, always hilly, was continually changing in character and contour of the hills. Sometimes gently sloping and smooth, and again rugged, precipitous, jagged, giant rock-ribs thrown out as if to buttress and strengthen the everlasting hills: here receding and there pressing close the river as if to stop its flow. The river, too, winding its way along, swift and strong, turbid at first, but gradually clearing as we ascended, widening and narrowing, refusing always to be checked, though it might be delayed, had much to tell. The beautiful towns and villages along the shores, told of the past and of the contrasting present. Ruined castles by the score, the impregnable Ehrenbreitstein opposite Koblenz, the castles of the Moselle, seemingly inaccessible, ancient churches and cathedrals, boulders of smoke rising from factories and furnaces, tunnels through hillsides, in fact, all the modern train loads of people or merchandise were passing. All these touched the imagination and carried one's thoughts far into the dark ages, or spoke of the changed condition and face of the world of the present, mighty in the acts of peace. So too the scores of steamers and tug-boats, and long, low canal boats, passing up and down the river, vexing the waters.

But the vineyards—oh, the vineyards! I had read and read of "vine-clad hills" but I never had had an adequate conception of them, nor anything like it. Nor was it possible without the sight of the vineyards, the vine-clad hills, so far as we have come, the grape and wine industry.

The hills are much higher than I had thought, and in many places the ambitious vineyards push their way to the very summits. The most extensive and uninterrupted are on the Niederwald, miles in length and reaching upward on hundreds of terraces to very high, and the National monument overlooks many an acre here. Divers smaller hills sloping, arching to their bases, are fully covered. These were not so strange as the sight of vineyards larger and smaller, clinging to walls of rock nearly precipitous. In places where one would think a goat could find no footing, man, (or worm) has planted foot and vine. No place too high, too small, and apparently insignificant, if only one gets there somehow, and make a bit of stone terrace and find soil enough to set a stick in, but has been reached and made subservient to human need. I saw one small triangular bit near the river bank, between two ribs of rock, in which only one pole could be used. Some places are so high up and on rocks so steep, that it seems as if they would fall over face down. Now imagine miles and miles on both banks of the river, of such vineyards, if you can. If you cannot, come and see for yourselves, and if you cannot, bring your eyes, bring opera glasses with you. There are hills, wood-covered above, vine-clad below. If the woods were cleared where would poles be found.

Occasionally one sees on the sides of receding hills patches of vine, grass, light soil not planted, all small, of varying shape and irregularly distributed, the whole reminding you of patchwork in a "crazy-quilt."

Sad to say, the grape crop is a failure this year, on the Rhine. Have I said enough about the vines up and down the Rhine? Some time, my dears, I may find more to say. But I hear you asking me to tell you of some of the particular things we saw. Very well then, "pendant!" We passed the Lorelei cliff, 433 feet high, which runs down clear to the water's edge, so that this Lorelei seat had to be tunneled for railway use, and the shriek of the steam train on the cliffs the place of the song of the enchantress. The age of chivalry has passed, the age of legend and superstition, too, and the age of fact and fact has come, leaving, alas!

No fair myth about it.
From hard and practical proof.
We touched at Bingen, a place well known to you in song, a lovely place and inviting by its beauty. Here is Klopp castle in which Henry IV was held prisoner by his son in 1105. (Look to your history.) Near Bingen is Bingerlock, a rock in the river, on which stands the "Mouse Tower," once a customs tower associated now forever with Bismarck. (Read the poem again and the legend.)

Here and there we saw crosses erected on the heights by pious hands. We saw the ruins of castle Ehrenfels, destroyed by the French in 1802, and the Lorelei Monument standing high up on the Niederwald, commemorating the revival of the German empire made possible by the issue of the Franco-Prussian war, which unified the German race. The principal figure is proud Germania, erected in 1883. I can now give no further description of the monument. It stands opposite Bingen.

Not far above Bonn are the ruins of the "castled crag of Drachenfels," where legend says Siegfried had his fight with the dragon, whence the name Drachenfels. It is visible from afar. Knight Roland's name is connected in legendary story with an arch called Roland'sbogen. It is what is left, with other remains, of a very ancient castle.

We sailed past the ruins of Hammerstein, where Henry IV found refuge when fleeing from his son.
At Andernach stood once the Elector's castle, which was wrecked by the French in 1808.
Ehrenbreitstein (broad stone of honor), is another Gibraltar, defending Koblenz, with which it is connected by a bridge of boats. It seems impregnable, it is so high and so fortified above and on its sides, and it seems so still more as you go up the river and find its breadth about equal to its length, and proceed on all sides.

Sternberg and Liebenstein are in ruins. Some walls of each are standing on the shoulders of closely neighboring heights, within easy pistol shot of each other. These are called "The Hostile Brothers." (Read the legend.)

We came to Caub. Here Napoleon destroyed the Castle Gutenberg in 1805. Here a fine monument with the statue of Blucher in commemoration of his crossing the Rhine with his troops in the New Year's night of 1814. One looking at the place wonders how any troops could get there to cross.

Going on we pass in quick succession the ruins of several castles and of a chapel. The Burg Rheinstein is a magnificent castle with fine towers and turrets.

Here now are the ruins of Ehrenfels, which like other stout castles was wrecked by the French in 1808. Passing Johannsburg castle, the property of Prince Metternich, and renowned for its wines, and Nieder Ingelheim, where once stood the Castle of Charlemagne; and Biebrich, we leave Prussia and enter Hesse, and soon land at Mayence (German Mainz), and are met by the most charming journey by steamer from Bonn.

But dear me! how came I, after speaking of the "Hostile Brothers," to fail to mention two other hostilities, the "Cat" and the "Mouse." These names are given to the Ruins of Neu-Katenellbogen, the Katz (Cat) so called, and the Ruins of Tuenberg, which the Count Katzenellenbogen called Die Maus. These names are given to the Ruins of Neu-Katenellbogen, the Katz (Cat) so called, and the Ruins of Tuenberg, which the Count Katzenellenbogen called Die Maus.

I will add to the catalogue already given, Feste Rheinfels, once a fortress deemed impregnable, but delivered to the French in 1794; they destroyed it.
Now friends, adieu.

Newton's Boulevards.

Sylvester Baxter, in writing for the Transcript of the beauties of Boston boulevards, has this to say of Newton:

"A second great boulevard loop is that just realized by the completion of the extension of Commonwealth avenue from the crossing of Beacon street and its connection with Beacon street, near Chestnut Hill Reservoir, with its purely environment, by way of Chestnut Hill avenue. This system is continued westward for several miles by the extension of Commonwealth avenue through Newton almost to Charles River, making pleasant and convenient trolley-car connections with the romantic metropolitan park reservation of Hemlock Gorge at Newton Upper Falls and with other attractive points in Newton and along the river.

"Brookline and Newton are the farthest advanced of all the suburban municipalities in the adoption and execution of enlightened plans for the comprehensive construction of parkways and boulevards. A few years ago Newton set a most significant example for the proper development and execution of the parkway system, by the population by the formulation of a scheme for utilizing the natural lines of water courses in providing a network of thoroughfares of a parkway character. This was the work of a special boulevard commission, constituted for the purpose. In this way pleasant features are provided, which correspondingly invite a high class of property development, and the surface drainage problem is solved in the cheapest and most effective manner, averting the troublesome problems presented in the future creation of public nuisances that could only be abated by expensive forms of sewer construction. The improvement of Cheesecake brook, and of Laundry brook with Boyd's and Morse's pond—the latter in co-operation with Watertown—are features of this scheme that have either already been carried out or taken in hand."

How to Prevent Croup.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE INTERESTING TO YOUNG MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to those concerned with the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of the present article. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized, and which never is forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even if the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton, B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton Centre; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

Flag Day.

Newton was not behind other Massachusetts cities in its celebration of Flag Day last Saturday. The celebration was quite general in all parts of the city.

Flags were displayed on city hall, public schools, engine houses and many private residences. In the different villages most of the store-keepers had their show windows carefully decorated with flags and bunting which produced a handsome effect. McKinley-Hobart pictures were seen in many windows and some of the more enthusiastic wore "flag pins" bearing the picture of their favorite candidate.

In the evening the city was aglow with bonfires kindled in honor of the presidential candidates. The Republicans led in the illumination, though the Bryanites were not lacking in enthusiasm.

The largest fire in the city was kindled on the summit of Mt. Ida by the Republicans of Wards One and Seven. A large pile of tar and barrels and inflammable materials of all kinds, more than 30 feet high, was consumed, and could be seen from some distance.

Institution Hill, Newton Centre, and West Newton hill were also utilized for bonfires by the Republicans of those wards. At Auburndale a large pile of wood was burned on Lexington street by the Ward Four Republicans.

At Newtonville and Nonantum bonfires were lighted by members of the Silver Club. The light from all these fires together, with the reflection of the Watertown and Waltham blazes kept the sky lit up for nearly an hour.

In Newton, Chief Randlett had hose wagons stationed near the larger fires, but fortunately their services were not required.

Pingree Potato Patch 1896.

The report of the Agricultural committee of Detroit, on the cultivation of vacant lots, is at hand. With much persistence and personal solicitation, the required potatoes were obtained for use and given out in quarter acre lots to 1700 heads of families having 5882 children under 15 years of age, making a total of 7523 beneficiaries of the Detroit plan, or about 1-35 of the entire population of the city. The city appropriated $4000 of which $2400 was spent for plowing, seed, labor, etc. The value of the crops raised, is figured at $30,988.10 as against $27,722.00 in 1895, and $14,000 in 1894, and the profit for 1896 about $28,000, is considered as so much saving to the taxpayers. The yield was nowhere less than 100 bushels to the acre and from that up to 350, 300, and even as high as 375 on a considerable portion.

The City Poor Commissioners in all cases selected the families to whom lots were issued. The report says "no other plan of helping worthy people to help themselves has attracted much wide spread and universal attention in the English speaking world, certainly not in the United States."

The report of the Potato Patches of Newton is looked for with interest.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physician's prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgess, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a Minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 50 years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery. Try this Ideal Cough Remedy. Trial Bottles Free at J. G. Kilburn's drug store, Nonantum, and Bernard Billings, Newton Upper Falls."

KILLING HAIR SEALS.

AN OLD SEALER SAYS IT IS THE HARDEST
SEAL WORK HE KNOWS.

Crews Are Practically Always on Duty. Labor of the Most Difficult Character. Poor Accommodations on Ships For Rest and Recuperation.

Captain Asphy, a shrewy and good looking young Newfoundland, has followed the sea during much the greater part of his life, and the incidents he describes are full of genuine interest.

Captain Asphy declares sealing to be the hardest work he has ever heard of, and any one knowing will testify that the seaman's standard of hardness of work is not that of a man of fashion. No man dares attempt a sealing cruise until his endurance has been demonstrated beyond any question. Work is not the only consideration. A strong man need not dread labor so long as he is allowed time for the necessary restorative sleep. But the conditions of a sealing cruise are such that this, in a great measure, must be denied. And the rigors of constant exposure to the most extreme cold, and you have a partial summary of a sealer's discomforts.

In the latter part of February the great herd of about half a million seals has come south as far as the latitude of the straits of Bellefleur. The region between these narrow and Notre Dame bay is the seal's habitual breeding ground. It is among the ice of these waters that the steamship Mariposa of Montreal is supposed to have met her recent fate. The seals produce their young upon the ice floes, or "pans," within a few miles of the shore. The parents animals swim about in pursuit of fish and contentedly follow the ice wherever it drifts. The young grow with surprising rapidity. At the age of 3 weeks they have attained about the size of a bulldog and replaced the white fur of infancy with the dark coat.

Seal ships from Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and the neighboring coasts sail early in March. By that time the ice is well on in the process of breaking up, or "spawning abroad," and navigation has become possible. About the middle of March the killing begins. As the ships approach the sealing grounds the final preparations are completed. The long watch is begun, which is not relaxed until the active cruise is over. This watch, lasting from dawn till dark of every day, is kept up by one man alone. His importance is recognized in his rank, which is next to that of the captain. From the shape of his station of observation at the masthead this individual is known as "the barrel man."

He is provided with a fine telescope as can be procured and skill in its use is one of his most important essentials.

Another part of the preparation is the division of the ship's crew into 200 or 300 number, into four watches. Each is put under command of a master of watch and is organized into boats' crews and other small divisions for the performance of the various duties aboard ship. It is the perfection of these details of organization that brings a ship's work to the frictionless system that is a seaman's constant surprise. When at length seals are sighted, the word is passed down from the masthead as quietly as possible. Old seals may be disturbed by a shout at a distance of miles. Further reason for caution exists if the observer is within hearing of other ships.

In the latter case the first ship edges around toward the seals by a circuitous route, intended to throw the others off the track. Meantime orders are issued forbidding any one to show his head above the rail. The slightest carelessness will cause the game to disappear into the water. Perhaps the "pan" of seals is sighted by a rival ship. In that case all roundabout tactics are dropped and a race ensues. The four watches, armed with gaff-tipped clubs, "stand by" for directions. At the instant the ship gets among ice too closely packed for her to proceed farther all hands are overboard.

Away they run, each master of watch picking a path for his command, which hurries after him in single file. It is a rough chase. Now a climb over a washed up ledge of broken ice, again a leap across a black strip of water. Occasionally some unfortunate wretch falls in and is fished dripping out on the gaff of a companion. His clothes are frozen stiff in a few seconds, but he doesn't stop. The seals by this time are thoroughly alarmed, and it is important to reach them as quickly as possible. A seal's vital point is his nose. It is on that organ that the attack is made. One blow of the "club" usually kills. Some times, however, an old animal offers a hard and dangerous fight. The men hurry about their work of execution with energy, abated only after the last of the living seals has escaped into the water.

The victims are then skinned and the pelts heaped together in stacks, surrounded by the designs of their respective owners. These stacks, by the way, are another of the objects designated by the useful term "pan." A "pan" of pelts, like a "pan" of seals, is the supporting flat cake of ice. We have the same usage in "pan of bacon." It is seldom that a pan marked by a flag is molested. Feeling on the subject is prohibitively strong.

After stacking up the pelts as described all hands are ordered to return to the ship to continue the search. After hours of rushing about over a slippery footing, handling and skinning the heavy bodies of the seal, it is only natural to think of rest. But at this point the hardship only begins. The seal laws limit the time for killing to a few weeks. In consequence there is not the slightest relaxation of effort until the time is past. So, though a crew may not have had time to get even a cup of tea, a second "pan" is sighted. It is attacked without delay.

At dark the ship returns over her day's course to collect the "pans" of pelts. A storm may have arisen. It only becomes the more urgent that the prize be brought aboard without delay. Through the rolling, crunching ice the men pick their way in boats, with the water freezing immediately on whatever it touches. At last all the pans have been visited and all the grease laden skins laboriously stowed away.

At such a day's end one is justified in looking forward to a comfortable bed. But to the sealer this is denied. The bunk, limited in number, are allotted to the men who have been with that ship on previous cruises. The remainder of the men are allowed the liberty of the ship, which offers one of two alternatives—a berth in one of the boats on deck or a less frigid bed burrowed among the coal in the hold.

In the latter part of the season the seals, by that time well grown, spend most of the time in the water. It then becomes necessary to shoot them from boats, and the danger that a small boat undergoes in the midst of a field of grinding, broken ice needs no explanation. Sometimes a storm cuts off a watch from its ship for a day at a time.—Baltimore American.

Loose clothes and downy cushions bring only a negative sort of comfort to the woman who is suffering with some disease or derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Some clothes and some positions make the pain and discomfort seem less. Nothing will ever completely relieve but a radical cure. The effects of such disorders are not limited to mere local discomforts but extend over the whole body. Perhaps the nerves are most affected, and this in turn disturbs the digestion. After that there is no telling what form the trouble may take. With irritable nerves and poor digestion, a woman is on the straight road to the grave. Women are notoriously negligent in matters pertaining to their health. Too many of them understand too little about their own physical make-up. They do not understand their possibilities or their limitations, and they do not know enough about themselves to know when a symptom is really serious and when it is not. This naturally makes them overlook the plainest of danger signals. The start of everything is simple. The start of so-called "female complaints" may be a very slight thing indeed. It may be that in the beginning some small hygienic measures would stop the trouble. Certainly at this time, a little bit of the right medicine would stop it. What the trouble becomes worse, it is harder to cure, but still it can be cured. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will positively cure any trouble of this character. It affords immediate and lasting relief to women whose natural modesty has kept her from consulting physicians.

The whole story of the "Favorite Prescription," and what it has done for thousands of women is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This is a 1008 page book, profusely illustrated, written in plain language for the use of every-day people, and gives in a clear and lucid way an immense amount of valuable information about health and medicine. It will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only.

TRUST THE PEOPLE.

The people have again proved that they can be trusted to do the right thing and that a democratic form of government is not a failure. In spite of all temptations to stampede to the cause of a debased currency, in spite of all the abuse which has been heaped upon the people of the west by the Eastern press, in spite of many and good reasons for discontent with their condition, the people of the middle west have done their thinking quietly and as quietly made up their minds and voted on the side of a sound currency and a conservative government.

Hot-headed orators and newspapers have done their utmost to stir up strife between the sections, but the people have refused to be moved from their sober common sense. The crisis has come and gone, the verdict has been an overwhelming one, and now it remains for the victorious candidate and the victorious party to show that they are worthy of the trust reposed upon them. Their acts will be watched closely and Mr. McKinley will have a harder task than any president has had since Lincoln. He has shown marked growth since his nomination, he has broadened in many ways and shown that he has ceased to be a man of one idea, and the responsibilities of his high office ought to have a still greater effect upon his character.

He ought to be given fair treatment, and his acts judged on their merits and not by preconceived prejudices. Every President ought to receive such treatment, but partisan feeling is so strong that not every president gets it.

We have been told that all that was necessary for the return of prosperity was the election of McKinley, and that such an event would inaugurate a more prosperous condition of things in every line of business than this country has ever seen. Every one will welcome such a state of things, and though many of the favorable predictions were unreasonable, yet we may confidently expect better times than would have been possible under Bryan. The holders of capital are easily scared, and if they look for disaster it will be sure to come. If they feel confidence, as they have said they would under McKinley, then we may expect that business will begin to boom.

We have been told that thousands of orders for merchandise of every kind were given conditionally on the election of McKinley, that millions of other orders were held back to await the result; that thousands of new buildings were to be put up all over the land as soon as McKinley's election was assured. This would mean of course employment for millions of men, rushing business would mean high wages, and even if only half or a quarter of these predictions had any foundation, the good result ought to be seen at once, and the hard times begin to vanish.

The finance committee of the city government will present its report next Monday evening, to the city council, it is said, and also that the total estimate for next year's expenses is over a million dollars. It should be recognized that in view of the high tax-rate for this year, and the great amount needed to pay interest on the city debt, this is not a time for any outlays that can be avoided, and that all increases of appropriations should be resolutely stricken out. With strict economy, it will be possible to cut the tax-rate down next year, and this must be done unless the growth of Newton is to be seriously interfered with. The city council has a great responsibility laid upon them in this matter, and their acts will be carefully watched.

The vacancy on the school board from Ward Three has attracted a good deal of attention and as the name of Mrs. Richard Anders is urged by many of the more prominent people of the ward, and she has exceptional qualifications for the position, the conventions will probably respond to the wishes of the people. It is very important that the school board should be perfectly impartial, so that they will be able to decide all questions that may arise upon their merits, without any bias one way or the other. It is believed that Mrs. Anders would be able to act in this manner, and for this reason she is so warmly supported, and also because there is a feeling among many that she was not fairly treated in the contest that took place in the school board.

The defeat of biennial elections is to be regretted, as it was a reform that would have done much for Massachusetts, and placed her in line with other states. The arguments against the amendments were illogical, but they were advanced by organized labor, which seems to think that frequent elections are needed to secure the reforms it desires. The feeling, also, that the change would deprive those who wish the honor of being a representative, of half their chance, influenced many of the political leaders. The conservative voters of the state are many, who oppose every change, and many also honestly think that frequent elections are needed to educate the people. All these forces were too strong for the reform.

The most brilliant guess work about the vote of Newton was done by Agent Brimblecom of the Board of Health. He gave another city official these figures as his guess of the vote of Newton. McKinley, 3500, Bryan, 600, Palmer, 300, and Lovering 100. When the votes were counted, McKinley had 3570, Bryan, 603, Palmer, 230 and Lovering 28. Would-be candidates for city offices are now hunting after Mr. Brimblecom to get him to guess on their chances, before they make up their minds to accept.

The fact that Mr. E. L. Pickard ran so far behind his ticket, is easily explained by the fact that on the south side of the city many of the voters only made a cross for Mr. Hayward, fearing that something might happen on the north side, while in Wards One, Two and Seven, the friends of Messrs. Greene and Langford wished to show their disapproval of the way those gentlemen had been treated. It must be said, that, if this explanation is correct, they took a rather curious way of showing their disapproval.

A NEWTON man was so overjoyed over the result of the election, that he went about paying his bills in the gold he had been hoarding, in the fear that the silverites would win. In his hoarding of the precious metal, he was probably only one of many, and this hoarded gold will now find its way to the banks.

ELECTION is over, to the great relief of the whole country, and the daily papers will again leave off their hysterics and once more show some signs of respect for the intelligence of their readers. Fortunately, we elect a president only once in four years.

NEWTON cast 4726 votes on Tuesday, out of a total of 5151, or about 82 per cent. The only time that a larger percentage was cast was in that city election, which involved the famous fight over the school board, when 93 per cent. of the voters came out.

The size of the majority for McKinley and for Wolcott vary several thousand votes, in the different papers, but the one is about 170,000 and the other 155,000. Biennials were defeated by 25,000 or 30,000.

MR. LEVI S. GOULD, for County Commissioner, had a majority of 2,500, and possibly 30,000. This is one of the best results of the election, as it makes a much needed change in the county officials.

The national election is over and now the way is clear for city politics. There are lots of them and the contest promises to have many exciting elements.

Some Needed Corrections.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC: I feel obliged to notice an article published in the Boston Record on the 2nd or 4th inst., because it reflects upon a department of the city of Newton, which should be commended rather than traduced.

The article in question intimates that the city engineer gave the wrong grade to the Boston & Albany, where they were to grade the boulevard, resulting in the road being filled seven feet too high, and now the city presumably must remedy the error. The fact is that the railroad company did not wish to run their cars on the same grade of the boulevard, so when they constructed their trestle they made a difference of 20 per cent. in its grade. Mr. Lett's men forgot this fact when they unloaded their cars, and on that part immediately adjoining the tracks they filled too much. As the filling is done under contract with the railroad company, at 25 per cubic yard, it is their error and must be corrected by them without expense to the city.

Another charge made was that the city gave the wrong line for Barker's block at West Newton, resulting in an expense of $5000 to the city.

When these lines were given a special order was passed widening Washington street and establishing the new line. It was before the plan of depressing the tracks had been considered, and at the time when it looked very much as if the tracks would be elevated. The city could give no grade and did not, but the engineers had foresight enough to locate the new street line, otherwise the city would have been obliged to move the block back in addition to paying the grade charges.

Another charge is that the wrong grade was given for a house erected on the boulevard. This charge has more merit than any of the others. A grade was given to Mr. Sheehan who owns a little house (which he wished to raise), on the boulevard, and it was not exactly right, but as the land was at such a grade, naturally, that a house located as it should be, according to the engineer's lines, would make access to the buildings difficult; the error perhaps was fortunate. The party who gave this grade is no longer in the employ of the city. Another charge is that through a wrong location of a water pipe being given to the Boston & Albany railroad a large water main was broken. This is not so. The location was given correctly, but when the employees of the railroad drove their pile for the support of its trestle, it struck a stone and glanced off and did the mischief. The railroad paid $100 to one party to compensate for the damage. This was a mistake, as the city had no jurisdiction over it, all the damage paid from the city treasury is absolutely false.

The last charge is that the wrong lines were given for the new bank building, so that the building set 10 inches into the street. The fact is, one of the city's engineers discovered that the building was being so constructed, and called the attention of the architect to it, and he investigated and found the error was made by the contractor, and Mr. Ross, who is the contractor, owns up to the mistake. These reports, I suspect, came from a discharged employee of the city.

Lasell Notes.

The usual party to the Symphony on Saturday evening, notwithstanding the fact that there was to be a masquerade party in the gymnasium that evening, at which were expected to be present ancient, medieval and modern folk, to say nothing of various "quaint, queer and curious persons." Seldom have the costumes of a Lasell fancy-dress party been more original or more striking. That the music of the evening might be more fittingly indicative of the freedom and ease of the masquerade, the street lurchy-dudy was procured for the entertainment, and, as is usual on such occasions, "discouraged sweet music," to which tripping feet kept time. The prizes were awarded to Misses Gertrude Clarke and Eva Cole, the Christmas Tree, and the Flower Girl, respectively. This prize was, by the way, one which especially commended itself to school-girls, being a big cake. Another very effective costume was those of Li Hung Chang, the

Come and all and bring your dollar and tell, in verse or prose, how it was earned. Any lady not a member of the Circle can attend the afternoon "Talk" by paying the sum of fifteen cents.
—The dedication and reopening services of the Methodist Episcopal church will take place next Sunday, Nov. 8th. The morning service will be at 10.45. The sermon will be preached by Bishop Wilbur F. Mallalieu, D.D., the new resident bishop of Boston. The dedication service will be in charge of Rev. G. F. Eaton, D.D., presiding elder of the Boston North District. Mr. S. J. McWaters, the baritone soloist, will sing. In the afternoon there will be a service at 3 o'clock. This service is intended to commemorate the gift of the Good Shepherd window by the young people of the society. The presentation will be made by Miss Grace Howland. Mr. Dustin Lacey will receive the window in behalf of the trustees; Mr. Loomis will write two presentation poems; Mrs. Charles Soden will sing the solo "The Ninety and Nine," and the pastor will make a short address. In the evening at 7.30 Rev. Edward M. Taylor, D. D., of Boston, will preach. Mr. Waldo Cole of Auburndale will sing at this service. The evening service will be a popular service. Dr. Taylor has been for two years president of the Epworth League of New England and is a speaker of great magnetism and peculiar powers. Those who have seen the church since the work of reconstruction, have been greatly impressed by the beauty of the stained glass windows by day and the soft and harmonious coloring of the decorations under the new electric lights at night. The services all day will be open to the public. All are cordially invited to come early and obtain a seat as all seats are free.

—Mrs. Martha Dix died Thursday morning at her home on Fuller street. Deceased was 83 years of age and was the widow of the late Johnathan D. Dix, a well known resident. The funeral will be held at the house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the family lot at the Newton cemetery.
—The Newton Veteran Firemen's Association will issue a book early in the new year containing a history of the department, both active and veteran, from its earliest organization in 1813 to the present time. The book will be illustrated with portraits of the various chiefs and wardens, apparatus used and houses occupied.
—At a meeting of a large number of people interested in the schools, the other night, it was decided to present the name of Mrs. Richard Anders to the ward caucus and to fill entire to fill the vacancy on the school board. The caucus will be held next week, and all who favor Mrs. Anders should make a special effort to be present. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance. Mrs. Anders was advised when she was persuaded to accept the position, that there would be none, and she accepted on that condition.
—The Women's Alliance connected with the Unitarian society, held its regular meeting Thursday morning. In the presence of the president, Mrs. Jaynes presided. She also read an interesting paper on "The Jews," giving a description of the different periods of their development from their earliest history 2000 B. C. to the time of the coming of Christ. Mrs. Spaulding gave an account of the reformed Jews showing how they differed from the Orthodox Jews. A discussion followed on topics suggested by the papers.
—The annual meeting of the Newton Ladies' Home Circle was held Wednesday afternoon and the following officers elected: Mrs. W. H. Pearson, president; Mrs. Richard Anders, Mrs. Albert Plummer, vice-presidents; Mrs. W. H. Hadlock, Rec. Sec'y; Mrs. Chas. A. Wilson, Cor. Sec'y; Mrs. J. M. Smith, treasurer. It was also an experience meeting and 34 ladies responded to the call giving a dollar and explaining how they earned the same in poetry or prose. It proved quite amusing and shows that the members of the circle have many talents previously hidden to the world.

—A car of potatoes arrived Nov. 4, we believe you can save money by buying your winter supply of potatoes now at the Newton Public Cash Market, 413 Centre street, Newton.

—Driver Albert Hennrikus of Hose 5 was injured by falling from the Boston Hospital for four months, has been discharged from that institution and has returned to his home in this place. His condition is reported as slowly improving.
—Riverside Lodge, N. E. O. P., met in regular session Monday evening at the house of A. H. Wiggin, Bonaventure street. After the regular business was transacted, the members spent a pleasant hour at progressive whist, Miss Abbie Chamberlain receiving the gentlemen's prize and Mrs. Elliot the ladies'.
—Messrs. Luther, Richards, Swift and Weatherbee went to Newburyport last Sunday on their wheels; they started at 7 a. m. and returned about 8 p. m. They enjoyed the annual trials and pleasures of a long trip, but all agreed they had a fine time, although two of the party were obliged to return from Salem on the train, but that is liable to happen to any cycle enthusiast, you know, provided there is a train to come on. Sometimes they have to walk.
—The 25th anniversary of the parish of the Church of the Messiah of West Newton and Auburndale, will be celebrated next Tuesday, Nov. 10th. An informal reception will be held at 7 p. m. in the school. Service in the church at 8 p. m. The bishop of the diocese is expected to be present, with other clergy who have been invited. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Leiston Parks, D. D., rector of Emmanuel church of Boston and arch deacon of Boston.
—A large crowd, including many of our prominent citizens, viewed the huge bonfire in Ford's field on Lexington street, on Saturday evening. The affair was arranged by the Republican Ward Committee in compliance with the request of the state committee, and was successfully carried out. A large pile of tar barrels were set on fire at 8.30 p. m., and together with quite an elaborate display of red fire, the bursting of bombs and the antics of young America, quite a celebration fitted ended Flag Day. The only unpleasant event of the evening was the burning of Porter Gore by a brick thrown by some hoodlum, hitting him in the forehead directly over the eye. He had to have several stitches taken in the wound.
—Election day was a red letter day in the political history of this ward, the largest vote being polled than was ever cast in any election of the past; 90 per cent. of the entire vote of this ward being cast. In precinct 1, 443 of the 492 votes on the list were cast; in precinct 2, (lower half), out of 108, in the early morning the voting was quite spirited, and by ten o'clock over one half of the entire vote was cast. The votes kept dropping in all through the afternoon until the closing hour, 4.34, when the polls were closed and the ward officers commenced the count, which took until quite late in the evening. The Ward Republican committee had been hard at work preparing for election, and kept the work going on, until the polls were closed, feeling very well satisfied with the size of the vote they were able to bring out. A number of young men cast their first ballot, and will always have the pleasure of knowing that their first was on the day when such a great victory was won for sound money.

—There will be a meeting of the Women's Federation of Clubs in the Congregational church, Tuesday, Nov. 10th, at 2 p. m.
—Langdon Chandler of Auburndale avenue was thrown from his bicycle on Commonwealth avenue near Auburn street, Sunday afternoon. He struck heavily on his head and sustained a number of bad cuts about the head and face. He was picked up by mounted Officer Tappley and removed to his home.
—Welcome Freeman entertained at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Belle F. Wiggin, Bonaventure street, a Halloween party, last Saturday evening. Friends from Boston, West Newton and Auburndale were present, and were entertained with music, whist and a collation. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all.
—Mrs. Smith of Lexington street was given a surprise party by a number of friends at her home, Thursday evening, last week. When the friends came they brought with them a handsome sideboard. Miss Annie Welch made the presentation speech and Mrs. Smith responded. Dancing and light refreshments followed.
—A party of four young men driving through the village last Sunday made a great deal of noise, and when near Melody's stable on Auburn street, were stopped by Officers Seaver and Quilly and placed under arrest. In court Monday, they were fined as follows, for disturbing the peace: John Brennan, $14, Thomas J. Kirby, $5, Richard Roche, $10, and William J. Hagerity, $10.
—A public meeting of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, will be held in the Congregational church, corner of Hancock street and Woodland road, Tuesday, Nov. 10th, at 2.30 p. m. The meeting, in charge of the educational committee, will be addressed by Mr. T. M. Balliet, superintendent of schools, Springfield, on the subject of "Manual Training in the Public Schools." Mr. Balliet has made a thorough study of this subject and his knowledge and enthusiasm cannot fail to interest and enlighten all who hear him. There will be an informal discussion after the address. All men and women interested in education are cordially invited to be present.
His Comment.
[From the Washington Star.]
"I always did dislike men who have no ear for music," said one girl, "and now I dislike them more than ever. Charley Naigro called to see me yesterday evening. At 11 o'clock I went to the piano."
"And played Home, Sweet Home?" said the other girl.
"Yes. First I played it as a ballad. He didn't move. Then I played it as a waltz, and next as a two-step, and then as a jig."
"And what did he do?"
"He said, 'Gracious, Miss Jones, what a jolly lot of tunes you know! And all of them so different!'"

McKINLEY AND HOBART
Have been elected President and Vice-President since my last. The country is safe. Mr. Bryan and his friends are disappointed. Somebody must be. Always. No "Free Silver" under government sanction at present. I shall, however, continue to distribute handsome Silver-Plated Ware "Free" to all who buy a certain amount of goods for cash. Many have taken out cards, and some have taken their presents and are pleased. It is nearly a 10 per cent. gift. The new Electric Oil is ready. If it is near what is claimed for it, there is no doubt about its having a large sale. Dunham's Shredded Coconut is a new production and will equal any. A purchaser of this gets "something for nothing." That's what we all want. Read the circulars. Save the coupons on package. Try it. "Old Plymouth" entire wheat flour is liked very much. It is healthful and nutritious. All the gluten left in it. All the indigestible bran taken out of it. 20 cents for a trial sack. Those whose health will not permit the use of real coffee will find the new "Posing Cereal" a real good substitute. It looks, smells, and tastes much like the real, and it is healthful. The best brands of flour are Pillsbury, Matchless, Bridal Veil, Columbia, Swansdown, and Gold Medal. All at Boston prices for the same pay. Cash or 30 days' credit. No longer time.

TO A FRIEND.

Thy Friend am I
And so will I be.
—Old Poet Engraved on a Ring.

Here is a sapphire. Take it,
With an old world vow.
Surely friends are faithful Unto death and beyond.
Long ago this poetry
Graven on a ring,
Was true friendship's offering.
Now to you I bring
Just a silver sapphire.
But the words are there.
Hang it on your finger
Mid so much that's fair.
It will then remind you
Of the years that are past,
And that in the future
Friendship true will last.
—Florence Penock in Academy.

A GYPSY DANCER.

At the date this story commences, about the year 1743, there resided in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, a family of ancient pedigree and great wealth. This was the family of Sir George Pasely, a gentleman of the old English school.

Sir George was married, though not until he was already an old bachelor, but his wife was a young and lovely being, of tender age, compared with his own, for when she became Lady Pasely she was but 19 years of age. Sir George doted on her, and indeed she was worthy his fondest regard, being everything in person and mind that the heart could wish. But, alas! the destroyer, death, came, and the same hour that made him father took the gentle mother and fond wife to an issue and time rolled on, and the sweet child grew daily more and more like to what her mother was, while Sir George loved her with a deep and absorbing affection.

There was a young man, a wild and reckless spirit, that claimed to be next of kin to the Pasely family with Sir George, and would doubtless, from some peculiar cause known to law, be able to establish his right to the estates now held by Sir George. Therefore the birth and future growth of the little Louise Pasely was watched with jealous care by Ernest Renwood, who hoped one day to possess the broad Pasely estates for his own.

Four years had passed since the birth of Louise, who proved to be a sturdy and beautiful child, when Renwood saw that he must bring his designs to an issue and not leave any longer his hopes to chance. He therefore formed the resolution of adopting some expedient to rid himself of her, for, as we have seen, she stood between him and the rich lands he so much coveted. He was not naturally a hardened villain, but that powerful incentive to evil, that most thriving agent of the evil spirit, avarice, was goading him on to the brink of perdition, and he was an orphan and had been reared lacking the fostering care and kindly counsel that forewarns and forearms youth against the temptation of manhood.

It was late one mild summer's night when he came to this conclusion. He recalled to his mind that at a wild and secluded spot some two miles from the immediate neighborhood of Sir George's estate there were encamped at that very hour a band of gypsies, who, he at once conjectured, might be of service to him in the plan proposed to execute—viz, to rid himself of the little Louise Pasely, heiress to the estates that he was determined to possess.

Louise disappeared on the subsequent night, and on the following morning, when her absence was discovered, consternation filled the hearts of all.

Twelve years, with all the changes that so long a period of time brings, have passed since the loss that had so wrung the heart of Sir George. He had grown gray, and many a wrinkle crossed his manly brow. A gypsy band was in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, and the beautiful danseuse Minitti and her handsome companion were performing to the delighted villagers of the country. It did not escape the inquisitive eyes of the spectators that her companion, Fernando, watched with loving eye each motion of Minitti.

The little town in the environs of which the gypsy band were encamped was one day thrown into commotion by one of the inhabitants declaring that an article of considerable value had been stolen from his house. One of the inhabitants even remembered to have seen a female of the tribe near the door of the house whence the jewel was missing and was ready to make oath that it was none other than Minitti, the danseuse of the tribe.

This was quite sufficient, and upon such strong circumstantial evidence the beautiful girl was seized and rudely carried before the justice of the county for examination. In vain was all the proof offered by the tribe as to her innocence. No court would heed a gypsy's evidence, and the justice was forced, though compassion was in his heart—aye, and it beamed broadly from his countenance, too—to commit the girl.

Immediately after the justice had pronounced the sentence and the weeping girl was about to be borne away by the officers of the court a young man stepped suddenly forward from the crowd and said, while he thrust aside the rough hands that were extended to seize Minitti:

"Stand back, if you would not have me take your lives. The girl is innocent. I stole the jewel. Why should you charge this upon the gentle being, innocent and pure—aye, purer than the best of you? It is I who am guilty."

"Thou!" cried the gypsy girl. "Impossible, Fernando!" For it was her companion of the dance. And the gentle girl, rejoicing to find one friend so near her in this fearful moment, threw her arms about his neck and wept upon his breast.

"Even so, dear Minitti," he replied. "But fear not for me. I shall soon be released again. Keep up a brave heart, dear girl."

As he said these words the justice directed officers to release the girl and commit the young man to prison, glad of an opportunity to clear one whom he could not find in his heart to commit.

The justice was Sir George Pasely, and that same night, while he sat alone in his study musing upon the examination of the gypsy and the singular circumstance relating to it, a servant announced that a stranger desired to see him. He was admitted, and the tall, gaunt person of the gypsy leader was before him. Sir George motioned him to a seat.

"Judge," said he at once, "I am a man of few words. I have come here on a matter of business, and, with your permission, will speak at once to the point."

"Go on, sir."

"Twelve years ago," continued the gypsy, "you lost a child."

The old man sprang like an infuriated animal upon the person of the gypsy, and seizing him by the throat had nearly thrown him upon the floor before the gypsy successfully recovered himself to release his neck from Sir George's grasp.

"Stay!" said the gypsy, casting off the justice with an ease that showed at once his superior physical power, and with a degree of composure that proved him to be no stranger to scenes of personal conflict. "No power on earth can make me speak unless I choose. Now deal with me like a man, and I will do so. Resort to force, and I am dumb forever."

"Speak, then," said the old man, trembling in every limb. "Speak! What of my child?"

"As I said before, this is purely a matter of business on my part," continued the gypsy. "Will you give me £500 if I will return your daughter to you?"

Without a word further Sir George drew a bill upon his banker for the amount specified, saying to the gypsy as he handed the draft, honestly drawn and filled up:

"Now, sir, speak, and if you give me faithful intelligence upon my honor the draft and money shall be yours."

"Enough. I am satisfied. Now, Sir George, the girl that was tried before you today, charged with theft, is thy daughter."

"My God!" exclaimed the agitated parent, scarcely able to contain himself. "Bring her to me at once!"

"Stay, sir," continued the gypsy. "First let me explain to you my own agency in the affair."

"No matter, no matter. I forgive you. Bring me my child."

"But I ask no forgiveness. First let me explain. I learned this secret in a distant land, from a man who had been paid to destroy your child, but who, taking a fancy to her, preferred to save her life and adopted her. When I learned this from him, he was on his deathbed. I promised him to bring her to you. I have done so, and now only demand payment for my expenses."

At the expiration of an hour, during which Sir George could hardly conquer his impatience, Minitti, the lovely danseuse, entered Sir George's apartment and was at once clasped in his arms, with barely a word that told her all.

"Oh, heaven," said the father, while he alternately pressed her to his heart and held her from him that he might see more clearly her womanly perfections, "I thank thee for at last returning her to me, so beautiful, so gentle, so lovely—aye, and so pure! There can be no guile or deceit in that face," and Sir George was almost beside himself with joy and delight. "Louise," said he, the tears streaming from his eyes, "dear, dear Louise!"

"I do remember that name," said she, musing. "It comes over me like a dream, long, long forgotten."

"Ah, my child," said Sir George, "nothing on earth shall again separate us from each other!"

"But, father, dear father," said Louise, bewildered and overhappy, "will you release Fernando?"

"Aye, at once! The brave fellow who would have saved thee at the expense of his own liberty shall be suitably rewarded."

As he spoke he wrote an order for his immediate release, which was dispatched forthwith by a servant, with directions to bring the gypsy to Sir George's apartment.

In the meantime Louise's early history was crowded upon her astonished ears almost in a single breath.

Fernando came at last, little dreaming of the document that was awaiting him. He was surprised to find Minitti in the company of Sir George and at once rightly conjectured that his release was owing to her intercession, but his astonishment was beyond description when the true position of the matter was explained to him. Suddenly he became sad, and a tear trembled in his handsome eye when the justice asked:

"What grieves you, my friend?"

"To realize, sir, that Minitti's finding a father must be the cause of our separation."

"How so, sir?"

"Would one of your blood and standing in the world marry a child to one of the proscribed race?"

"Aye," said the justice, "Louise should be yours if you were the—the I won't exactly say what, after the proofs of affection you have shown her."

Fernando pressed the tearful girl to his breast, saying:

"Dear Louise, blessed be the power that overrules us all."

"Dear Fernando, how happy we shall be now, with every opportunity for improvement and all the fine things you have taught me—to read, to write and everything. I can improve them all."

"We will indeed," replied Fernando. Then, turning to the justice, he said: "The trial is passed, and now I, too, will speak."

One year since I made a vow on quitting my studies that I would seek a wife who should love me for myself alone. Being of noble birth—nay, start not, it is true—I assumed these rustic garments and determined to wear them until I found a heart and proved it worthy of my love. I saw Louise as a gypsy. I loved her at once, yet I determined to keep my oath. I tested her affection in every reasonable way and learned to love her for her purity of mind as well as her extraordinary beauty, and when the time had nearly come for me to take my gypsy wife to my bosom, lo! I find her of gentle birth like myself, while each has truly proved the other's love."

Fernando de Cortez was indeed born of the blood royal of Spain, and in this romantic way had he chosen himself a wife. We might make our tale more complete by adding to it, but still we could only show that happiness was the future lot of the gypsy danseuse.—Buffalo Times.

He Held Down the Place.

"One of the best judges Indiana ever had was Silas Ramsey of Corydon," said J. K. Helton, a prominent lawyer of Indianapolis. "And yet his election was a joke. A very able but unpopular lawyer received the judicial nomination, and in order to humiliate him Ramsey was induced to run against him. Ramsey was a blacksmith and had probably never opened a lawbook in his life. He was a half fellow well met and had an extensive acquaintance, but, of course, had no idea of being elected. When the votes were counted, he had a majority, and it was feared that the joke would prove a serious one, but he at once took course at a law school, and during the first two or three years on the bench conferred with able lawyers, reserving decisions in close cases until he could fully study them and be advised upon them, and by the close of his term had acquired an enviable reputation. The blacksmith's decisions were very rarely reversed by the supreme court."—Washington Star.

The Single Tax Class and Club.

The regular session was held at 230 Bellevue street, Tuesday evening, election returns being received by telephone to the great delight of the McKinley members. A paper was read on the Single Tax and the Farmers, showing wherein his burdens will be lightened.

The farmers cling to the belief that the rigid taxation of personal property would help them. Facts on a large scale show instances of twenty times the land value among merchants as among farmers, but only ten times as much personal property. His house and cattle and farm stock, his watches and carriages are visible and known and cannot be hid from the assessors.

The farmer thinks, though in vain, to reach and tax stocks and bonds which owe their value almost entirely to franchise rights upon and over land. The fact is that under the Single Tax these franchises would pay tax upon their full value.

The farmer thinks money and credits should be taxed. Facts show that the farm as compared with the city pays nearly three times as heavy a tax on money and credits. The same statistics if available for Massachusetts would no doubt show a similar, though not so aggravated a condition.

The farmers of Missouri pay 1-1/2 per cent less taxes on their land than the cities pay, but 127 per cent more on personal property. St. Louis pays on real estate about 40 per cent of the taxes of the whole State, but it pays less than 20 per cent of the taxes on personal property and just 11 per cent of the taxes on money and credits.

The rest of the State pays 70 per cent more on land than St. Louis does, but 318 per cent more on personal property in general, and exactly 700 per cent more on money and credits. The same statistics if available for Massachusetts would no doubt show a similar, though not so aggravated a condition.

The farmer thinks to tax the manufacturer on his mill, his machinery and his profits. He forgets that the farmer as himself, a manufacturer with an annual product of a thousand or twelve hundred dollars, pays on that product a tax of $100 or $150, one-seventh or one-eighth of his whole product, more even than the stipulated one-tenth for the lifting man.

The same subject will be continued at next meeting, Nov. 13th. Rev. J. H. Gregory of Worcester will read a paper. Other papers invited. All welcome.

School Theatricals a Hundred Years Ago.

Miss Agnes Repplier writes a little sketch entitled "At School a Hundred Years Ago" for St. Nicholas. Of one form of diversion allowed the pupils Miss Repplier writes:

Few things more amusing than Miss Wiford's "Early Recollections" have ever been told in print. We know everybody in that school as intimately as Mary Wiford knew them in the year 1796—the English teacher who was so wedded to grammar and arithmetic—Mary hated to study; the French teacher whom she both loved and feared, who had a passion for neatness and used to hang around the children's necks all the possessions found out of place, from dictionaries and sheets of music to skipping ropes and dilapidated dolls; the schoolgirls who came from every part of England and France; above all, the school plays—"The Search After Happiness," which they were permitted to act as a great treat, because Miss Hannah More had written it. If you know nothing about "The Search After Happiness," you have no real idea how dull a play can be.

Four discontented young ladies go forth to seek Urania, whose wisdom will teach them to be happy. They meet Florella, a virtuous shepherdess, who leads them to the grove where Urania lives. Here they are kindly received and describe all their faults at great length to their hostess, who sends them brimful of good advice to their respective homes. The bulk of a lot of real schoolgirls acting such a drama and speaking to each other in this sedate and meritorious fashion:

With ever new delight we now attend
The councils of our fond maternal friend.

Met an Old Friend.

"I cannot but admit my condition, your honor," said the dignified old gentleman, who had been carried to the police station the night before in a state of collapse, "but the change, however, is for the better. I met an old friend of my younger days, an old friend from Kentucky."

"I have the honor of being a Kentuckian," said his honor, "and I will let you go. By the way, who was the old friend? He may be a friend of myself."

The dignified old gentleman first got himself near the door and then said in a soft voice:

"John Barleycorn."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Friendship Shattered.

"I suppose you are fond of Shakespeare," said one legitimate actor to another.

"Of course I am."

"Then why in the name of humanity do you insist on acting his plays?"—Washington Star.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison of Worthington, Ind.,
"Sun," writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general systemic tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Stohle, 2025 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat nor digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Price 30 cents.

—Mrs. Lane of Watertown street, near Dalby, is reported quite ill.

—Tuesday evening, the King's Daughters of the North Evangelical church met at the home of Mrs. James Galway.

—The small store in Stuart's block has been taken and will soon open with a stock of confectionery and small wares.

—Genesta & Lacroix opened a drug store in Farrell's block Monday evening. The store has been thoroughly refitted and improved.

—Arthur Gibson was arrested Tuesday morning on the charge of larceny of a quantity of grain. His case comes up for trial tomorrow.

—The Misses Hutton and Mr. Philip Hatton, former residents of this place but now of Lebanon, N. H., have been visiting friends in town this week.

—Through Forknall's real estate agency the Mullen estate on Adams street has been leased and will be refitted as a tenement house. It is to be occupied by four families.

—Election returns were received over a private wire at the Nonantum club house Tuesday evening. Members and their guests were present and refreshments were served.

—Mr. Charles W. Kinder, for many years a well known druggist of this place, is closing his place of business on Watertown street. Mr. Kinder has a large circle of business friends and patrons in this place who regret his leaving.

—Thursday evening of last week Fred Morris reported to the police of this division that his bicycle had been stolen from a yard on West street. Search was made and the wheel was found in an adjoining yard by Officers Lucy and Costello.

—Mrs. Stumpf, formerly proprietor of the Parker boarding house, has removed from California street to Farrell's block Watertown street. The Parker house will be remodeled and leased as a tenement block.

—It is said that a party of citizens planned to buy the old Newton depot and place it upon the Improvement Society's land, but were unable to obtain the necessary permit to remove through the streets. They intended it is said, to make several changes in the building and use it as a hall. Every resident of this section realizes the necessity of such a hall in this place and hopes to see one in the near future.

—It is reported that only three looms have been in operation in the Nonantum Worsted mill this week.

—The Silver Lake Wheelmen are considering plans for a minstrel show to be given in Armory hall at an early date.

—A new board sidewalk has been placed on the south side of California street from Nevada to Bridge street. It is a decided improvement and one that is greatly appreciated.

—The Garden City Athletic club football eleven defeated a West Loxbury team in a one sided game on Stearns' field last Saturday afternoon. The home team had everything its own way and whitewashed the visitors by a score of 36 to 0. The Garden City club plays five games this season and has yet to be defeated.

Six weeks ago I suffered with a very severe cold. It was almost unable to speak.
My friends all advised me to consult a

THE NOVEMBER ATLANTIC.

The opening article, and perhaps as important a contribution as this issue contains, is a paper by Laurence Laughlin, of the Chicago University, on Causes of Agricultural Unrest. Col. T. W. Higginson begins his reminiscences under the attraction of "Cheerful" with the first instance of a Cambridge Boyhood." The other paper of literary reminiscences is by Charles Warren Stoddard on Bret Harte. Two other papers which can be mentioned together are "The Book of Humanity," by Jacob A. Riis, author of "How the Other Half Lives," a series of striking studies of Jewish tenement life, and "The German and the American," by Josiah Flynt.

"Utah as an Industrial Object Lesson," by William E. Smythe, shows what irrigation has done and can do for arid America.

Other contributions of importance are a travel sketch of unusual interest by Miriam Coles Harris, entitled "A Night and a Day in Spain;" "The History of the Gift of Painless Surgery," by Dr. Edward Waldo Emerson; "Larion in the Great Britain," by J. M. Ludlow, and "The Young Shakespeare," a study of Romeo, by John Jay Chapman, which is a genuine contribution to Shakespearean criticism. The fiction is represented by first instalment of "The Juggler," a new novel by Charles Egbert Cadden; the dramatic conclusion of Kate Douglas Wiggin's "Mormon Lisa," and a short story of unusual merit by Charles D. Roberts, entitled "Stony Lonesome."

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

For variety and sustained interest of content the November Magazine is a notable number. The opening article is by Capt. C. J. Melliss, of the Ninth Bombay Infantry, "Panther-shooting in Central India." A most interesting travel article is about the new gold fields of Alaska, by Frederick Funston in "Over the Chilkoot Pass to Yukon." "Cavendish," an authority to all who play the game, over, contributes a short appreciative and popular paper on "What America Has Done for Whist." He shows that several of the best known principles of the modern game have had their origin in this country, and the points presented will interest every player of this game. The year 1896 marks the centenary of the discovery of lithography. This is dwelt upon and illustrated by examples of the works of famous artists in M. H. Spindler's paper on "The Renaissance of Lithography." Alexander Black, the picture-painter, whose "Miss Jerry" was published in the magazine for September, 1895, and who has appeared before audiences all over the country, contributes an interesting paper on "The Camera and The Comedy," with illustrations from his new play, "A Capital Courtship." Miss Mary Gay Humphrey, one of the most brilliant of golden rule newspaper women, contributes a paper on "Women Bachelors in New York." Julian Ralph's many journeys into the wild West and intimate knowledge of the Indians are recalled in a very personal way by the descriptions, in his article called "My Indian Plunder." The stories of the number are:
"Baby's Fortune," by Joel Chandler Harris, a romantic tale of life in the West;
"An American Mother," by the late Maryann Underwood, and "Speeches," by W.
L. C. Beard, a story of a deed of heroism performed by a queer character of the great Southwest frontier. Mr. Harris brings us to the end of "Sentimental Tommy." It has been among the most popular serials the magazine has ever had and one of the most successful serials printed anywhere for years.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

The November Harper's is marked by the first part in a new series of South Africa by Poulton Bigelow, with illustrations from material gathered by the author. The article in the November Magazine tells the story of "Jameson's Raid" in the language of two participants, one a Boer and the native ally, the other a physician who accompanied the English expedition. This paper will be followed in December with a description of the strongest man in South Africa, President Paul Kruger, and of his most striking characteristics as they appear to an observant American. Thomas
A. Janvier contributes "The Fish of M.
Guissard," with illustrations by D. Gibson. "The Dominant Idea of American Democracy," by Professor Francis N.
Thorpe, is a careful study of the growth of our liberties during the past hundred years.
Woodrow Wilson's six papers on Washington reach their close with a study of "The First President of the United States," in which the career of Washington is followed through the Presidency to his tomb.
The recent death of George du Maurier is recalled in his novel, "The Martian," now running in Harper's Magazine, the last series of work of a life crowned with signal success in two branches of art, the novel and the illustration. Among the few finished studies left by the late William Hamilton Gibson was a paper on "The Cuckoo and the Outwitted Cow-Bird," a story of romantic tragedies in bird life. The author of "The Nemesis of Perkins," "The Making of a Peasant," is a story by Mrs. Alexander. Octave H. Parnes contributes another story of Amos Wickford, called "The Next Room," in which the interest centres round an old gentleman turned usurer.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting
Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by A. Hudson, Newton; B. Billings,
Newton Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton
Centre; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J.
H. Green, Newton Highlands.

The best way to avoid scalp diseases, hair use the best preventive known for that purpose—Hall's Hair Renewer.

Literary Notes.

Harper's Weekly dated November 7 will contain the first chapters of a new short series of Scotch life, entitled "Lady Lovers," by S. R. Crockett, author of "The Gray Man" and "The Raiders." There will be a four-page article, profusely illustrated, on historic New York houses. Boston's subway, by which the street car traffic in the business portions of the city is to be put underground, will be described in text and pictures. The great naval Sound Money parade in New York Harbor will be depicted.

The issue of Harper's Bazar for November 7th will contain an article by Annie Nathan Meyer, entitled The New Home for Bernard College, with a picture of the building and diagrams of some of the principal halls. There will also be an article descriptive of Mount Holyoke, with an illustration of the hall about to be erected at South Hadley by the New York Alum-ne of the college. Redfern fashions for Autumn will interest women about to purchase new gowns.

Master Ardick, Buccaneer, is the title of a strong historical novel by a new American author, F. J. Costello, which is to be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co. This picturesque historical romance, with its wealth of adventures on sea and land, introduces us among others to the renowned Henry Morgan, who with his reader accompanies him in his daring journey across the Isthmus and in the sacking of Panama.

The Story of the Mine is the title of an important new book, by Charles Howard Shinn, which will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co. in the Story of the West Series, edited by Ripley Hitchcock. The figures of the prospector and the miner are clearly outlined in the course of the story, the thorough development and deep-mining, to the last of the stock gambling, the story is told in a way that presents a singularly vivid and engrossing picture of a life which has played so large a part in the development of the remote West. While this book, in accordance with the plan of this successful series, has a lasting historical value, it will be found to possess a peculiar interest at the present time.

Messrs. D. Appleton & Co. announce an elaborately illustrated work entitled Living for Pleasure, or, The Harness Stable and its Appointments, by Francis T. Underhill. This sumptuous volume is the first book which we have had on the subject of proper appointments, and it will take rank both as one of the recognized authorities and also as one of the most elaborately illustrated and beautiful of the books dealing in any way with the horse.
As a judge at the New York and other horse shows for many years, Mr. Underhill's high rank as an authority has been universally recognized. In addition to the importance and practical value of the text, special attention has been paid to the selection and arrangement of the varied subjects of an unequalled collection of illustrations.

New Uses for Old Things.

[From Harper's Bazar.]

In view of the hard times, perhaps a few hints as to new uses for old things about the house may not come amiss, particularly now that the Christmas season is approaching, and gifts may need to be prepared at home.

Your husband's last summer's straw hat with ribbons attached to the brim, and lined with some soft material, like China silk, will make a very acceptable work basket.

A very attractive cracker jar can be made of an old silk hat lined with zinc, with a close fitting similarly lined boy's golf cap for the cover.

An English girl of a fickle nature is reported to have used her past engagement rings to fasten window curtains upon the brass rods. This might seem extravagant at first glance, but engagement rings after all rarely require any outlay on the part of the recipient.

A novel hanging lamp can be made from an empty hair curling with an artistic arrangement of a dozen or more holes pierced in the side with a gimlet.

Anchor jars and farole olive bottles by a judicious use of decalcomanias can be transformed into briefcases for the parlor at slight expense, and are by no means so easily broken as the more expensive and genuine varieties.

An ingenious lad living in Yonkers has constructed a very fine pair of bellows for use in his father's library by fastening a tin funnel upon the end of a broken accordion, and painting the whole affair in red, green and yellow stripes. He calls it the "Aeolian bellows," because it emits a musical sound whenever in use.

A young woman of Yorkville has trimmed her winter theatre hat with a pompadour made of her father's worn-out brush and feathers from a cast-off duster, which she herself recurred with an old piece of slate pencil found among her brother's discarded toys. All of which things can be done where a special effort is made.

NEWTON CENTRE.

—Ivers & Pond pianos, Farley, Newton.
—Mr. E. C. Wilson is visiting relatives at Beverly Farms, Me.
—Miss Butler of Crescent avenue is visiting in Providence, R. I.
—Mr. F. H. Fitch moved into his new house on Sumner street, this week.
—Mr. Howard N. Brown of Putnam, Ct., is spending a few weeks in this place.
—Mr. George Hummel has begun the erection of a house on Florence street.
—Miss Adelaide Leconte has recently returned from some months in Europe.
—Mr. Fay and family, formerly of New York, have taken a new house on Everett street.
—Services at the Unitarian church, Sunday. Usual service at 10.30, and Sunday school at 12.
—Mr. H. E. Chamberlain and family have returned and opened their residence on Ashland Park.
—Meetings for preaching and conference will be held every evening of next week at the Baptist church.
—Somers, the tailor, 149 A Tremont street, Boston, makes a specialty of fine wooleens at moderate prices.
—Mr. H. S. Hiltz and family have moved from their home in Waban and taken a house on Moreland avenue.
—Mr. George T. Clark's barn on Jackson street, corner of Cypress, was shot into a few days ago, it is supposed by hunters.
—Mrs. Rogers and daughters, formerly of Newtonville, have taken the Wardwell estate on Chesley road, off Beacon street.
—Mr. J. J. White and family have moved from Langley road to the house of the late Dr. S. F. Smith on Centre street. Mrs. Smith will remain with them.
—Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks of Pleasant street have returned from an outing in Maine. Mr. Brooks enjoyed gunning in the woods and returned with two fine deer as a proof of his prowess as a sportsman.
—The Chestnut Hill club held open house Tuesday evening, and received the entire returns over a private wire. The handsome club house was brilliantly illuminated and filled with members and their guests.
—Charles Alvins of Watertown street, Nonantum, employed by Raphael Vacey of Boston, was thrown from a wagon on Commonwealth avenue Monday evening. His back and knee were injured and his left arm fractured.
—A children's parlor class in expression held its first meeting on Saturday afternoon, at the home of Rev. W. E. Huntington, Ph. D. The class is led by Miss Mary Lewis Spear, assisted by Miss Florence Spear, an acrobat.
—James Butler, a 14-year-old son of Mr. James Butler of Thompsonville, fell from a tree while playing in his father's orchard, Monday afternoon. His right arm was broken by the fall and he received severe bruises about the head. His condition is now reported as much improved.
—During the changes and improvements at police station 4, the police have been unable to use the cell room. All prisoners have been taken to West Newton when arrested. It is expected that the changes will soon be completed and work on this part of the building finished.
—George Smith, three years old, wandered away from his home on Marshall street, Wednesday morning, and was reported as missing to the police. Officer Taffe immediately telephoned headquarters and the station throughout the city were notified. Later the little boy was found at the home of his grandmother on California street, Nonantum.
—There are letters in the postoffice for Mr. and Mrs. George Brewer, Miss Annie Clark, Miss Maude Colpitts, Mrs. A. J. Consens, Mrs. L. D. Hayden, Albert L. Mason, Sarah McNevin, Margaret McArthur, Emma McNeil, Florence McDonald, E. L. McDonald, Alex. J. McNeil, J. W. McLellan, Pyne Conry, A. F. Pease and Lizzie Wiggin.
—Saturday evening, the last in the series of republican torchlight parades in Newton was held in this village. All the Newton companies assisted by several out of town organizations, were in line with an escort of horse guards, headed by Maj. W. E. Armstrong. The illumination along the route was quite general, and the torchlighters were loudly applauded for their fine appearance.
—The total number of votes cast in the two precincts of this village, was the largest in years. All but forty-five of the registered Ward 6 voters had cast their votes at 4 o'clock. In the morning, from 7 until 10 the polls were crowded all the time. At 8 o'clock the polls had been polled. Mr. A. L. Harwood received a fine support, not only in this section but in all parts of the city. The total number of votes cast was 694.
—Judging from the plans now in the hands of the committee, Newton centre residents will celebrate the republican victory tomorrow evening, in a manner never before equaled in this village. The parade will include every man in the village who can be induced to join, and will be headed by the torchlight machines. Several bands have been engaged to furnish music. After parading the principal streets an outdoor meeting will be held on Constitution hill, where the light of a bonfire, some well known gentlemen will address the gathering, and a spread will follow. It is hoped that all residents will join in the illumination and assist in making the affair a great success.
—A very serious accident came to Dr. J. M. W. Farnham, while returning from Newton on his bicycle, to his home in Worcester last week Tuesday. He was going up Shrewsbury hill, six miles east of Worcester, on the right side of the road, about 6 o'clock p. m., when a scorching came tearing down and around a curve on the same side and struck him in the face, breaking his jaw in two places, knocking out several teeth and cutting his tongue nearly in two. The scorching, who was less hurt, took him, insensible, to a near farm house and left him without giving his name or getting a physician. Dr. Farnham was taken to the Worcester city hospital, but did not regain consciousness till the next day. He is doing as well as could be expected, but it was a very narrow escape.
—Through the complete arrangements of the committee, composed of members of the Women's Club and the Newton Centre Improvement Society, Newton Centre residents were furnished with the latest election returns at Bray's hall, Tuesday evening. The affair was under the auspices of the above named societies, and was a decided success. An announcement had been made that the returns would be read in the lower hall, but at the appointed hour the crowd that gathered had reached such proportions that it was decided to adjourn to the large hall. This was soon filled and the assembly numbered the most prominent citizens of this place and their families. Mr. A. H. Howe began the exercises with a short introductory speech and was followed by Rev. E. M. Noyes, who also made some interesting remarks. Mr. A. L. Harwood, candidate for senator, was the next speaker, and his informal address was greeted with rounds of applause. From 8 o'clock until after midnight the returns received over a special wire were thrown upon a canvas by a powerful stereopticon. The announcement of every republican victory was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. When there were no returns to be shown the company was entertained by some fine views of different countries.

NEWTON HIGHLANDS.

—Mrs. Phipps has gone to Mt. Holyoke.
—The West End Literary Club will meet with Mrs. T. P. Ritchie.
—The C. L. S. C. will hold its next meeting with Mrs. T. P. Ritchie.
—Mrs. Allen, mother of Mrs. H. E. Holmes, is much improved in health.
—Mrs. Luitwieller and children have gone to Springfield, her former home, for a few days stay.
—The K. B. C. Whist Club met at the home of Miss Ross, Newtonville, on Monday evening.
—Somers the tailor, 149 A Tremont St., Boston, makes a specialty of fine wooleens at moderate prices.
—The Ladies Social Club gave a tea at the clubhouse, Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Minerva Stone presiding.
—Miss Mary E. Hyde has been to Manchester, N. H., to attend the meeting of the Women's Board of Missions.
—Four hundred and eighteen names were on the voting list in this precinct, and three hundred and eighty-six voted.
—U. W. Sherman has sold out his provision store to Mr. H. C. Greene of Lowell, who is now conducting the business.
—Mrs. Robertson, the mother of Mr. H. C. Robertson, died at the home of her son on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, at the age of 77 years.
—Mr. G. C. Hines, who has occupied a suit of rooms in Patterson block, has moved to his new house on Duncklee street.
—Mr. B. G. Stronach has moved from Newbury building and has taken the suite of rooms vacated by Mr. G. C. Hines in Patterson block.
—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Tuelon moved last week into Miss Susan Duncklee's house on Pierce street. Mrs. Tuelon is the daughter of Mrs. Parker Leavitt of Newton.
—Services at St. Paul's church next Sunday. Morning prayer and sermon at 10.45. Sunday school at 12.15, evening prayer and sermon at 7 p. m. The Rev. Mr. Kellner will officiate.
—The Monday Club meets with Mrs. Bosson next Monday afternoon, the subjects are as follows: Lady Jane Gray, Edward the Fifth, George Somerset and the Tower of London.
—The Rev. Dr. Wm. E. Huntington, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, of Boston University, will preach at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday a. m. and the pastor in the evening.
—Be sure and come to the Husking Bee, to be given by the Y. P. S. C. E. in the Congregational church, Wednesday evening, Nov. 11, at 7.30 o'clock. All are requested to come in country costume.
—Mrs. Wilma Eliot Moore lectured Thursday at Mrs. Cobb's on Erie avenue. These literature lectures are highly entertaining and instructive. The ladies should avail themselves of such a rare opportunity to hear so fine a speaker.
—Unitarian services will be held at Highland Club Hall, Sunday morning, at 10.45. Evening service at 7.45. Rev. C. F. Dole of Jamaica Plain will conduct the evening service, subject, "The Torch Bearers." All are cordially invited.
—A sociable was held at the Congregational chapel on Wednesday evening, which was largely attended. A bountiful supper was provided which was much enjoyed. An entertainment of a very unique character followed. The whole affair was a success.
—Ancient Order United Workmen, Oak Lodge No. 170, meetings second and fourth Wednesdays, Stevens' building. Beneficiary Order paying $2000 at death of its members. For application blanks and other literature apply to William L. Thompson, Recorder, Newton Upper Falls. 3611
—The hurdy-gurdy party of the Ladies Aid Society, last Saturday evening, was a grand success. The trimmings in Lincoln hall were the same as used for the Monday Club reception. There were about two hundred present and the proceeds amounted to about forty or fifty dollars. It was an exceedingly pretty affair. The young men wore their tennis and golf suits and the young women their dainty muslin gowns. Marie Gross and her brother furnished the music. Ice cream and cake was served during the evening. A desire was expressed to have the party repeated monthly.
—Mr. Henry Hodson, a well-known resident of this place, died of apoplexy at the residence of his wife, at 3 o'clock, yesterday afternoon. He had been in town looking after some business matters, and was in his usual health as far as was known. Mr. Hodson was 76 years old, and was a native of New England. He was a member of the Newton Highlands Lodge, No. 1, and had resided in Newton Highlands about 10 years. He was formerly in the furniture business in Boston, and afterward in the gold leaf business, but for ten years past he had been retired. His funeral will take place at the home on Lincoln corner Chester street, Sunday, at noon.
—The torchlight procession of Monday evening was the cause of much enthusiasm. A line of march from the Centre to the Highlands was by Centre street. After marching up Lincoln, Chester and Forrest streets they returned by Lake avenue to Newton Centre. The houses along the way were decorated with flags, bunting and lanterns. At a number of points the lanterns stretched across the street from house to house making a brilliant scene. One rather striking object in the parade was a wagon representing the "Black Cat." It was doubtless want to bring good luck to the election. It is quite unnecessary to say it was a McKinley parade.

Fire Department History.

At the monthly meeting of the Newton Veteran Firemen Association, held last Wednesday evening, it was unanimously voted to have published a complete history of the Newton fire department from the organization of its first company at the Lower Falls in 1813, to date, for the benefit of its treasury.
It will be a volume of some 200 pages, nicely bound in cloth and will contain many half tone process portraits of all the prominent past and present department officials, and all the present members, also of the present apparatus and stations, as well as those of the hand engine era. It will be issued by a committee consisting of Capt. John E. Egan, Boston, H. N. Hyde, Newtonville, W. E. Glover, West Newton, P. Z. Hesseon, Newton, John Hagedorn, West Newton, C. T. Bartlett, Newton Centre, and John F. Thomason, Upper Falls, and those possessing records, newspaper items, scrap books or any information or data of any sort relating to the fire department at any era of its existence are solicited to so inform any member of the committee. Record books of the old companies are especially desired. Photographs or pictures of any sort of the old hand engines, companies or station are also desired.
A cough which persists day after day, should not be neglected any longer. It means something more than a mere local irritation. The sooner it is relieved the better. Take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is prompt to act and sure to cure.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—Next Thursday evening at Freeman hall will appear the distinguished Grecian Art Tableau Company of Boston. This will be one of the finest entertainments ever given in this place. It is the first of a course of four. The others are "The Eolian Quintet Club," "Hoyt L. Conary, Impersonator," and an address on "The Home of Adam," by Rev. A. H. Nazarian, a native of Armenia, who will describe the customs, habits and persecutions of his people.
—WABAN.
—Items for this paper can be left with the station agent.
—Mr. F. W. Webster has returned from a long business trip.
—Mr. J. E. Morse returned from a week's business trip in Connecticut, Sunday.
—Mr. Ernest Perabo, the pianist, was the guest of Mr. Louis K. Harlow last Sunday.
—Mr. J. W. Henton, who recently moved from this place to Hyde Park, came here to vote Tuesday.
—Miss Cowan, who is stopping at Mrs. Phelps', has gone to New York to attend the Horse Show.
—Mr. Owen Hill, our popular hackman, is to be married to Miss Susan Monroe of West Newton, at an early date.
—The Waban school foot ball team played the Allen school eleven Wednesday afternoon and was defeated by a score of 24 to 10.
—The Woman's Club met Wednesday at Mrs. C. E. Fish's and decided to take up for the winter the study of the English Cathedral.
—Mr. Blatchford and Mrs. Scudder have closed their pretty summer home here, and removed to their winter home on Marlborough street, Boston.
—Mr. Adrian D' Epagnier, our popular milkman, reports the sale of his stock in trade, Chestnut street, next Tuesday, Nov. 10th, at 1 p. m., sharp. Sale rain or shine.
—The children's fair, which was held in the interest of the new church last Saturday, proved a great success. About one hundred and seventy-five dollars was realized.
—The citizens of Waban will be pleased to know that Mrs. A. Conant is making a success of her greenhouse and one can obtain the most beautiful carnations and violets there at a reasonable price.
—Services will be held as usual at the hall, next Sunday, by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Williams. The pastor has taken his texts from different parts of the new church, and next Sunday his text will be the "doors."
—List of letters remaining in the post office: Annie Williams, Beacon street, Nellie O'Brien, care Wm. O'Brien, P. O. Cutler, Mrs. John M. Moore, C. E. Palmer, Marie Steele, I. W. Ireland and Mary Coffin.
—The Benevolent Society will give a "Pie Party" with other entertainments at Mrs. B. S. Cloutman's, Friday evening, Nov. 20th, for the benefit of the new church. Admission 10 cents with a pie. A large attendance is hoped for.
—The musicale, next Friday evening at Mrs. B. S. Cloutman's, for the benefit of the church, will undoubtedly be a success. The patronesses are Mrs. Wm. Saville, Mrs. Wm. H. Gould, Mrs. B. S. Cloutman and Mrs. Louis K. Harlow.
—Election is over and as Waban went, so went the country. As it was made a precedent this year the voters had the privilege of voting in their own town, and out of a possible 43, 38 were cast as follows: McKinley 60, Bryan 10, Palmer 10, and 3 being thrown out. Waban did well.
—Waban responded nobly to the patriotic call, "Flag Day," and besides many flags being thrown to the breeze, many bon fires were held in the evening. The one held by Mr. McNeil at 10.30 p. m. on Moffat hill was magnificent, and over fifty tar barrels were used for the purpose. It was witnessed by a large gathering of people.

NEWTON CLUB.

CALENDAR.

Saturday, Nov. 7—Gentlemen's Night. Address by Pres. S. L. Powers on ex-Gov. Wm. E. Russell.
Tuesday, Nov. 10—Ladies Matinee.
Saturday, Nov. 14—Gentlemen's Whist Night.
The annual team handicap bowling tournament of the club commences Monday night, Nov. 9. Ten teams are entered for the contest.
The Newton Club extended its hospitality to the women of club members' families Wednesday evening. An informal "ladies' night" took the place of the usual fortnightly whist, and the entire clubhouse was thrown open to the guests. An orchestra in the assembly hall played for those who cared for dancing, while the bowling alleys, the card rooms and the billiard hall furnished entertainment for a still larger number. The entertainment was entirely informal, and was enjoyed by nearly 300 members and guests.
It was "gentlemen's night" at the Newton club house Saturday night, and whist was the feature of enjoyment. About 15 tables were used, and the prizes, which were announced at 10.30 p. m., were as follows: First, J. A. and C. A. Potter; second, D. T. Kidder Jr. and D. B. Harding; third, P. S. Howe and E. F. Woods; fourth, F. Shattuck and W. F. Chapman. The fall season of the club opened very auspiciously.

REAL ESTATE.

Among the October real estate sales in Newton are the transfer of 570,000 feet of land in Waban from the Cape Ann Savings Bank, to Joel Porter, and the sale of the Joshua Bartlett estate, Langley road, Newton Centre, to a syndicate.

CURIOUS ABOUT THE BABY.

It Was a Nice Child, but Mysterious Until the Old Lady Explained.

She was one of the curious women who are always to be found everywhere, and when the young couple, accompanied by the baby and the old lady, entered the car she turned her attention to them at once. Presently the baby began to cry, and she saw her opportunity. She waited, however, until the poor young woman had tried vainly to quiet the baby, and then, when she yielded the battle and delivered it over to the older lady, the curious woman opened fire.

She began the campaign by offering the child a flower, and when the young woman, thankful of the cessation of the cries which had attracted the attention of all the passengers, thanked her gratefully, she commenced to ask questions at once: "How old is your baby?" she asked first, and the young woman blushed and looked desperately at her companions. "I don't know," she answered at last. "Do you, Edward?"

"No," was the brief response of the man as he glanced at the curious woman man fashion. "I don't."

The young woman looked as if she considered the matter settled and sighed comfortably as she leaned back and began playing with the baby, but the inquirer was not yet satisfied, and she returned to the charge.

"Has your baby any teeth?" she asked, smiling cordially, and again the young woman blushed.

"I—really don't know," was the answer again, and the young man rose hastily and went out upon the platform.

"You don't know, either of you?" ejaculated the curious woman in astonishment. "How funny!"

But no explanation was offered her, and she tried another tack. "Is this your first baby?" she said, with an insinuating smile, "or how many little babies are there at your house?"

"Fifty," answered the old lady shortly, seeing that the younger one was helpless with embarrassment, and the curious woman fell back in her seat in astonishment.

"Why," she gasped, looking the incredulity she felt, "how can that be possible?"

"I'm the matron of an orphan asylum," explained the old lady icily, "and these kind young people are helping me to take this baby to the lady who has adopted it."—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

COMMON COUNCIL CONSIDER THE APPROPRIATION BUDGET—LIVELY DISCUSSIONS FOLLOWED BY MATERIAL CHANGES.

The common council continued in session until well into the small hours Tuesday morning before the annual appropriation budget was finally disposed of.

President Wing called the meeting to order at 7.45, and 13 members were present. A number of papers were received from the upper board and were disposed of in concurrence. A petition of Reuben Fornal and others asking for a police signal box on California street, was presented by Councilman Stearns and referred to the police committee. Residents on Parker street were referred to the highway committee on petition for a plank sidewalk on that street.

Councilman Everett for the finance committee presented the annual budget and the council went into committee of the whole with Councilman Sprague in the chair. The committee recommended an appropriation of $994,551 against $934,600 last year, and against recommendations of $996,557 by the several committees.

The assessors department first came up for discussion, and before the council finished with the appropriation it had laid the way for some radical changes in the department.

The appropriation increasing the salaries of the principal assessors from $900 to $1000 a year first came under fire. Councilman Bailey stated that the assessors' work was constantly increasing. Other cities were paying larger salaries and he thought $1000 only a fair compensation.

Councilman Cranitch opposed the increase. He could not see the consistency of the assessors in asking for an increase in their own salaries while opposing improvements on the ground of economy. They should, he said, begin to practice economy at home.

Councilman Bailey said economy was being practiced in the assessors' department. The item was allowed to stand.

Councilman Bailey said that it had been considered advisable to reduce the salaries of assistant assessors from $5 to $4 per day. In no other city in the Commonwealth did the salary of an assistant assessor rise to $5. Four dollars was nearer the average.

Councilman Cranitch questioned the consistency of this decrease. The recommendation of the finance committee, in regard to salaries of assistant assessors, was allowed to stand.

The next item considered was that appropriating $1,000 for the board of assessors under the provision that the clerk be not a member of the board of assessors. This is a direct blow at Mr. Miner, chief assessor, and clerk of the board.

Councilman Bailey stated that this was an office which had been criticised. The work could be done as well by the head clerk in the office, who was thoroughly familiar with the work of the office.

Councilman Wing thought it would be a serious matter to throw so valuable a man as Mr. Miner out of a position. The question was, he said, if they could afford to lose his experience. It was like attacking the sinews of war.

The system of doing business in city offices was out of date and cumbersome, and it was time they were changed. The item was recommended by the committee and was allowed to stand.

The appropriation for the board of health was next taken up. Agent Brimblecom stated that it was impossible in account of the expiration of contracts to give an exact estimate of the cost. The council decided to be on the safe side and increased the appropriation from $10,700 to last year's figures, $16,000. The question of the city engineer was after some discussion, raised to $5,500 with the understanding that the increase should be only temporary.

The highway appropriation was the next item which caused discussion. Councilman Cranitch criticised the superintendent of streets at some length, but finally withdrew his objections and the appropriation was allowed to stand.

The relations of the city to the Newton Hospital occupied the attention of the board for some time after lunch.

The item of the city almoner's salary was considered. Mr. Whitney, who holds that office, was present and in answer to the questions asked, stated that the amount asked was not an increase. It was simply placing the salary of $1,200 as city almoner and $300 as clerk of the overseers of the poor in one sum.

The hospital appropriation was considered, but after considerable discussion was allowed to stand.

The appropriation for clerical assistance in the city treasurer's office caused a decided breeze. Councilman Everett stated that the recommendation of $1,200 was a mistake, and should have been $1,320. It had been stated, he said, that Mr. Byers, to whom part of the salary was paid, was not accurate in his accounts, but it had been found that he had many other good qualities.

Councilman Roberts stated that Mr. Byers was called upon to disburse $325,000 each year, and was called upon to give bonds for $200,000. He was a very honest and capable man and was worth at least $1200 a year.

Councilman Ober suggested that it was easy to do the work which he had several times been very politely insulted by the account of his action in the Byers' matter. He should vote against any increase to the gentleman's pay. He had the highest respect for Mr. Byers personally, but could not conscientiously vote to increase his salary.

Treasurer Ranlett, he said, had been called before the finance committee, and asked if Mr. Byers' work was satisfactory. He hesitated, and finally said no. He made many errors. He had occasion frequently to criticize Mr. Byers for unpardonable errors. He could hire better men for $1000.

Mr. Ranlett was pressed hard for answers and was very unwilling to speak against Mr. Byers.

Continuing, President Wing said that when a man made such errors that some one else had always to go over his work the city could not afford to raise his pay.

Mr. Ranlett wanted to give Mr. Byers $200 from his own salary. When young men were taken into the treasurer's office too great care could not be taken in their selection, for they might be future city treasurers. If Mr. Byers showed himself more capable in the future his salary could then be raised.

Councilman Roberts suggested that if Mr. Byers was not competent he should not be in the office.

President Wing said he was strictly honest but his figures were accurate. Treasurer Ranlett was very sorry he had to make the statements he did. If he had not, however, he would have been false to his trust.

Councilman Cranitch considered it remarkably inconsistent for the treasurer to advocate keeping such a man in the office. Councilman Ober corroborated the statements of President Wing. On a tie vote

Chairman Sprague cast his vote in favor of the increase in salary.

On motion of Councilman Davis the appropriation for printing was reduced from $400 to $300.

The appropriation bill was finally passed carrying a total of $994,551.02. The only changes made by the council were in the appropriation for printing, overhauling of the pool board of health and office expenses of the board of health.

The printing appropriation was reduced from $400 to $300. Other principal items in the appropriation from the one First department, $46,855; assessors' department, $9900; board of health, $16,500; city engineer's department, $11,330; highway department, $107,500; interest on city loans (permanent), $25,594; interest on city loans (temporary), $10,000; interest on water bonds, $92,700; interest on sewer bonds, $42,000; interest on Washington street loan, $22,400; interest on boulevard loan, $2,800; overseers of the poor, $28,350; police department, $81,045; schools, $26,603; sinking fund account, $130,000; street light department, $50,400; watering streets, $28,000.

At 2 o'clock the council adjourned.

Six weeks ago I suffered with a very severe cold; was almost unable to speak. My friends all advised me to consult a physician. Noticing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised in the St. Paul Volks Zeitung I procured a bottle, and after taking it a short while was entirely well. I now most heartily recommend this remedy to anyone suffering with a cold. Wm. Keith, 678 Selby Ave., St. Paul, Minn.

High School Notes.

Newton High played the third game in the junior interscholastic league, Friday afternoon, at Newton Centre. The game was hotly contested at times, Chelsea putting up a very different game from the one they played with Somerville two weeks ago. Chelsea beat Newton last year 16 to 0, so they expected a "walk-over," but the Newton boys have not got over their defeat at the hands of the Bedford High, and showed that they had been practicing. Newton scored a touchdown in each half. In the first half Chelsea had the kick-off and only sent the ball fifteen yards. Hackett caught the ball and advanced into the visitors' territory. By steady rushes through the center Newton made gain after gain until Ralph Chase made a pretty run of forty yards around the end, but Chelsea kicked off again, but Newton was downed before they could make any gain. The Newton boys then began to play in earnest and advanced the ball to Chelsea's twenty yard line; the opponent, however, kicked off again, but Newton scored a touchdown. Chelsea started the ball from the twenty-five yard line and when time was called they were at the five yard line. In the second half Chelsea worked the ball into Newton's territory after the kick-off and made steady gains until Newton held on four downs. Newton then pushed to the 55 yard line and Chase made another long run for the second touchdown. Burdon kicked the goal. The best individual work was done for Newton by Johnson and Andrews at ends, Morse and Kimball at tackles, and though they are both freshmen, they put up a good game. Hatch at center held his man with ease. Chase and Burdon both made many star plays. McClintock, played well. Score 10-0. The summary:

A large crowd came out to see the graduates play the school eleven, but were much disappointed when so few appeared. However, the old men gave the boys some pointers in interference and blocking the line. After they had practiced about three quarters of an hour two scrub eleven laid up against each other. These two teams played for fifteen minutes. The boys played loosely and the scrub team put up as good a game as the practiced men. The Newton men are just getting down to business and it is hoped they will make as good a showing as they did against Somerville last year. If all the men turn out and play as well as they can they will have a good show against their old opponents. Let all the men turn out and cheer the team as this is their last chance.

The home team played the Waban Academy Wednesday afternoon at Newton Centre.

The freshman team played the Newtonville team at Newton Centre, Monday afternoon. The Newtonville boys came prepared for a "walk-over," but only won by a score of 8 to 4.

A chorus from the Newton High school sang at the Eliot Memorial in the drill hall, Wednesday afternoon.

Kate Azubah Glynn.

The following clipping from the "Northwestern," Oshkosh, Wis., will be read with interest by the many friends of Miss Kate Azubah Glynn, formerly a resident of Auburndale. Miss Glynn was a most popular and much beloved teacher in the Williams school, and a charming and accomplished young lady beside.

She resigned her position about three years ago in response to an urgent call from her native town of Oshkosh, and was greatly lamented by her pupils here.

Her new novel, entitled "The Girl from Oshkosh," is a bright little book, neatly printed and bound in blue and silver. Some of the illustrations are from photographs of her favorite pupils in the Williams school. The book is for sale at John F. Payne's drug store, Newtonville.

Cards announcing her wedding have been received by friends in Auburndale and Newtonville.

(From the Oshkosh Northwestern.)

"A very pretty little romance came to a successful termination in Milwaukee this week. Miss Kate Glynn, formerly a teacher in the Oshkosh schools, but recently of the Milwaukee schools, was the heroine. Three years ago she met Mr. John B. Lane of Redlands, California, and the two were mutually attracted toward each other. Mr. Lane went to Europe and the two corresponded, but the course of true love never did run smoothly, and their relations were broken off. Mr. Lane visited Milwaukee about ten days ago, met Miss Glynn and the engagement was renewed, with the understanding that the wedding was to take place at once. Miss Glynn had commenced teaching, but she promptly resigned her position, and the wedding took place on Tuesday. Mr. Lane was anxious to return to his home to vote for McKinley, and the bride party joyfully assented. Miss Glynn is a brilliant and charming young lady, who spent most of her life in Oshkosh, where she has many friends. Simultaneously with the announcement of her wedding came the statement that she was the author of 'The Girl from Oshkosh,' the new novel whose authorship was until then a mystery. It is written in a sprightly vein and will have many admirers."

Continuing, President Wing said that when a man made such errors that some one else had always to go over his work the city could not afford to raise his pay.

Mr. Ranlett wanted to give Mr. Byers $200 from his own salary. When young men were taken into the treasurer's office too great care could not be taken in their selection, for they might be future city treasurers. If Mr. Byers showed himself more capable in the future his salary could then be raised.

Councilman Roberts suggested that if Mr. Byers was not competent he should not be in the office.

President Wing said he was strictly honest but his figures were accurate. Treasurer Ranlett was very sorry he had to make the statements he did. If he had not, however, he would have been false to his trust.

Councilman Cranitch considered it remarkably inconsistent for the treasurer to advocate keeping such a man in the office. Councilman Ober corroborated the statements of President Wing. On a tie vote

ELLIOT'S MEMORY.

THE ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION BY THE CITY—AT THE HIGH SCHOOL AND AT ELIOT CHURCH.

The civil celebration of the 250th anniversary of Eliot's first preaching to the Indians was observed on Wednesday by exercises at the High school drill hall, and also at Eliot church. At the drill hall in the afternoon, there was a large audience present, including about 1500 of the school children of the city. Mayor Cobb and a committee of the city council had charge of the exercises.

A distinguished guest was the venerable Dr. Elsworth Eliot of New York, a lineal descendant of the Apostle, who thanked the authorities, during the exercises, for the honors paid to his ancestor's memory.

Two chairs that formerly stood in the Apostle's study were on the platform, one the property of the First church of Roxbury, and the other belonging to Mayor Cobb.

A chorus of 120 school children, led by Mr. Warrant, furnished vocal music for the exercises.

Mayor Cobb opened the exercises with a brief address, upon the lesson taught by the life of Eliot.

Rev. Dr. Shinn offered prayer, after which Rev. William H. Davis, pastor of the Eliot church, spoke upon "Eliot and the Indian Problem." In the course of his remarks he said:

"Like the Apostle Paul, Eliot was a great missionary pioneer. We are apt in our judgment of the Puritans to have a bigoted character in mind. Yet in John Eliot we have the incarnation of the Puritan spirit in a man who loved children. He was a man who believed in the public schools, who was one of the founders of Harvard college, and the founder of the Roxbury Latin school.

"He stands before us as a winsome character. He saw of the Indian what we are just beginning to see. He understood the Indian question as we are only beginning to understand it.

"It is the inspiring power of such a character that makes it valuable far more than what it accomplishes. Long may the spirit of this man live in the schools and churches of our city."

Hon. John T. Prince said in part: "Our first feeling as we look at the work accomplished in 44 years of Eliot's ministry is one of wonder and admiration. About 400 Indians were raised through his efforts to self support on the basis of his community at Natick. One of the most stupendous works ever executed by man was the translation of the Indian Bible. The Bible was translated into a language which had never been written, and which had no words to convey spiritual or moral sentiments. Eliot did not make his own. He learned the language by aiding an inferior race to conquer itself. His characteristics are human sympathy and generosity."

At the close of Mr. Prince's remarks, Mayor Cobb presented the prizes for essays written by Newton pupils in competition for the John Eliot prizes. For younger pupils the prizes, gold coin, were awarded to Alice Frost and Louise M. DeForest. For older ones the prizes were awarded to Charlotte B. DeForest and Ernest R. Lowe.

Rev. B. F. McDaniel delivered the last address of the subject "John Eliot and the Indians." He called attention to the fact that Eliot had laid down the lines on which all later efforts in behalf of the Indians have been based, and that the singing of "America" and the Doxology.

THE EVENING SERVICES.

were of a more elaborate character, and were held in Eliot church. The stormy night interfered somewhat with the attendance, but prominent citizens were present from all parts of the city, and seats were reserved for the city council, the other city officials, who attended in a body, the ex-Mayors of the city, the city clergy, and other citizens who have held office in the state. The Eliot church furnished the service, and the platform was filled with chrysanthemums and potted plants.

Mayor Cobb opened the exercises with the following introductory remarks: "Friends and fellow-citizens—The city of Newton has invited you to assemble here this evening in loving remembrance of the life and labors of our patron saint, the apostle John Eliot.

"When the founders of our municipality were called upon to choose an emblem for our city seal there was one scene in our earliest history which at once suggested itself as pre-eminently appropriate. "The scene was the old forest, and under the wide spreading branches of a grand old oak on the eastern slope of the hill, Nonantum, stood a white man in clerical dress, facing a group of Indians, and with the Master, and crowding about him a band of dusky Indians listening intently while he strove to impart to them the words of eternal truth—and that is the picture which adorns every official document of the city of Newton, embalming for all generations the sweet memories of a noble character.

"Thus did he proclaim the universal brotherhood of mankind. His Gabriel Dietrich, a Jesuit priest and missionary to the northwest Indians, came on a pilgrimage to New England, and was welcomed by Eliot to his heart and home, and was urged to spend the winter with him. He learned the secrets and learn in this conference of these devoted servants of God, widely separated by creed and method, but united in faithful endeavor for the uplifting of the Indians, a grand lesson in religious toleration, and further may this self-sacrificing life remind us of our individual responsibility as integral parts of the body politic.

In conclusion he introduced the orator of the evening, Hon. William Everett, who spoke on the "Life and Work of John Eliot," in part as follows: "The anniversary, which we are called together to commemorate tonight is essentially different in character from the various anniversaries which have been held around us.

"250 years old and commemorates its first settlement, there is a good deal of sameness about the affair. It is simply the story that the town became crowded and the swarm settled in a new place."

"Our 250th anniversary tonight is of an event entirely unique. In this place, Oct. 28, 250 years ago, John Eliot first felt the call to his Indian mission. He was called to work absolutely without precedent in New England. In it he could hardly expect much emolument and very little of what the world calls glory, but it placed upon his shoulders a crown of priceless value.

"You know the story of his work better than I can tell it to you. Out of the quiet pastoral life at Roxbury sprang this grand mission.

"I regard Eliot as one of the most striking instances of the noblest type of the race. He was one of the few men who live in one age, and are yet in advance of it. He was a man of his age. He took the profession then considered the most honorable, and performed his part with the purest sanctity and wisest charity. Yet he was not so entirely of the spirit of the age that he would not have been considered in any age a type of a liberal man.

"Had he never preached to the Indians he would have been honored by his contemporaries. Eliot was one of those amazing men, having paid in full their debt to their own age, enter into work of which their age has no conception.

"He minded no obstacle. What heart conceived, mind planned and hand executed. His work stands to this day as an example to those who would take up the same work.

"We may apply to John Eliot the term which is applied to his master, 'He emptied himself.' All that he could acquire and all that he could find out he gave out to his forest friends.

"Eliot himself did all he could to promote education among the Indians. His only object was to give to them the share of happiness he enjoyed, and the share he looked forward to. Over 200 years have passed. Have any of our master builders in Indian education been able to build on other lines than those he laid down? The work he did ought to have shamed his contemporaries. Had they given one hundredth as much attention to the Indians' salvation as to the question of whether the Indians were members of the lost tribes of Israel his measure of success would have been different."

It was an eloquent address, as Prof. Everett is one of the most finished orators of the country, and enlivened by many happy references to the life of the day, as well as to the taking up of Eliot's work of educating the Indians at this day, he said, the school at Carlisle, one of the very few schools which has had the honor of having been defeated by Harvard at football.

Mr. William C. Bates, in behalf of the Eliot Memorial Association, presented to Mayor Cobb the deeds of the Eliot terrace and of a memorial fund for the purchase of the terrace for the purchase of prizes to be given to the Newton school children writing the best essays on early New England history, the prizes to be known by the name of the Eliot Memorial Association.

Mr. Bates said, "We must believe that the form of memorial the committee of the association was not unimpaired that a granite or marble shaft is to many the appropriate form of memorial sculpture, but these have so long been used as an expression of mortuary grief that another form was adopted, the terrace, which should be substantial, harmonious and give to the city a permanent landmark. "That location of the Eliot terrace is all that can be desired; the inscriptions on the tablet is historically correct; in the vicinity was Waban's wigwam."

"The trustees of the Eliot Memorial Association deem this anniversary the fitting time to convey to the city of Newton the plot of land and memorial terrace for perpetual ownership and care; they do this in the belief that future generations will value this spot with increasing landmarks connected with the beginnings of New England."

"The memorial fund of $300 now created provides by the deed of trust for the management of the study of American history by the offer of an annual prize for essays upon such subjects as may be announced by the trustees of the association. The annual study of some particular period or subject of early American history and the subsequent friendly competition for the Eliot prize for the Eliot essay by pupils of Newton schools forever will greaten Eliot memorial more lasting and beneficent than any ordinary structure, which the art of man can build."

Mr. Mayor, in behalf of the trustees of the Eliot Memorial Association, I have the pleasure to present to you as the official representative of the city the Eliot terrace and the Eliot memorial fund.

By the pastor emeritus of the First church, Rev. D. L. Furber.

Catarrh Means Danger.

Because if unchecked it may lead directly to consumption. Catarrh is caused by impure blood. This fact is fully established. Therefore, it is useless to try to cure catarrh by outward applications or inhalants. The true way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, cures catarrh by its power to drive out all impurities from the blood. Thousands of people testify to this. It has been proved and permanently cured of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Newton Congregational Club.

The Tenth Anniversary of the Newton Congregational Club will be observed at the next regular meeting, which will be held in the parlors and chapel of the Second Congregational Church, West Newton, on Monday evening, Nov. 16. The doors will be open at six o'clock; supper will be served at six o'clock. Addresses will be given by Hon. James F. C. Hyde, representing the Founders of the Club; Hon. Henry C. Cobb, representing the City of Newton; Mr. George M. Fiske, representing the ex-presidents of the Club; Rev. Henry J. Patrick, D. D., representing the Newton pastors of 1886; Rev. Edward M. Noyes, representing the Newton pastors of 1896; Rev. Howard A. Bridgman, representing the Religious Press; Hon. Arthur H. Wheelman, representing the Boston Congregational Club.

Mr. Hyde may be expected from the choir of the First church, Newton Centre. It is hoped that for this special occasion members will come prepared to remain until a later hour than usual, in case the exercises should be extended beyond the usual time for adjournment.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The Common Council wrestled with the appropriation bill until 2 o'clock, Tuesday morning, but did not succeed in cutting down the total, $994,501, by more than a few hundred. It is an increase of about $60,000 over the present year, and it need hardly be said that in the present condition of the city's finances, and the high tax rate, such an increase is entirely out of the question.

It is hoped that the board of aldermen, when they take up the matter, will take more radical action, and consider more seriously the condition of the city.

The increases should be carefully looked after and see if they are an absolute necessity. They include a number of cases of increase of salary of city officials, which seem hardly wise to make just at this time. The interest account, of which so much has been said, has only increased about $30,000, while miscellaneous expenses have jumped up $4,000. The Newton Centre Reading room appropriation is doubled, although Newton Centre men were very zealous for economy when the seizing of the bank grounds was talked of.

The poor department expenses have jumped up $16,000, which certainly would not seem to be needed, now that McKinley is elected.

The police department is increased about $7,000, providing for seven additional patrolmen, and supplies, incidentals and horses; and city hall expenses is increased $2,000 for additions to salaries.

The school appropriation we always expect to be increased, but this year it goes up $10,000, the item for fuel being made a separate item of $8,500, instead of being included in the general appropriation as formerly. Incidentals go up $1,500 also, though the general appropriation is some $600 less than last year.

The street light department is increased from $12,500 to $20,400; and watering streets is increased from $15,000 to $20,000.

Of course it is not pleasant to go over each item, and cut off a few hundred here and a few hundred there, but it would mean a good deal on the total, and except the interest account and possibly the police and street light department increases, the other calls for increase in appropriations it would seem possible to avoid. We do not want to make Newton such an expensive place, that no one can afford to live here after we get it fixed up.

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES.

The result of the Republican caucuses proves that there will be no contest in the Republican convention over a candidate for Mayor, as Mayor Cobb is credited with having every delegate. He was the Republican candidate last year, and that party could hardly afford to violate the usual rule of giving the Mayor a second term, which has been followed since the founding of the city. In such a year as the present, a Mayor could not well have avoided making enemies, so many difficult questions came up for decision, and Mayor Cobb was also handicapped by his lack of knowledge of city affairs. It is almost an essential, that a Mayor should have had a previous training in the city council, where he can gain familiarity with city affairs.

The result of the caucuses show, however, that a good deal of missionary work has been done, especially on the south side of the city, and the result is a great victory for the Mayor and his friends. The expenses of the year, outside of the regular appropriations, have been so great, and the consequent increase in the tax rate was so unpopular, that at one time it looked as though there would be a vigorous fight, but nothing of this appeared in the caucuses, and evidently people have come to the belief that the closest economy will be practiced another year.

The contests for aldermen were settled in the caucuses, and probably the convention will follow the wishes of the wards in every instance. The respective wards have endorsed Alderman Downs in Ward One; Councilman Roberts in Ward Two; Alderman Allen in Ward Three; Mr. W. M. Knowlton in Ward Four; Alderman White in Ward Five; Councilman Bailey in Ward Six; and Councilman Hobart in Ward Seven; three reelections, three promotions from the common council and only one new man.

For the common council there is an unusual and hardly a wise proportion of new names presented. Wards One, Two, Four, Five, Six and Seven have each nominated two new candidates, and Ward Three one new man, leaving Councilman Davis of West Newton the only hold-over, though Mr. Childs has served before, but not this year. Such a radical change in the board is unwise, but as the experienced men in the aldermen are in such a large majority, the radical change is not as bad as it might be.

The monthly statement of the board of health gives 31 deaths for October, 9 of which were of infants under one year, making a rate of 13.48 per thousand, which is less than that of any month of the year so far. There have been a number of cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid fever, but measles have disappeared. 21 cases of diphtheria were reported, 9 in Ward One, 7 in Ward Two, 1 in Ward Four, and 4 in Ward Five, and five were on hand Nov. 1. There were 9 cases of scarlet fever reported, confined to Wards One, Two, Three and Five, and the same number were on hand Nov. 1. Eight cases of typhoid fever were reported, and 13 still remain, an increase of 3 from Oct. 1st. Five of these are in Ward One, 2 each in Wards Four, Six and Seven, and one each in Wards Two and Five. The cases of typhoid are mostly among people who were away from the summer, in some places where the sanitary conditions were not good.

The Citizens' caucuses seem to have been only an echo of the Republican, and evidently very little interest is taken in city politics this year, and the vote will be a very light one. The heated national campaign is partly responsible, of course, as it has given the people all the politics they can stand for this year. Another reason is the movement to abolish all contests in city elections, begun a year or two ago, which may be all right in theory, but practice has everywhere demonstrated that two nearly evenly balanced political parties are an essential to good government, whether in a city or in a nation.

The Common Council did a very foolish thing in providing that the clerk of the board of assessors shall not be an assessor. This would at once deprive the board of the services of Mr. Miner, one of the most valuable officials of the city, who, by his knowledge of Newton, has saved the city over $40,000 in the last ten years, by his services at the state house, to say nothing of other things. He has earned his salary several times over, and the board of aldermen ought to see that such a mistake should be corrected.

The address given by President Samuel L. Powers of the Newton Club, at the clubhouse, last Saturday evening, was one of the most eloquent tributes that have been paid to the late William E. Russell. There has been such a general desire, among those who could not hear it, to have the address printed, that we give it in full on another page. A partial report appeared in one of the Boston papers. The GRAPHIC only has the verbatim report.

The Charter Revision committee have had a draft of their new charter printed and submitted it to the city council at an informal meeting last evening, to explain the reasons for their changes. The meeting was not a public one.

Newton Hospital.

On Hospital Sunday, which occurs on the 22nd inst., the usual collection will be taken in all the churches of Newton.

The following statement of the work of the Hospital for the past ten years shows that it grows larger each year. With this increase of work and of financial outlay, the Hospital Sunday collection also should grow steadily, as indeed it has done up to this time.

(Twenty-eight more than last year.)

It will be seen from this statement that the expense of carrying on the Hospital, with the larger number of patients treated, has shown in 1896 an increase over the sum expended in 1895 of $8,194.21. At least a corresponding increase in the sum contributed by the churches should be made this year, in order that the Hospital may continue to carry on its work in the most efficient manner.

We confidently trust that on Hospital Sunday the citizens of Newton will respond to this call with their usual generous contributions.

—A concert under the auspices of Mrs. Mary Beebe Cutler will be given at the Newton Club house, Nov. 25th. See adv. on 1st page.

—The ladies of Newtonville can have an accomplished seamstress by the day by addressing Miss E. R. Woodbridge, Box 232, Newtonville.

—The road bed on Walnut street has been much improved this week, and it is hoped that a number of other streets will be likewise treated.

—A dance of sound-money warriors is announced by Norumbega tribe 71, I. O. R. M. The date is Wednesday evening next in Dennison hall.

—A sociable was held in the parlors of the Central Congregational church, Wednesday evening. A bountiful supper was provided followed by a pleasing entertainment.

—Miss E. Addie Brooks has resigned her position at J. L. Fairbanks & Co., and accepted one with the M. R. Warren Co., the well known law and commercial stationers of Boston.

—Mrs. W. L. Challenor will speak before the Woman's Guild, next Tuesday afternoon, on "Artists Rambles in Quaint Nantucket," illustrating by large water color sketches by Mr. Challenor.

—Mr. G. H. Loomis, the well known real estate man, is also a veteran in photography, and through the courtesy of Mr. Partridge, has the honor of the first sitting under the new sky light.

—E. H. Johnson of Abundale, with a business location in the Chamber of Commerce building, Boston, has leased through Mr. G. H. Loomis' agency, the Chas. Curtis house on Walnut street.

—The regular meeting of Dalhousie lodge was held Wednesday evening. The Master Mason's degree was worked on five candidates. The business meeting was followed by a banquet and social hour.

—Mrs. George S. Shapley will have charge of a table at the Noah's Ark (fair) in Mechanics' building, Nov. 15, to 21, inclusive. The Newton Federation of Clubs and other Newton organizations will have tables.

—Will the ladies of Newtonville who promised articles for the Charity Fair, send them in before Saturday noon, Nov. 14, to Mrs. Wm. F. Kimball, Harvard street, or Mrs. Charles S. Keene, Walnut street.

—Mrs. M. A. Murphy was surprised last Friday evening by about forty of her friends, at her home on Otis street, who presented her with a marble clock and ornaments. A collation was followed by dancing.

—The marriage of Miss Doretta M. Cunningham, formerly of this place, and Mr. Edson L. Bracken took place at Denver, Colo., on Wednesday, Nov. 4. They are "at home" after Nov. 25, at 92 Cedar street, Denver, Colo.

—The Republican nominations for the common council in this ward are just now being digested. There is a real Holland flavor in local politics this year. Interest is principally concentrated here in the school board fight.

—There is to be a song recital at the Central Congregational church, Tuesday evening, Nov. 19, given by Miss Josephine Martin, contralto of the church choir. Miss Martin will be assisted by Miss Flora Goldsmith, violinist, and Mr. Arthur Shepherd, pianist, both of Boston.

—The Partridge studio opposite the Newtonville depot, had a grand opening last Saturday, and several hundred ladies and gentlemen enjoyed the pleasure of seeing a finely constructed building for photographic purposes, and also a choice specimen collection of the Partridge studio. The enterprise is a credit to Mr. Partridge, the proprietor, who has several other well equipped studios in other localities, but also a special attraction for Newtonville. Mr. Partridge having desired success will win it.

—Saturday evening's torchlight parade did not meet the expectations of a great many and proved somewhat of a disappointment. Not quarter the number expected turned out and those in line did not compare with the parade four weeks ago. The handsome tally-ho from the Nonantum club made a fine appearance and seemed a little out of place. The decorations along the route were quite general and some very elaborate. A huge bonfire at the corner of Crafts and Judkins street and others on the south side added to the brilliant illumination.

—The re-opening exercises of the Methodist Episcopal church will be continued on Sunday, Nov. 15th. A large number, who were prevented from attending the exercises last Sunday by the inclement weather will be glad to embrace this opportunity. In the morning at 10.45, the sermon will be preached by Rev. John W. Hamilton, D. D., Dr. Hamilton, who is a brother of the pastor, is widely known as the head of the educational work of the Methodist Episcopal church in the South. He comes from Cincinnati, Ohio, expressly to be present at this service. In the evening at 7.30, the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamilton, will deliver the first of his series of Sunday evening addresses called "The Wayside Cross or Gospel Suggestions from a Journey in Canada." The first topic, Sunday evening, will be, "The Gray Nuns and Old Shriners of Montreal." There will be special music all day. All seats free. All are invited.

—The services attending the rededication of the remodeled Methodist Episcopal church Sunday were very largely attended. The morning service was in charge of Rev. Dr. George F. Eaton, presiding elder of the Boston north district, who formally rededicated the church. The sermon was preached by Bishop Wilbur F. Mallahan. In the afternoon the Rev. Dr. Shepherd, who was presented to the church by the Y. P. S. C.

E. was unveiled. The presentation speech was made by Miss Fannie Stowell in behalf of the society. The window, which is in the west front, is one of the handsomest in the church, and the scheme of color is particularly effective. It is inscribed "A gift from our young people." In the evening the services were concluded with a sermon by Rev. Dr. Edward W. Taylor of Boston, for two years president of the Epworth league of New England. The church has been recently enlarged and remodeled. The entire interior arrangement has been altered and improved, and the steeple has been rebuilt. Ten handsome stained glass windows have been placed in the chancel.

Mr. Marsh gave an entertaining talk and considerable interest is shown in the work for the coming winter. Several eloquent speakers have promised to deliver addresses during the winter.

—The new Putnam street bridge was opened to travel Wednesday morning. The tracks of the Boston & Albany were raised at this point to the level of the bridge, making a temporary grade crossing connecting Washington and Margin streets. Highland street has been closed at the crossing, and will not be reopened until the work of separating grades is completed.

—Work on the construction of the Cheesecake boulevard extension was considerably delayed this week by the caving in of several covering stones that had been placed over the brook on Cherry street at the police headquarters. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning the big stones gave way under the weight of earth upon them and fell into the brook. Laborers are now at work repairing the damage.

—A children's sociable was greatly enjoyed in the Unitarian church parlors Monday evening. A pleasing musical program was presented and among the little folks who participated were the Misses Elsie Kimberly, Cherry Bullard, Ethel Elsie Kimberly, Ernest Sheldon, and others. An hour's dancing was enjoyed by the small people before dispersing to their various homes.

—The holiday season will soon be here and no doubt you will want some photographs to send with other remembrances to your friends. Mr. Webster, the Waltham photographer, endeavors to have his work meet the approval of people of refined tastes, and is a growing patronage is being secured by his success in doing so. He is especially successful with children. His studio is on the line of the Newton & Waltham electric road so is easy of access. Appointments can be made by telephone.

—Dr. Fred E. Crockett died suddenly at his residence on Washington street, Saturday morning, about 2 o'clock. He was called out Friday night to attend a patient in Abundale, and at the patient's house, about 11 o'clock, was stricken with apoplexy. He was removed to his home, where he died soon afterward. Dr. Crockett was born in Maine, and was about 52 years of age; was graduated from the Philadelphia school of medicine and surgery in 1867; began the practice of his profession in Norway, Maine, where he remained till 1874; moved to Newton and settled in this place where he was one of the leading homeopathic practitioners. He leaves a widow and one son, Dr. Eugene A. Crockett of Boston. The deceased was connected with several societies, including the Odd Fellows, the Knights of Honor, and the Royal Arcanum; was a member of the Unitarian church, a director of the West Newton National Bank, and an original member of the medical staff of the Newton Hospital, and was formerly conspicuous in local politics. He retired from active practice about four years ago. The funeral was held at the residence of the deceased, on Monday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Jaynes officiating, and was largely attended. The flowers were very numerous, including a floral harp from the directors of the West Newton National bank, emblems from Triton Council, Royal Arcanum; Newton Council, Legion of Honor; Garden City Lodge, Knights of Honor; Newton Lodge, I. O. O. F.; from the nurses of the Newton Hospital, and of Eliot College; from the Hospital staff; from the city physicians and cut flowers from Hon. J. R. Lession, Dr. Payne, Dr. Blake of Boston, Women's Educational club, Mrs. Richard Anders, Miss Kelly, Mrs. Elkins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. Hosmer, Mrs. George Simpson, Mrs. H. King, Mrs. W. S. Varney and others. The interment was at the old home of the family in Maine.

—The regular meeting of the Women's Guild, connected with the Congregational church, will be held Wednesday afternoon.

—A sociable will be held Wednesday evening in the parlors of the Baptist church. A pleasing program is promised and a large attendance is expected.

—The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will hold its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Unitarian church. A full attendance is especially desired.

—Engineer Arthur Desoe and wife went to Springfield, Monday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Desoe's mother, Mrs. Cranston, who died last Friday.

—Contractor DeLacey of Bourne street has about completed the outside work on a fifty thousand dollar brick veneer house at Chestnut Hill, for J. G. Wright of Boston.

—The Rev. Addison P. Foster, brother of Mrs. Joseph Hunt, of Woodbine street, has bought the Kingman house on Central street. Alterations are being made by William Pettigrew.

—The house occupied by Mr. Blake's coachman in Westwood will be removed to a new location from land taken by the Boston & Albany. The work is being done by Mr. J. A. DeLacey.

—The Abundale Whist Club met with Mrs. Morgan last Monday; the first prize was won by Mrs. Burr, the second by Mrs. E. L. Pickard, and the consolation was taken by Miss Ethel Morgan.

—Mr. E. L. Pickard will build a house for his son, Geo. P. Pickard, on the corner of Maple street and Berkeley place, ground has already been broken. Mr. William Pettigrew of West Newton is the contractor.

—Conductor Wiggin and Engineer Desoe attended the banquet, complimentary to Mr. John C. Cobb, president of the Boston Business Men's Sound Money Club, given by the Railway Men's Sound Money League.

—Capt. Luke Landry, assistant Inspector General, assisted by Lieut. Harry Inman, made a thorough inspection of the property at the armory of Co. C, 5th Regt., Friday, Nov. 6th, and said the company was in fine condition.

—Mr. Clarence B. Ashendon has received a flattering offer from a prominent New York Concert Co. to tour New England and Canada, with probably a season in South America. Mr. Ashendon has the offer under consideration.

—A horse attached to a delivery wagon belonging to Woodward's fish market, ran away Monday noon and badly damaged the wagon before it was captured. The animal started on Camden road and to Woods' where it was stopped by a bystander.

—Rev. Mr. Southgate preached an eloquent and patriotic sermon, Sunday morning, on "Timely Lessons on Patriotism." The church was handsomely decorated with old flags, together with autumn leaves and evergreen; notwithstanding the rain, a large audience was present.

—Dr. Crockett, the well known and popular physician, while attending a patient on Grove street, last Friday night, was stricken with apoplexy; he was taken to his home in West Newton where he died about an hour later. Dr. Crockett will be greatly missed by his many friends, and especially by the poor, who have received many proofs of his generosity and kindness. The funeral services were held Monday at his late residence at 1.30 p. m.

—Mrs. Philip A. Butler has been chosen president of the New Hampshire's Daughters' table, at the "Noah's Ark," to be held in Mechanics' Building from Nov. 16 to 21st, inclusive. Mrs. Butler is an enthusiastic member of this large and flourishing club and the office could not be given to one more capable. The table will consist of produce of New Hampshire, many barrels of apples having been promised, also webs of cotton and flannel.

—An important event in religious circles in Abundale Tuesday evening was the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the organization of the church of the Messiah, which took place in the church edifice. From 7 to 8 Bishop Lawrence was tendered an informal reception in the parish house. He was assisted in receiving the members of the parish by Rev. and Mrs. John Matteson. At 8 religious services were held in the main auditorium. Rev. Mr. Matteson, rector, delivered an historical address, and congratulatory remarks were made by Rev. George W. Shinn of Grace church, Newton. The anniversary sermon was preached by Rev. Leighton Parks of Boston, and was followed by a few brief remarks by Bishop Lawrence. Letters were received from Rev. Mr. Smith of Woodstock, Vermont, and Rev. Mr. Lester of Minneapolis, former pastors. The three oldest vestrymen of the church, Hezekiah Earle, James Ford and William Colton were present.

The past week has been a very busy one in political and business circles. The people—a large majority of them—were pleased. They feel better. They see good times ahead. They begin to feel richer. They already begin to spend the gold that had been hoarded. I took a half eagle in payment for goods a few days ago. On account of the rush of business I have found no time to write advertisements, nor see any occasion to do so. I don't know as it's wise to tell you this, but I kept—at least the prices are. It's a good plan to buy before the retailer is obliged to mark them up. Come in, all you that haven't, and talk it over—look over my stock and the store. I don't want to say much about it, but I want you to come in and see for yourselves. Thanksgiving is coming, and I shall have everything for you, but the turkey. The nuts, the Malaga raisins, the apples and oranges, the stuffed dates and the Jordan almonds, etc. Remember, I keep as good goods as the "Three Boston Giants," but not quite as many. These are the best brands of flour that are made: Swan-down, Bridal Veil, Matchless, Gold Medal, Columbia and Pillsbury's Best; and at as low prices as anybody.

EX-GOV. RUSSELL.

HIS MEMOIR HONORED BY THE NEWTON CLUB—AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT, SAMUEL L. POWERS.

Last Saturday night saw the Newton Clubhouse filled with members and invited guests, to listen to the address on Ex-Gov. Russell, by the president of the club, Mr. Samuel L. Powers. It is one of the most eloquent tributes paid to the memory of William Eustis Russell and is given in full below. President Powers said:

Gentlemen and members of the Newton Club—

It has been less than 40 years since William Eustis Russell first saw the light of day in the historic city across the Charles. Cambridge had then, more than now, the cloister quiet and refinement which characterize a university town. It was the home of literature as well as of education.

Many of the most famous letters, whose works have done so much to give America a prominent place in the literary world, resided within the confines of old Cambridge—the Lowells, the Longfells, the Dumas, the Channings, the Higginsons. For more than two centuries the birth place of Russell has been renowned as the home of men of learning. It breathed the very atmosphere of moral culture and intellectual development. Its civil history was not less honorable than its annals in literature. It was here that the first American army, worthy the name, was formed to resist the encroachment of the British Crown. It was here that Washington first unsheathed his sword as he stepped at the head of the Continental Army.

It was Mr. Russell's good fortune to have been born in a community of elevating and ennobling influences. The great present and the greater past furnished the highest ideals of manhood, but far more potent and permanent than the influence of locality was that of inheritance and education. From his father came the blood of the English Puritan, and from his mother that of the French Huguenot. These two races united represented the strength of both and the weakness of neither. It was this stock that has given to both England and America some of the most notable men in history. It gave to the American republic at its birth the guiding mind of Hamilton, and in her maturity the example of a Garfield. It was an inheritance of courage, manliness, love of liberty and adherence to principle.

His ancestors had fought for civil and religious liberty in both England and France, and they had found their way to these shores in pursuit of that liberty of conscience and freedom of action consistent with their ideals of true manhood and true citizenship.

The great slavery agitation, which was in progress at the time of his birth, ripened into civil war four years later, the close of which did not come until Russell was a lad of 8 years. The impress of that great historic epoch upon the plastic, receptive mind of the child was indelible. He and his boyish friends were the upspring of a great people in defence of the Union of the states; he learned early in life the terrible sacrifice that sometimes must be made in defence of principle.

His lessons in boyhood were not from books alone. From his father's lips he learned of Webster, of Choate, of Story and of Cushing, of the great leaders and the traditions of the Whig party of New England—of Sumner, and Wilson, and Garrison, and Phillips—the leaders of the greatest political reform of modern times. His home life was in touch and in sympathy with the best influences of the domestic and social life of New England. His father had graduated with distinguished honors from Harvard in 1837, and he served with prominence in both branches of our state Legislature, and also as mayor of the city of Cambridge. His mother was a woman endowed with strong intellectual qualities and gifts which had been perceived and rare discernment requisite to work out the best possible results in the education of her children.

At an early age William was sent to the public school. Throughout his preparatory course of study Russell was the typical American schoolboy, not so fond of his books as to become a "grind," and not so fond of play as to seriously neglect his studies. His college course, which commenced in 1853, when he was but 16 years of age, was characterized by a steady and uniform development of mind and body. It was the life of a healthy, earnest and zealous youth, fond of books, and fond of play. He entered with zest into every kind of athletic sport; he loved then, as ever after, the river, the field, and the forest; he was exceedingly loyal to his class and athletic for his college. His interest and enthusiasm in the great athletic contests between Harvard and Yale was intense. No heart was more passionately devoted to none more cast down by defeat. These characteristics of college life remained with him until the last, and whatever the cares of state, the young Massachusetts Governor found time to pursue his annual pilgrimages to Springfield and New London. His college course closed in 1857, when he was but 20 years of age. He had not shown himself a genius, or of extraordinary ability in any one direction. He had, however, demonstrated that he possessed in a remarkable degree those traits of character so essential to permanent success, courage, manliness and frankness. For these traits he was loved and admired by his fellows.

Upon his entrance to the Boston law school in the fall of 1857 his intellectual force and ability at once became apparent. He was now applying himself to a definite purpose. He was no longer the schoolboy. The great battle of life loomed up before him. He saw no royal road to success in his chosen profession. He must be content to reach the summit, if at all, by the well-worn way. Two years later he graduated with the highest honor of his class, and won the Lawrence prize for the best legal essay. A year later he was admitted to the Suffolk bar, and the young man of 23 faced the great contest of life.

He could have chosen no field for the practice of his profession where the achievement of fame and fortune would be more difficult than at the Suffolk bar. He saw around him a crowded profession, embracing the best brain and culture of New England.

He recognized the high standard of learning and integrity so long maintained by the Massachusetts bar, and the years of continuous, persistent application necessary to acquire reputation and eminence in the profession. But this was no obstacle to a young man of Russell's temperament and ambition. At the time of his death he had been engaged in the practice of law 16 years, during 10 of which he had held public office, and had also been the candidate of his party for the position of Governor during two of the remaining six years.

When we take into consideration the limited time he was at the bar, three-fourths of which was interrupted by public service and active participation in the political affairs of the state with which he was identified, we cannot but consider his progress and success as marvellous. He was possessed of most of those qualities requisite to make a great lawyer. He was studious, thoughtful, quick of apprehension, thorough in investigation and forceful in expression. In the argument of questions of law before the court he was the equal of any attorney of his years at the Boston bar. He was possessed of that quick insight of human nature, that analysis of motives, that affable, genial bearing and forceful, logical argument which ultimately would have made him a great jury advocate.

When he retired from the executive chamber of the commonwealth to devote his entire time to the practice of law, he had before him a future of the greatest promise. His long public service for a man of his years had given him an immense circle of devoted and admiring friends. Upon these he could confidently rely for that class of business desired by the profession. He had every reason to believe that eminence in the profession awaited him. Great reputations at the bar are not usually made by men under 30 years of age. That Russell would have become one of the most distinguished advocates in Massachusetts, had his life been spared, may be confidently asserted.

His reputation and fame, however, were won in another field of contest. It is safe to assert that no man of his years, during the present generation, has won a reputation for popular favor and eminent public service equal to that achieved by Gov. Russell. You must bear in mind that in every field of triumph he won as the candidate of the minority party. He was recognized as a member of the Democratic party during his four elections as mayor of Cambridge, and as the leader of the minority party he was three times elected Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In 1862, presidential year, when President Lincoln was supported by the independent Republican vote and personally popular with his own party, was defeated by nearly 30,000 votes. Gov. Russell carried the state and achieved the greatest triumph known in the history of Massachusetts politics. During the 40 years preceding the first election of Russell in 1860, but two Democratic candidates were elected Governor of this commonwealth; the first was in 1874, the year of the great political revolution, when the popular William Gaston was carried in on the tidal wave, and the second was in 1882, when, Mr. Butler, with a Democratic nomination, supplemented by the labor vote, carried the state by a small majority.

But young Russell, during three successive years of Republican supremacy, was elected Governor, and against the earnest resistance of the dominant party, was able, by the force of his commanding ability and personal popularity, to win the election to the highest office in the gift of the people of the Old Bay State.

His first canvass as candidate for Governor was made in 1888, when he was but 31 years of age. His speeches possessed then all the characteristics of those of his years—earnest, candid, forcible. He was inspired with the traditions of the Jeffersonian party. He had received by inheritance the principles of the Democratic party from his father, enjoying the friendship and the confidence of Daniel Webster, was an ardent supporter of the Whig party, but, like Webster, he believed in the conservative policy when the party organization became broken during the anti-slavery agitation preceding the civil war, the elder Russell drifted over to the Democratic party and became a firm believer in freedom and the rights of the colored race.

The son adopted the beliefs of the father, but they were beliefs approved by his conscience and judgment. He advocated them because he believed them. He had the courage and the manliness to advocate them in a community and a state where popular opinion was against him, but the people of Massachusetts listened to him. He recognized that he was a young man of extraordinary ability, absolutely honest and fully in earnest. Each year his forces increased; men buried party beliefs and prejudices and voted for the young leader because they liked him and believed in him.

In 1890 a majority of the Massachusetts voters were on his side and stood by him until the last. Old line Republicans who had voted for Gardner and Bank were back in the fifties voted for Russell in the nineties. They were proud of him as a Massachusetts boy. To their minds it was not the candidate of the Democratic party that was running, it was "Billy" Russell, and as such he must be elected. His support came from the wealthiest and also from the humblest. His intellect and his appeal alike to both classes. He addressed himself to men's reasons and not to their prejudices. He recognized in man his best and noblest qualities, and strove to win his support by appealing to his judgment and conscience.

Gov. Russell's success in Massachusetts politics was the triumph of personal popularity. Measured as such it has no parallel in the history of American politics. The triumphant election of William Henry Harrison in the presidential contest of 1840 was the victory of the Whig party, but Russell's victory was the victory of the Democratic party. He was the making of irrepressible attacks upon the venerable administration of Van Buren. Gen. Banks was three times elected Governor of Massachusetts by overwhelming majorities, but he was still regarded as the opponent of a great moral reform that had originated in Massachusetts and taken deep root in the hearts of our people. His triumph was the triumph of the expression of the people's desire for the extinction of human slavery upon free soil; the victory of General Butler in 1862, although partaking in some degree of a personal success, was achieved by appeals to the masses against the greed and avarice, and the support of a restless, dissatisfied labor element.

Russell's marvellous political triumph was not dependent upon the organization of his party, or the weakness of his adversaries; he was not the exponent of any popular reform movement; he did not appeal to class prejudices, nor was he assisted by any feeling of sympathy for the following masses. In years of comparative prosperity under a national Republican administration, with no new issue before the country, he preached the old and time-honored doctrine of Jefferson, the "strict construction of tariff for revenue only," in a manner so strong, so convincing and so fascinating, that he absolutely forced the dominant party from its intrenchments on Beacon Hill, and held them against the fiercest and desperate efforts of the opposition through the two succeeding state elections, one of which occurred in a presidential year, in which the nominal Republican majority was nearly 30,000.

Gov. Russell's administration of public affairs was able, honest and faithful. He became mayor of Cambridge when but 28 years of age. Throughout his municipal administration, a year later, he was clearly demonstrated his capacity for the conduct of public business. He inaugurated reforms and carried them into practical and efficient operation. He acted without fear and without favor. He put into practical operation the theory that a municipal corporation should be managed along the same lines as a business corporation. When he entered upon his duties in the office of Governor he maintained the same self-reliance, the same energetic application that had made him the model mayor.

His administration of state affairs was able and honorable. The state papers he prepared are conclusive evidence of his accurate knowledge and wise judgment of the interests of the commonwealth entrusted to his care.

Mr. Russell retired from the government at the close of 1893. The Cleveland administration was then inaugurated. Russell had been for years the trusted lieutenant of Mr. Cleveland. The president recognized the conspicuous ability and popularity of the young governor. He would have added strength and favor to a national administration, and it is generally known among the intimate friends of Mr. Russell that the President did tender him a position of great trust, responsibility and honor. The ex-Governor declined it, and in doing so clearly demonstrated the greatness of his noble nature. He was a poor man. He had made no adequate provision for the future support and education of his family.

His fond wife was a partner in his ambitions, hopes and aspirations, but the little children must be cared for and educated. He must do for them all that his parents had done for him. He well knew that fame and fortune are rarely companions, and he gladly refused the great personal honors of office to devote himself to his wife and children, who were dearer to him than his life.

When we recall that Clay and Webster

both died broken in spirit because the presidency was beyond their reach; that Horace Greeley was driven to the position of the greatest of American journalists to venture on the uncertain sea of politics; that men waste fortunes, change beliefs, sacrifice principle and shatter lives in the vain endeavor of obtaining political honor, we turn with admiration to that young statesman and nature's nobleman who felt constrained to cast aside a great honor, just by accepting it he failed to do his full duty by those little ones whom God had entrusted to his care.

After his retirement from office at the close of 1893 he devoted himself unflinchingly to his profession. He was firm in his purpose never again to enter the political arena until he had suitably provided for the future.

In the early part of the present year many of the leading journals in the country advocated his name for the Democratic candidacy for President. The time had not yet come when he was willing to be a candidate. No doubt he was entertained by the hope that the time might come when he could, without sacrifice of principle, without disregard of the duties he owed to others, become the standard bearer of the party he loved so well, for the greatest honor in the gift of the people of the great republic on earth.

His great oration at Montecello in April in celebration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson brought him more prominence than ever into prominence in connection with the presidency.

No orator was ever favored with a scene and an audience more inspiring than that which surrounded Russell at Montecello. He stood upon the soil of a western state, the party was born, at the very grave of its founder. Clustering around him came the historic memories of that long line of statesmen, orators and soldiers which Virginia has given to the world, and who have left their visible impress upon American history. The battle fields of the Revolution and the Civil War and the heroes of both sleeping beneath her soil. Before him an audience of the representative men and women of the old dominion, descendants of the best blood and culture of the South, who had come to do homage to the memory of the author of the Declaration of Independence and the founder of a great nation party. And there stood the young orator from Massachusetts, the home of the Pilgrim, whose early history is so interwoven with that of Virginia, to pay a tribute to Virginia's noble son. When Russell said, "We need not fear defeat—defeat may be but the preliminary to victory; we should rather fear the discredit of a losing struggle," the audience which sounded in the face of a hostile audience the key note of the national campaign that was before him. The fearless, the intrepid, the sagacious, the North dared to assert and defend his beliefs of southern soil, and in the very face of the great political leaders of the state who entertained opposing views.

Three months later, in the national convention of his party at Chicago, he made the last public speech of his life. He was there to place himself on record in behalf of those principles he had believed to be right and which ultimately he believed must prevail. To his mind the great party which he cherished and believed in—the party of Jefferson, of Jackson, of Madison and Monroe, the party that twice had placed Cleveland at the head of the nation—was now in the actual control of its enemies. He saw this great party promulgating doctrines utterly at variance with its foundation principles. He raised his voice in protest, and he urged that the party should stand on its own feet, and not be carried along by the tide of popular opinion. He concluded: "When this storm has subsided, and the dark clouds of passion and prejudice have passed away, let us come after the turmoil of this convention a sober second thought, then the protest, we of the minority now make, will be held as the echo of the covenant of the faith, with which we all meet, again united, to carry out old principles to triumph and to victory."

But he little knew when that "sober second thought" would come to the Democracy of the South and the West; and he did come, any high ambitions and hopes he may have entertained could never be satisfied. Some men can change the political beliefs of a lifetime in a single night—Russell could not. He was still the man of a creed, born of inheritance, and strengthened by education and reflection. The beliefs of the party as expressed in its Chicago platform must first change—his could not. But he was still a man of the future, stretched peaceably out before him, and in their embrace clustered the opportunities of the future. He possessed the conscious pride of the strength that was within him, of the service he had performed, and of the possibilities that awaited him. Not for one moment did he lose faith in himself or in the ultimate return of his party to the principles of its founders.

He returned from the convention weary, worn and dissatisfied. His pale, serious face reflected the anxieties and the disappointments of the scene he had just left. His weary, anxious mind craved the silent forest, away from the jostling and the pressure of the city, and the selfish ambitions of men; he longed once more for the quiet companionship of those he loved and trusted.

From the full tide of early manhood, with all its hopes, its ambitions, and its victories, he had been driven to a lonely, sweet, that nothing but death could subdue. From a great circle of devoted friends prepared to render any service and make any sacrifice for the idol of their hearts—from all these he was now separated, the slightest warning, forever separated.

On the night of July 15, on the banks of a lonely river, beneath the silent trees of the primeval forest, on the northern verge of American civilization, and beneath the flag of another country, the great, noble heart of William Eustis Russell ceased to beat.

Calm as though in sleep, he lay at rest, but in the very blossoming of his earnest manhood, his regular career, his nature's choir, the song of birds, the rustling of leaves and murmuring stream, while afar the tidings sped from forest through hamlet and town, spreading the shadow of grief and bereavement over state and nation.

His death was a great loss to the country. He was a man of great ability, of great courage, of great honesty, and of great faith. He was a man who had made his mark in the world, and who had left behind him a legacy of great service to his country.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunder-man, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to take this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were most wonderful in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at J.
G. Kilburn's drug store, Newton, and Bernard Billings, Newton Upper Falls.

The Waltham School Board.

[Waltham News.]
It is hoped those representing the city will see to it that no money is paid for "ventilating systems" that only annoy instead of ventilate, and "heating plants" that heat only when we reflect on how badly the taxpayer was "stuck" when the city committed itself to the fads. Which calls to mind this incontrovertible proposition, to wit: That when anybody has experimented to make, or job to find, he invariably directs his steps to the city of Waltham, hunts up the school board and through that august body, finds a "sucker" —paraphrasing the present instance the committee appears to have concluded that the game has been rather overdone, and desires to call a halt. It is time.

Nervous and No Appetite.

Brayville, Mass., Oct. 18, 1896. "About three years ago my mother was feeling very poorly. She had no appetite and was very nervous. She was advised to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to do so, and in a short time the annoying symptoms disappeared and she was well and strong." Mrs. E. R. Edwards.

Hood's Pills are easy to buy, easy to take, easy in effect.

How to Prevent Croup.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE IN-TERESTING TO YOUNG MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.
Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this little treatise. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is soon recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it.
The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton;

The New High School Building.

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:—
I trust you will allow me sufficient space to bring to the attention of your readers a very important matter in connection with the building of the new High School.
The city is erecting a beautiful building, which will be the costliest public edifice in Newton. Thanks to the ability of the architects, and to the care given by the public property committee, which has the matter in charge, we shall have a school building accommodating 900 pupils, at a cost of about $180,000, while the cities of Cambridge and Springfield are about to expend $250,000, each for the same accommodation.

While something has been saved by using the so-called new part of the old school house, yet it made it more difficult to put the new building satisfactorily, and it is to the treatment of the old building that I wish to call your readers attention.
At this time when the expenses of the city are so heavy, the public property committee, in the interest of economy, thought it advisable to have the old building, which is of red brick, painted to harmonize with the new structure, which is to be of buff brick.

This would give a patched appearance at the start, for in addition to the contrast between the painted walls and the natural face of the brick, the bricks used in the two portions are of a different size.
It could not be satisfactorily remedied later, and if attempted, it would be at a cost much in excess of what the proposed treatment of the matter would demand now.

At the present time the old building can be veneered with new buff brick and the first and second stories, the third story to be taken down under present plans, and in the rebuilding can be constructed of the buff brick instead of red brick, afterwards to be painted, as now intended. The stone windows and sand casing which cannot be made to harmonize, can be replaced, and the exterior made new throughout for about $7000. But the real difference in cost is less than this, for the brick facing will require no expenditure for future care, while the painted walls will have to be repainted every two or three years at a cost of several hundred dollars.

The little extra cost of the new building is a very economy for the city to save $5000 at the cost of having their most expensive public building disfigured for all time?
With the pressure for economy in these times the public property committee is in an embarrassing position. Will not their fellow citizens relieve them from it by stating emphatically that they approve of the small extra expenditure necessary to make our school building, the home of nearly one thousand of our children, as perfect and complete as possible, and an ornament to our city, worthy of it.

—Travel on the Newton & Boston Street Railway and on the Cambridge road was considerably delayed Wednesday, on account of the work of putting in a switch on the boulevard near Walnut street. In some cases a whole trip was lost and was not made up during the day.

There are letters in the postoffice for Mrs. J. E. Brown, Mrs. Henry Leighton, Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. A. H. Green, Hawkins and Mitchell, Royal S. Howe, George A. Jackson, F. E. Kiveld, James Mahan, Mrs. Sarah E. Randall, George C. Vermer, Robert Wilson and H. Woods.

—Thursday evening three bowling teams made up of local players, and called the nonce Gold Bugs, Silver Bugs and Potato Bugs, played an interesting match on Bray's alleys. The former team, true to its name, made a clean sweep and defeated the Silvers by 75 pins and the Potatoes by 115 pins.

—About 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, a peculiarly dressed individual arrived in town pushing a wheelbarrow, which was covered with signs advertising a Boston shoe concern. He said he was walking to California in 100 days on a $1000 wager, and had left Brockton that morning. He staid all night in this place and in the morning left for Worcester.

—The celebration of the Republican victory by the residents of this place last Saturday evening, was one of the biggest of the kind ever held in the city. As a public affair it may be said to be without an equal in the history of the village. The big procession of floats, enthusiastic men, women and children, numbered over 2000. All residences and business places along the line of march were elaborately decorated, and the three great bonfires on Institution hill, brightly lighted.

Headed by Baldwin's Cadet band the procession moved from the upper square through Centre, to Beacon, to Union to Institution hill. At different points along the line it was covered with great displays of fire. At the end of the procession, the Roman candles added to the illumination. At the summit of the hill, when the crowd had gathered, Mayor Cobb made a stirring address which was received with great applause. After these exercises the crowd dispersed, though some remained to watch the fires burn out, while the majority returned to their homes. The celebration did not end here, however, as many kept open house and entertained guests from the other villages and Brookline.

—The Newton Centre Woman's Club held its first monthly meeting of the season of 1896-97 at Brays hall, Friday morning, October 2. After the reading of necessary reports, the "Ladies' Double Quartet" rendered a charming selection. The main feature of the morning was a Symposium entitled "Domestic Service." The opening paper by Mrs. Walter C. Brooks. "In our Grandmothers' Day." The conditions of domestic service as they existed in the old New England farm house, among the middle class, and also in the families of Beacon Hill. Gentility were delicately portrayed by Mrs. Brooks in her most entertaining styles. Mrs. H. G. Chase followed with a paper entitled "At Present Time." The changes brought about by factory life, founding of colleges, political revolution, the immigration of foreigners in large numbers to our shores, were emphasized. The paper showed most careful and scholarly investigation. Before dinner the subject Miss Logan favored the ladies with a delightful solo. Mrs. T. F. Plimpton opened the discussion with a few words on the "Relation between a Mistress and a Maid." Mrs. C. M. Ireland spoke of the "Training School for Servants" in Boston and its success. Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Beaton spoke of the "Uniformity of Wages." Mrs. J. S. Dickinson closed the discussion with the question, "Has the time come for Newton Centre to have an Agency or Registration for Servants?" Not only the speaker but the ladies generally were convinced that it is indeed time for Newton Centre ladies to take active measures toward the establishment of such an agency.

—John Malvane and family of Florence street have moved to Brookline.

—The foundation is being prepared for another brick block, corner of Langley road and Union street.

—Almost everybody here would be glad if the bell on the Mason school house would strike the hours.

—Miss Hersey will lecture before the Women's Club next Thursday at 11 a. m. instead of 3 p. m. Subject, "Twelfth Night."

—Miss Grace Dyer and Mr. Edgar Williams Knight were married in England, Oct. 17. Mr. and Mrs. Knight will sing this season in America.

—There is to be a song recital at the Central Congregational church of Newtonville, Tuesday evening, Nov. 19, given by Miss Josephine Martin, contralto of the church choir. Miss Martin will be assisted by Miss Flora Goldsmith, violinist, and Mr. Arthur Shepherd, pianist, both of Boston.

—Wednesday evening the Epworth League of the Methodist church held a social in the church parlors. The social was preceded by a business meeting which included an election of officers. This was followed by an entertainment program made up of musical and literary numbers, after which refreshments were served.

—On complaint of Officer Bailey, Daniel Sauer and Frank Burns, two small boys, went in court Monday morning charged with trespass. The two boys were gunning on the Clark estate at Cypress and Jackson street last Thursday when one fired a shot, the bullet of which went through a window of the barn and passed near the head of a man working there. The case was continued until December 19th and the boys placed on probation.

—Alford Bros. & Co. have in charge the new Union block on Union street in front of the station, which is rapidly approaching completion. It will contain four stories on the ground floor with ample basements and on the second floor a photograph gallery and five offices. The building is constructed of selected red brick, light Flemish bond, with Indiana limestone trimmings, and is built in a most substantial manner, the interior construction and supports being of steel. The architects are Kendall & Stevens and the contractors Miller Bros. of Boston.

—John Sullivan was seriously injured on the Needham street car after a severe Sunday evening. About 9.20 the occupants of a Polish boarding house were disturbed by several large stones crashing through their windows. Finally they fired several shots through the windows into the darkness. One of these shots took effect in Sullivan's left leg. Several buckshot lodged in the fleshy part of the thigh. It was at first feared that he would lose his leg, but it is now thought that it can be saved.

—About 11.30 o'clock Saturday evening the quiet of this village was rudely disturbed by a series of loud outcries apparently coming from the Polish boarding house on Chestnut street. Officer McKensie was attracted by the noise and went to the house where he found a lively fight in progress. He arrested two of the men present and took them to the patrol box. When he returned, after placing the two men in the patrol wagon, he was set upon by two other men but after a fierce struggle he managed to handcuff them with the assistance of wagon officer Mullen. The four men were arraigned in court Monday on a charge of disturbing the peace and their fines amounted to $105. Never was the necessity of another patrolman so well shown as on this time. Officer McKensie is one of the best officers on the force and has an excellent record but his route in the vicinity of the large and requires him in too many places at one time. If another officer was placed in this section it would be greatly appreciated by the residents at the present time, which is a petition for the addition of another officer.

—The ground was broken this week for a new house on the lot adjoining Mr. A. W. Vose, Beacon street.

—Musical at Mrs. B. S. Clontman's this evening in aid of the new church. Subscription fifty cents.

—Mr. Louis K. Harlow will speak before a gentlemen's club in Hartford, Conn., next week, on the "Home of Evangelism."

—The walls of the new church have already received one coat of cement and after another they will receive a very beautiful finish.

—The Worcester family of Lake avenue have removed to New Jersey, a short distance out from New York city.

—The next meeting of the Monday Club will be with Mrs. Lapham instead of Mrs. C. H. Brown, as previously assigned.

—Mr. C. Henry Adams, who has two houses nearly completed near the station at Eliot, will soon occupy one of them.

—Mrs. Joseth Hollis of Hunnewell Hill, the aged mother of Mrs. Moors, of Bowdoin street, has experienced a fall, breaking a hip.

—Mrs. May and her son, Kenneth, have gone to Washington, D. C., and will spend several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Brown.

—A concert under the auspices of Mrs. Mary Beebe Cutler will be given at the Newton Clubhouse, Nov. 25th. See adv. on 1st page.

—Mrs. Wilma Eliot Moore lectures this afternoon at Mrs. Clarke's on Erie avenue. It is the third of the series on "Nineteenth Century Poets."

—The Y. P. S. C. E. had a "Husking Bee" as their entertainment at their social held on Wednesday evening at the Congregational chapel.

—The Rev. John Walker Powell of Norwood, Mass., will preach at the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday morning, and the pastor in the evening.

—Mr. N. B. McMullen has just completed a stable for Mr. W. W. Sherman on Needham street, and is also building an addition to Mrs. Brocklesby's house on Columbus street.

—Miss Mary Briggs, editor of "Work at Home," who has recently visited the Blue Belt at the South, will speak before the Ladies Home Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon next at the Congregational chapel.

—The services at St. Paul's church on Sunday, Nov. 15th, will be as follows: Morning prayer and sermon at 10.45; Sunday school at 12.15, and evening prayer and sermon at 7. Rev. M. L. Kellner will officiate.

—Rev. Mr. Dole of Jamaica Plain preached in the Unitarian church last Sunday. The service was unusually well attended, and Rev. Mr. Dole's sermon was a most timely and inspiring one.

—St. Paul's church has called Rev. C. G. Twombly for rector. He is now assistant rector at Grace church, New Bedford. Mr. Twombly is a son of A. S. Twombly of Franklin street, Newton. He enters upon his duties immediately after Christmas.

—Ancient Order United Workmen, Oak Lodge No. 170, meetings second and fourth Wednesdays, Stevens' building. Beneficiary order by paying $2.00 at death of its members. For application blanks and other literature apply to William L. Thompson, Recorder, Newton Upper Falls.

—The funeral of the late Mr. Henry Rodson, whose sudden death occurred on Thursday afternoon of last week at the Boston station of the Boston & Albany Railroad, took place at his late residence on Sunday at the noon hour. Rev. Mr. Havens and Rev. Mr. Phillips officiated. Interment at Woodlawn cemetery, Chelsea.

—Rev. George G. Phipps, former pastor of the Congregational church, gave an art exhibit and sale of water color paintings at Lincoln hall, Wednesday and Thursday from 2 till 10 p. m. Mr. Phipps has an exceptionally fine variety of pictures. There are scenes from the mountains, forests, rivers and sea. Most of them are from familiar places along the North Shore, Charles river and other New England spots. The paintings are bright in color, with a joyous air which would add warmth to any room. They represent largely Mr. Phipps' recreation hours. He has been known while waiting a few moments for a train to sketch some unique spot of sky and earth, carry the coloring in his mind

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Adrian D'Apagnier has sold his milk room and market adjoining business.

—Mr. Newman Harrison, a former resident of this place, but now of Clinton, was in town this week visiting friends.

—Mr. Fatherly of the silk mill boarding house has sold his interest in that place and will remove to Virginia.

—There are letters in the postoffice for Mary McKenzie, Mrs. Mary Welch, William Blaney and James Danphy.

—A regular meeting of the Recreation Club was held Friday evening of last week at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson on Boylston street.

—Some time Tuesday night a freight car in the New England railroad freight yard was broken into and several boxes of tobacco stolen. The theft has been reported to the police.

—Residents of this section feel that the business boom has already arrived in this place. Besides increased business at the different mills the Newton rubber company has received a large number of orders that will keep it in operation all winter.

—Echo Bridge Council, Royal Arcanum, was visited Wednesday evening of last week by the deputy grand regent and suite. At the close of the regular business the company and invited guests enjoyed an excellent collation. Remarks were made by the deputy regent, members of the council and visitors. The council voted to hold similar entertainments each month.

—John Sullivan was seriously injured on the Needham street car after a severe Sunday evening. —Miss Mary Briggs, editor of "Work at Home," who has recently visited the Blue Belt at the South, will speak before the Ladies Home Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon next at the Congregational chapel.

—The services at St. Paul's church on Sunday, Nov. 15th, will be as follows: Morning prayer and sermon at 10.45; Sunday school at 12.15, and evening prayer and sermon at 7. Rev. M. L. Kellner will officiate.

—Rev. Mr. Dole of Jamaica Plain preached in the Unitarian church last Sunday. The service was unusually well attended, and Rev. Mr. Dole's sermon was a most timely and inspiring one.

—St. Paul's church has called Rev. C. G. Twombly for rector. He is now assistant rector at Grace church, New Bedford. Mr. Twombly is a son of A. S. Twombly of Franklin street, Newton. He enters upon his duties immediately after Christmas.

—Ancient Order United Workmen, Oak Lodge No. 170, meetings second and fourth Wednesdays, Stevens' building. Beneficiary order by paying $2.00 at death of its members. For application blanks and other literature apply to William L. Thompson, Recorder, Newton Upper Falls.

—The funeral of the late Mr. Henry Rodson, whose sudden death occurred on Thursday afternoon of last week at the Boston station of the Boston & Albany Railroad, took place at his late residence on Sunday at the noon hour. Rev. Mr. Havens and Rev. Mr. Phillips officiated. Interment at Woodlawn cemetery, Chelsea.

—Rev. George G. Phipps, former pastor of the Congregational church, gave an art exhibit and sale of water color paintings at Lincoln hall, Wednesday and Thursday from 2 till 10 p. m. Mr. Phipps has an exceptionally fine variety of pictures. There are scenes from the mountains, forests, rivers and sea. Most of them are from familiar places along the North Shore, Charles river and other New England spots. The paintings are bright in color, with a joyous air which would add warmth to any room. They represent largely Mr. Phipps' recreation hours. He has been known while waiting a few moments for a train to sketch some unique spot of sky and earth, carry the coloring in his mind

—Mrs. Elizabeth Gowdy Baker held an exhibition and sale of Water Color Sketches on Monday, at her studio in Brackett's block. The sketches were mostly of scenes about Camden, Maine, where Mrs. Baker spent the last summer, and included shore and mountain views; in addition there were several of Gloucester Harbor, the Cabot Woods, and Newton Lower Falls. The views were very attractive, and a large number of visitors were present. This is Mrs. Baker's last exhibition in Newton, as she is to remove to New York. She will hold an exhibition of portraits there after Dec. 1st.

—In the first match of the tournament the Newton Centre team defeated the local club on the new Nonantum bowling alleys. The home team was bothered considerably by the line rule which was a reason for their not rolling up a higher score. Myrdon made an exceptionally high run in the first string rolling up 29.

Inspector Fletcher of this city and Inspector Murray of Cambridge arrested, Tuesday afternoon, in the latter city, Michael Kelly, who is wanted in this city.

Kelly was employed in a barber shop on Prospect street, and gave the officers an exciting adventure, which was witnessed by a crowd of 300 people.

Inspector Fletcher entered the shop and told Kelly that he wanted him, and the latter said he would go, but wanted to visit his room across the street to change his clothing.

When Kelly returned, he was arrested. A carriage containing two young men was coming down the street, and the inspector jumped into it. "I want to catch that fellow," he said, pointing at the fleeing form of Kelly, who was already near City Hall. The horse was whipped and the officer jumped from the conveyance to the heels of Kelly, whom he arrested and took to headquarters.

About 11:50 Monday night an alarm was rung in from box 171, for a fire in a two and one-half story dwelling house on Boyd street, owned by Mrs. James Marr, and occupied on the second floor by Charles Phillips and family.

The fire started in the lower oil and gained considerable headway before it was discovered. It was first seen by Mr. George Safford, who lives at the corner of Boyd and Jewett streets and he immediately pulled the box.

The cause of the fire is a mystery, though it is thought that it was set. Mr. Phillips and family, who occupy the upper part of the house, were not at home when the fire broke out, but were visiting Mrs. Phillips' mother.

Mr. Myron Chase and wife, who had leased the lower tenement, had that day moved in some furniture, consisting of a chamber set and an ice chest. They were soon to occupy the lower floor and were in the house about ten o'clock looking at some repairs that had been made.

The fire is thought to have broken out in a closet where some paint and paint rags were kept. The rear of the interior of the house was badly gutted and the damage will amount to about $1000. A dog and bird belonging to the family up stairs perished in the flames.

Considerable excitement was caused by a young lady living nearby, who, supposing the fire to be in her own home, ran out in her nightclothes.

She was carried home by a kind hearted neighbor.

—Now try Hahn's Ext. Malt.

—Mr. William T. Coppins returned Wednesday from New York.

—Garden City Lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold a grand regatta ball in Armory hall this evening.

—Dr. E. B. Hitchcock is reported to be very ill with pneumonia at his home on Hollis street.

—Miss Georgie Carter of Washington street, who has been ill with typhoid fever, is improving.

—The Nonantum agency for the Free Library has been established at Mrs. Kendall's store on Watertown street.

—Rev. Dr. Gordon of the New Old South church, Boston, will preach at the Elliot church, Sunday, in exchange with Rev. Dr. Davis.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Howe of Shady Nook farm, West Newfield, Me., have been in town this week visiting Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Frisbie.

—Rev. George E. Merrill, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, lectured in Providence last Friday on "Great Christian Manuscripts."

—Mr. Warren Partridge, who has been ill for several weeks at the Brackett hospital, Boston, has recovered and is able to be out again.

—Mr. J. Henry Bacon is in New York this week buying goods for the Christmas trade. He intends to have a finer assortment than ever before.

—Last year there was an audience of over 600 at the union Thanksgiving service, and it is hoped that the attendance this year will be equal to this.

—Mr. Wiley Edmonds and family are stopping with Mr. Robert Lord of Franklin street pending the completion of their new residence on Ruthven road.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Coppins and Miss Coppins of Centre street returned Saturday from New York, where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Coppins' niece.

—Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Lawton (nee Morse), have returned from their wedding tour and will reside with the former's mother, Mrs. Lawton of Franklin street.

—The Free Library's special days for displays of the reference books are proving very popular, and many avail themselves of the opportunity to consult the books that are laid out.

—The story has been current that the Boston & Albany wanted the Brackett property, between the depot and Centre place, and had made an offer for it. Mr. Brackett has heard nothing of it, however.

—The Eight O'clock Club met last evening at the residence of Messrs. A. R. and G. M. Weed of Park street. It was "Story Teller's" evening and proved very interesting. Mr. H. M. Greenough read some excellent selections.

—Forequarters Lamb, 8 cts., Short Legs of Lamb, 13 cts.; this is a special price for Saturday. If you want a good turkey at a low price for Thanksgiving leave your order at once at the Newton Public Cash Market, 413 Centre street.

—The concert under the auspices of Mrs. Mary Beebe Cutler, at the Newton Club, next Wednesday evening, will be the musical event of the season. It is also for the benefit of the Newton Hospital and the clubhouse should be crowded.

—Miss Bertha M. Bush celebrated her ninth birthday Wednesday evening, from 4 to 8 o'clock, at her home on Elmwood street. There were present about 14 of Miss Bush's playmates, who came to extend their best wishes. Games were played, after which refreshments were served.

—The Ward One contest over candidates for the Common Council is exciting a good deal of interest. It is a three cornered fight, and the candidates are John Sturgis Potter, George M. Billings, and John Flood. Mr. Potter has large property interests in the ward and will no doubt be chosen. Mr. Billings is a newcomer to the city, and rents the Allison place on California street. He is an ex-Newtonian, and the Nonantum people are said to wish him for their representative. They claim that he is very wealthy and a shrewd business man. Mr. Flood is well known known as he has been in business here for a good many years and has been a candidate for office before. Just how the contest will come out is a problem, as the friends of each candidate do not lack of any doubt of the election of their particular favorite, and the outsiders hope that the best men will win.

—Another fatal accident occurred in the Boston & Albany's excavation about 9:30 o'clock, yesterday morning, just above the Washington street crossing. When the Pareto, a laborer employed by Contractor Cram, was engaged in hoisting stone with a derrick when the stone broke and a heavy fragment struck him on the back of the head. He was picked up and carried to police station 1, where he was attended by two physicians. He was later taken to the Newton Hospital in the city ambulance, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the skull nearly five inches in length. He died at 7 p. m. Before Pareto was removed from the police station his friends insisted that his money be taken away. His pocket book was found to contain $72.71. This was turned over to police headquarters. Pareto was 39 years old and leaves a wife and four children in Italy. He lived at Faneuil. Two brothers are coming from New York to take charge of the remains.

—Mrs. Mabel Jenness Venter delivered an address on artistic dress and social graces before a large audience of representative Newton ladies in the Nonantum hall, Wednesday. The affair was under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A., and netted quite a sum for the society's treasury. In her lecture Mrs. Venter described the beautiful advantage in correct walking, standing, sitting and leaning, and gave illustrations of the ungraceful attitudes the average woman assumes on these occasions. She declared herself a foe to corsets and displayed a number of charming costumes which she said were made on hygienic principles to be worn without corsets. Numerous questions were asked relative to the up-to-date used and the manner of constructing the different garments shown. Mrs. Venter expressed the hope that she would convert some of those present, and as the reforms are not so radical as to make the wearer conspicuous, she trusted the good sense of the audience would lead them to agree with her. On the whole, Mrs. Venter's

THE ASSESSORS.

The assessors have been much criticised this year for their delay in getting out the tax bills, and a good deal of fault, most of it unjustly, has been found with the management of that department.In the first place, we have only three principal assessors, the same number that was thought necessary 25 years ago, when the work was not one tenth of what is required today. Newton has grown in these 25 years, the farms have been divided up into house lots, the few streets have been multiplied and the tax-payers have increased in every direction.It is the duty of the three principal assessor to divide the city between them, and to personally visit every piece of property and question every tax-payer in their district, to see "that no guilty man escapes."Mr. Rogers, for instance, has Wards One, Two and Seven, to take care of between the first of May and the first of September, and the work is more than two men could do in that time. The Charter revision committee have sought to remedy this, and will recommend that the number of principal assessors be not less than five.
The present charter limits the number to three.This trouble exists every year, and also the delay caused by the Registry of Deeds at Cambridge being so far behindhand with their work, that they can not furnish the Newton assessors with the list of changes in the ownership of property until long after the date at which this is needed.Then this year, the ward and precinct lines had been changed, and the assessors had to wait for the city engineer's office to furnish them the new lines. All the improvements in Newton have caused the engineer's office to be flooded with work, and this delay was unavoidable. Another year, this trouble will not be experienced, and even with the present force the return can be made several weeks earlier.As for the salaries paid in the assessors department, they are very low compared with other departments and the great importance of this department to the city.
Without this department, all the others would be in a bad way. If an assessor is worthy to hold the office at all, his value to the city increases every year, and the salaries should be sufficient to retain men who have proved their ability. The board could not afford to lose the services of Mr.
Minor, especially as it is said that Mr.
Jackson is about to retire, and the city can well afford to pay him enough to make it worth his while. Inexperience, and want of knowledge of city affairs, may pass in the city council, but it would work havoc in the assessors' department.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY.

The Sunday before Thanksgiving has for several years been observed as Hospital Sunday, when the attendants at the churches have an opportunity to express their feelings of thankfulness by their gifts to this noblest of our charities. The response has always been generous, but this year it is hoped that it will be especially so, as the work of the hospital is constantly growing, and every year sees a greater demand for its ministrations to the sick.Last year the total was $6,920, and it is hoped that this year it will be increased to $10,000, as that sum is urgently needed.The Newton Hospital has come to be regarded as a model institution, throughout New England, and many other cities have followed the example we have set. Every citizen may well feel proud of its reputation, and by giving what he can afford, he can feel a personal pride as well, in that he is helping to maintain such an institution.
The hospital trustees have issued an urgent appeal to the people, and the figures they present in this issue, show that the number of the sick who have been cared for have largely increased the past year. There have been a number of times when the entire resources of the Hospital have been taxed to their fullest extent, every bed has been occupied, and some have had to be refused, so that it can readily be seen that all the money that is contributed will be needed the coming year.In this connection a word of praise should be given to the Hospital managers, who look after all the expenses so carefully, and have given so generously of their time, to forward the good work. It is due to their care that the revenues of the Hospital have been made to cover such a great amount of work and also that the income from paying patients and from other sources has been made to pay part of the expenses. They have made it a place where people could be sure of having the most enlightened care and nursing, whether they were paying patients or not, and where both poor and rich may feelsure of having as good care as in any of the expensive private hospitals. It is hardly to be expected that our Hospital will ever be self-supporting, and this would not be desirable, as it would take away from the personal interest which all feel who respond to the appeal for contributions.In giving out notice of the Hospital Sunday collection last Sunday in Grace church, Dr. Shinn said he hoped no one's interest in the work of the hospital would be diminished by the very misleading articles which had appeared in some of the newspapers. By whomsoever inspired, and whatever was their object, the effect of these articles was to give the impression that the hospital was a money making institution, and that it was trying to carry out a cheap trick at the expense of the city. The fact of the matter is that the appropriation made by the city is really a saving of expense, for the city could not support the contagious wards alone for that sum, to say nothing of the many other cases. The hospital has treated over 700 patients this last year and has expended over $26,000. Part of this sum has been earned outside by the nurses, part has come from the payments by patients in the Coburn ward, and part from other patients.
The collections in the churches amounted to over $6000, and the city has paid $10,- 000. If the city appropriates less this year or if less is contributed in the churches the institution is unable to meet its expenses.
It needs every dollar it can earn, every dollar the city has appropriated, and every dollar likely to be offered on Hospital Sunday. It is not easy to understand how anyone can throw the slightest obstacle in the way of an institution which has brought honor to our city.THE Bacchante in the Boston public library has been the main topic of conversation all the week. The papers have been full of remonstrances from people who have not seen the statue, but those who have, have found nothing objectionable in it.
As one clergyman said "Beauty can not have a vicious influence." Whether it is appropriate to the surroundings is another question, but as the Springfield Republican says, "where the pillow-case parties of De Chavannes and the brutal nightmare of Sargent's ceiling are acceptable, one incongruity more is of small consequence."THERE is to be no contest over school committee, as it is said that Mrs. Prince has refused to allow nomination papers to be circulated. Some were taken out, but up to noon, none had been filed at City Hall, although the time limit does not expire till 5 o'clock, this afternoon. If this report is correct there will be no contest on the general ticket, and the only fight will be over candidates for the Common Council in three of the wards. Not much of a vote can be expected this year.THE Hunnewell Hill people are again much exercised over that new depot project. The report that the B. & A. may use the filled in marsh for a place of storage for freight cars, instead of moving the Faneuil depot towards Newton has caused a good deal of excitement, and another petition is talked of.The Charter Revision committee have another conference with the city council, to-night, to discuss the first draft of the new charter. The committee want to have all the provisions thoroughly understood by the council before the public report is made.It is now said that a year from last October, all this depression of the tracks will be completed, and everything restored to good order. As we shall have to wait anyway, we might as well endure our present discomforts patiently, and make the best of it.NEWTON looks with painful surprise at the quarrels of other cities over the choice of their Municipal officials. Why can't they follow our example, and arrange all these things before hand?

Newton Hospital.

On Hospital Sunday, which occurs on the 22nd Inst., the usual collection will be taken in all the churches of Newton.The following statement of the work of the Hospital for the past ten years shows that it grows larger each year. With this increase of work and of financial outlay, the Hospital Sunday collection also should grow steadily, as indeed it has done up to this time.

CITY ELECTION.

December 1, 1896.

CITY OF NEWTON.

ORDERED,

That meetings of the citizens of this City, qualified to vote therein, are hereby called in the several Polling Places designated by this Board on Tuesday, the first day of December,
A. D. 1896, for the election of a Mayor and Seven Aldermen, one Alderman being selected from each Ward, and in each Ward from residents therein two members of the Common Council.
Also to elect six members of the School Committee, to be selected as follows: Two from Ward Three, two from Ward Four, and one from Ward Seven, to serve each for three years from the first Monday in January next, and one from Ward Five for the unexpired term to January, 1897, of Joseph R. Smith, deceased.Also to give in their ballots "YES" or "NO" in answer to the question, "Shall licenses be granted for the sale of intoxicating liquors in this City?"All of the above officers and the question of licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors to be voted for on one ballot, except that the votes for School committee by women will be by a separate ballot.The polls will be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, and closed at thirteen minutes past four o'clock in the afternoon.In the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Nov. 16, Barney.Mr. Horatio William Parker, organist of Trinity church, Boston, has arranged a memorial service for Sir Joseph Barney at 4 p. m., Sunday, Nov. 22. The music will be by Barney. The offerings will be for the widow and children who are left in destitute condition. Since the church everywhere is so indebted to this great composer, for a large part of its best music, it is only fitting to honor his memory in this way.

Newton High Defeated.

The Newton High school football team was defeated Thursday afternoon on the Tufts Athletic field by Somerville High, 24 to 0. This gives the latter the championship of division B of the Junior inter-scholastic league. The game was Somerville's first, and the men put up the strongest play they have made this year.
Newton's gains were mostly made between

—Chas. Ward Post 62, G. A. R., was inspected Thursday evening by Com. W. W. Wolf, Assistant Inspector of Post 92, Brighton, some 100 comrades of the Post being present and the inspection passed in first-class manner. Commander Whitney and other officers being letter perfect; and unique and beautiful ceremony being the presentation of the colors. After the inspection an oyster supper was served in the banquet hall, followed by informal speeches by a number of visiting comrades.

—At the Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday, the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamill, will preach both morning and evening. Morning topic at 10:45, "God's Mirror and Wick." In the evening at 7:30 the series of addresses on travel in Canada called the "Wayside Cross," will be continued. Last Sunday evening there was present a great congregation, completely filling the church, to hear the address on "The Gray Nuns of Montreal." This coming Sunday the topic, by special request, will be "The Walled City of the North, Ancient Quebec." There will be special music with a selected solo. All are cordially welcome.

—The Bible class at the Methodist Episcopal church, under the direction of Mr. J. B. Willis, has resumed its sessions for autumn and winter. The class meets as usual at 12 m. in the church auditorium. The success of Mr. Willis in this work has been so marked in the past that many have from long distances to enjoy the helpful influence of his teaching. Mr. Willis' wide experience in oriental travel, together with his rare scholarship, render him peculiarly fitted to conduct such a class. The class is open to all who desire to attend. The work opens with renewed enthusiasm. An unique method of teaching renders the study always fresh and interesting.

—Prof. Paul H. Hanus of Cambridge lectured Thursday afternoon, before the high school teachers in the new Pierce school on Chestnut street. His subject was, "The Science of Teaching." Prof. Hanus spoke principally on the true order of studies in the elementary and secondary schools, and of the necessity of a material change from the old reign of the three "R's" to the study of nature and language. He said that more attention should be given to the modern languages in the lower grades. The great danger he added, in making this new order of studies, was that it will find the teachers unprepared to give the necessary instruction.

—David Rider, 12, of Willard street, and Samuel Layne, 16, of Blossom street, Boston, started off on foot from Boston, Tuesday afternoon, to go to Albany. They intended ultimately to go to New York and see the town. Young Layne had been promised a trip to New York at Christmas time by his parents, and had quite a sum saved for the event. His patience ended Tuesday. His journey ended suddenly at Riverside when Officer Quigley overhauled the boys and locked them up as runaways. In the evening they were turned over to their parents.

—The Newton Boat Club are to hold a bowling tournament which will commence about December 1st. The matches will be played on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday evenings. Prizes will be awarded as usual, the number of the same depending upon the number of entries to the tournament. The committees are also considering a plan for the giving of monthly prizes from December to April, inclusive, the particulars of which will be posted in the hall of the clubhouse. The bowling facilities of the club are in better condition this season than ever before, a new maple flooring having been laid in the "Bowlers' Box" in place of the hard pine, four new balls having been added and the best of the old ones re-turned, and the alleys planed and leveled, and the executive committee of the club hope that appreciation of their efforts in behalf of the bowlers will be shown by an increased interest in the sport during the coming season, and the greater use of the alleys on club and private nights.

MISS HIM GREATLY.

MINUTE ADOPTED BY THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE NEWTON HOSPITAL, NOV. 13, 1896.

It is with unfeigned and heartfelt sorrow that we learned of the removal by death of our esteemed colleague, Dr. F. E. Crockett, who had been officially connected with the hospital from its organization.

We here gratefully acknowledge the uniform courtesy and kindness of our late associate, his activity and faithfulness and also his readiness and ability to perform any duty incumbent upon him.

We shall miss him greatly. We cordially tender to his mourning family and friends our sincere sympathy in this sudden bereavement. Assured that our loss is his gain we seek to be reconciled to this dispensation by our Heavenly Father.

Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers can be applied when at home, and is uniformly successful in coloring a crown or black. Hence its great popularity.

Pictures and Frames.

Visitors to Waltham should be sure and call at Morgan Bros., 26 Moody street, and see their beautiful display of photographs, engravings, pastels, etc., which will be handsomely framed at a small expense. They have also a complete line of vases, jardinières, and other goods suitable for the holiday trade, and prices are guaranteed to be less than Boston prices. See adv.

BY AN UNKNOWN POET.

Come every one now, great and small, to the table; Let every one eat just as much as he's able; Make the homestead resound from cellar to gable, For it's Thanksgiving Day.

Now that's good advice. Follow it! And heed what I say. Be happy and gay. And enjoy the day in the wisest way. But, be sure you may in the future say That without delay you came straightway to my store and bought all your Thanksgiving "fixings," such as Nuts of all kinds, separate or mixed, Apples, Oranges, Grape Fruit, Lemons, Figs, Malaga Raisins, Dates, plain and stuffed, Candies, Fruits, fresh and preserved, in cans or jars, Jams and Jellies, Baked Cider, Maple Syrup, String Beans, String Beans, Succotash, and everything but the Turkey to make your Thanksgiving dinner complete. I shall also receive next Tuesday a barrel of Potham's famous Russet Cider—the best that can be made. I have the well-known Ferris Ham—none better. Buy a barrel of Swansdown, Matchless, Columbia or Bridal Veil, and you will be sure of a good loaf.

NEWTONIANS IN SWITZERLAND.

A VIVID DESCRIPTION OF SOME OF THE WONDERFUL THINGS SEEN.

Lake Geneva called also Lake Lemane, is large, and looks like a lake, but it is not a lake, but a water stomach of Europe. It does not belong wholly to Switzerland, for France makes a turn and struggles up to its under side. It lies in a lovely valley among sloping hills, the giant mountains keeping at a respectful distance. Toward the west it narrows and turns southward. The southern portion where it narrows most, and the gentle current hitherto scarcely perceptible, becomes swift and issues in the "arrowy" Rhone, is embraced on both sides by the city of Geneva, which hangs more straitly, the impatient river hurrying to the sea. It must hasten, for the whole lake presses and will have no other outlet for its flood. I have seen no estimate of the amount of water daily discharged by the lake. I have followed the water current to the point where the Arve joins it, and have largely to its volume.

The fall is enough to utilize. The city will be able by and by to make use of 18,000 horse power taken from the current of this Rhone. The right to use this power was granted by the state in 1882, and voted by Geneva in 1883. Two islands, near each other, in the midst of the stream, make comparatively easy control of the power, by means of gates beside a bridge from the right bank to the lesser island, and by another set of gates parallel with the current, between the two. The work began in 1883, and after reading the list of past presidents, called on Mr. George M. Fiske, to speak as their representative. He called attention to the fact that the presidents had been laymen, and this suggests some remarks on the subject of leading and following, and the opportunities and responsibilities of followers in matters of church and patriotism. "The kingdom of God is not of this world," said he, "but the kingdom of God has not come, but the kingdom of God has not come."

The list of past presidents in the city of Geneva in 1886 was read. The list included: Henry J. Patrick, D. D., and he responded for them, characterizing them as pretty good fellows, of whom he might say much more, but for his besetting sin, overmodesty. The club had been welcomed by them as lessening the isolation of the churches, and marking a tendency to unity. It was the first Congregational club in the country to limit its membership to one hundred. The Rev. Edward M. Noyes then spoke for the pastors of 1886. They are much like those of 1886, but different problems are before them. The great problem is that of colored fellowships, a wider one than of unity in a single city, the problem to unite the forces in and around Boston, in churches representing wealth, influence and power, but losing ground because of the changes that are taking place.

The Rev. Howard A. Bridgman, managing editor of the Congregationalist, was introduced as representing the religious press. He hoped for a new era, and that the Congregational club idea would be demoted. To demote it to be worse than the crime of '73, which is said to be the only crime that Altdorf has never forgiven. He said that the club was the life of the club when we put it in the light of the changes in the denominational and religious world. The last ten years have been of great meaning for the church. They have been marked by debate, by the development of Christian endeavor and the Student Volunteer movement for missions, by work on the problems of the city and of philanthropy, by efforts to unite the churches and other forms of Christian activity. Like our fathers, we have our problems, and the endeavor to make Newton more perfectly Christian may well seem as noble and heroic as was the coming across the sea to find a new country.

The last speaker was the Hon. Arthur H. Wellman, the son of a former pastor of the city of Geneva, who spoke as a representative of the Boston Congregational Club, of which he is president. The Congregational denomination has been, he said, the representative of individualism. It has laid emphasis on the duty of each individual. The times call for emphasis on the relation that individual Christians bear to the law of the land. One day in a friend's garden I caught a little boy standing in a row of trees, and I said to him, "What do you suppose I am going to do with you?" I said, "Let me go this time and take me to the police next time." That represents the attitude of too many to law. The laws are put on our backs, and we do not live up to them; and so we have naturally come to a party that says, "We do not care about your Constitution itself." Our form of government is essentially Congregationalism, and so our duty is to have a peculiar duty to perform in teaching respect for law, and in making Christian citizens. Over the Capitol at Washington was a statue of Liberty, put there, and by the efforts of David, but as President Selye used to say, the true symbol of liberty is the cross.

Newton Congregational Club.

A goodly number gathered in the parlors of the Congregational church, West Newton, on Monday evening, to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Newton Congregational Club. After a pleasant social hour supper was served in the chapel. The divine blessing was invoked by the Rev. Daniel Greene, and after supper, prayer was offered by the Rev. Daniel L. Furber, D. D.

During the business hour Mr. Nelson G. Cooley and Mr. Benjamin P. Sands, both of Auburndale, were elected as members of the club. The report of the outlook committee was given by the Rev. Henry J. Patrick, D. D., who stated that at the November communion about forty members had been added to the churches represented in the club.

Some musical selections were finely rendered during the evening by Miss Harriet Whittier of Boston. After referring briefly to the special occasion, the President, Mr. George M. Fiske, called on Mr. James F. C. Hyde, as the founder of the club, to tell the story of its beginning. He read from the circular in which the movement was first proposed in 1884, and then told of the later steps until the organization in 1886. On a call for a show of hands it appeared that fourteen of the original members were present. Mr. Hyde favored admitting ladies to full membership, and believed that the meetings should have a decidedly religious cast.

President Putnam exhibited the original draft of the constitution as presented to the Rev. Mr. Hyde, and after reading the list of past presidents, called on Mr. George M. Fiske, to speak as their representative. He called attention to the fact that the presidents had been laymen, and this suggests some remarks on the subject of leading and following, and the opportunities and responsibilities of followers in matters of church and patriotism. "The kingdom of God is not of this world," said he, "but the kingdom of God has not come, but the kingdom of God has not come."

Ladies' Notes.

On Sunday afternoon the students had a rare good chance to hear Mrs. Ballington Booth speak about the new work in which, since their withdrawal from the Salvation Army, she and her husband have been engaged, and a large part of the school availed themselves of it. Such is the character of power of Mrs. Booth's presence and addresses that those who heard her came away enthusiastically interested in both her and her work.

A small party from the seminary had on Monday evening the pleasure of listening to the famous Adamowski Quartet, and Miss Corea, the noted vocalist, in the Star Course entertainment of that evening.

About thirty attended the Roman Festival Mass given Wednesday evening in the Temple. Professor Rich accompanied the party. The girls listened on Thursday afternoon to Mr. Robert E. Lewis's address on the Student Volunteer Movement. Mr. Lewis is traveling secretary of the organization, and presented the subject with clearness and force, gaining the interested attention of all present.

Principal Bragdon and his wife are away on a visit, a school vacation for the former from his numerous and often pressing duties of administration of school affairs.

A nervous young minister, in visiting a remote village had this unpleasant experience. The old lady at whose house he stayed, in showing him to his room, said: "My son, you had better put in this room. This room is full of sacred associations to me," she went on. "My first husband died in that bed with his head on these pillows, and poor Mr. Jenks died sitting in that corner. Sometimes when I come into the room in the dark I think I see him sitting there still. My own father died lying right on that lounge right under the window there. Poor dad, he was a spirit, and he said he'd appear in this room after he died, and sometimes I am foolish enough to look for him. It'd be a sign to me that there was something in spiritualism, and I'd like to think that. My son, by my first man I'd think of heart disease right where you stand. He was a doctor, and there's two whole skeletons in that closet there belonged to him, and half-a-dozen skulls in that long drawer. If you are up early, and want something to amuse yourself with before breakfast just open that cupboard there, and you will find a lot of dead men's bones. My poor boy, he thought a lot of them. Well, good night, and pleasant dreams."—Kobe (Japan) Herald.

A new pair of shoes came home for Davy, aged five. He was delighted with them until they had been put on his feet. Then he exclaimed, with a pout, "Oh, my! they're so tight I can't wink my toes!"—Harper's Round Table.

The Single Tax Class and Club.

The third regular meeting of the season was held at 230 Bellevue street, Tuesday evening. Rev. John Grogan of Worcester read an interesting paper on The Single Tax in relation to the farmers in Massachusetts, in substance as follows:

"The single tax is in its outward form, an attempt to put direct legislation upon a sound, scientific basis. In its spirit it means justice to every man, and the abolition of undeserved poverty, and the evils which result from poverty. Where it is in operation it will distribute the burden of taxation anew in two ways. First, it will take the burden off men and put it on nature, and secondly, take it off the poor country districts and put it upon the wealthy centers of population and industry, but without injustice in any case, and to an immense relief to all trade and labor. In order to its adoption, our people must be shown the iniquity of our present systems, and the equity of the change proposed. We therefore address ourselves particularly to farmers, because they have made themselves in a special sense, the champions and defenders of the existing system. They are most clamorous for indirect taxation so called, for protection and for a renewed attempt to reach personal property of wealthy men and corporations for revenue purposes. As the farmer's land is seldom worth as much as his improvements and personal property, under the single tax he would have very little to say. The difficulty is to convince the farmer that his land is not worth much. But this is the fact when you consider what the value of land is in great cities. In Worcester, for instance, there is farm land assessed at $25 per acre, and the city land at the rate of $27 per square foot, $1,186,120 per acre more than one acre of such land.

The present system is unjust to the country towns, in that it lays the burden of the roads and schools upon them. The country towns tax themselves heavily for those two purposes, yet do not have good roads, nor as good schools as the city. The city, on the other hand, has better schools. But good roads under the present system are impossible, for the farming towns are not increasing in wealth and they have been building roads for the last hundred years. If a hundred years are not long enough to demonstrate the utility of the system, a thousand would not. The single tax would of necessity make all but the city towns pay for the roads, and relieve the farm of an inequitable burden.

So too with the schools. These should be supported by the state on a general levy of one percent on the value of all land, and the money distributed to all towns and cities alike, on the basis of the children of school age in each.

Inasmuch as the single tax contemplates the raising of all revenues, national, state, county, and town from land values alone, we may be sure that those values are sufficient for the purpose. Mineral and coal lands, lumber lands, and gold and silver mines never pay any royalty to the state. Under the single tax they would do so. Railroads and local trolley roads, gas works, electric light and power companies, telephone companies, and other franchises, the most valuable property they own. They are a species of land value, and would be reached by the single tax. But without injustice or inequality mining and lumber lands pay royalties now to the landowner, and these other natural monopolies exact the full value for the benefit of their stockholders. Under the single tax these revenues would go to the state. Those who wish further information should read Henry George's Progress and Poverty and Natural Taxation, by Thomas G. Shearman, New York.

Mention was made of a banquet to be given by the Massachusetts Single Tax League to a dozen or more of the leading members of husbandry, and of gold and silver mines, at the American House, Boston, January 7, members of the club being invited to attend.

It was voted to begin at next meeting, Dec. 1st, the consecutive reading of Progress and Poverty, taking for that evening the introduction and first two chapters.

WABAN.

—Mr. Blatchford was in town Tuesday.

—Mrs. W. S. Goodwin returned from New York Saturday.

—Mr. A. E. Phelps has changed his law office to 9 Park street, Boston.

—Mr. F. S. Small moves into his new house on Grafton street, Wednesday.

—Mr. Owen Hill, the hackman at the depot, is to place a new carriage here next week.

—Mr. C. M. Culver returned last Saturday from a two weeks' hunting on Mt. Washington.

—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Locke attended the funeral of Mrs. Benjamin Newall, Monday, at Newton Upper Falls.

—It is hoped that a large gathering will attend the pie party at Mrs. De L. Shepley's this Friday evening. All are assured of a good time.

—Mr. Louis K. Harlow spoke before a gentlemen's club at Hartford, Conn., last evening, illustrating by several drawings. His theme was "The Home of Evangelism."

—Letters remaining in the post office: Mary Coffin, Moses Stevens, Mr. John M. Moore, C. E. Palmer, A. J. Lyman, Chas. Irwin, Mrs. A. Williams and Carrie McIntosh.

—The parties who have been striving for more lights for this place have had their efforts rewarded. Some of the lights with several incandescents, are to be added to the present number.

—The foot ball game scheduled for Wednesday between the Waban school eleven and the Newton Centre eleven, was postponed on account of the inability of the Newton Centre team.

—A large force of men is at work on Mr. W. C. Strong's new block, and already the first floor is laid. Contractor McMillen of Newton Highlands is doing the wood work and Contractor Seaborn of Auburndale the brick work.

—Mrs. S. W. Doe, who has been spending several months with her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Phelps, has returned to her home in Cambridge. She is almost eighty-eight years old, but remarkable, both mentally and physically, for one of her age.

—It is rumored that Mr. R. H. White, Jr., of Boston, has leased Mr. A. I. Foster's new house on Waban avenue. It is a very pretty house and nicely located. Mr. Foster will commence very soon the erection of another house. He has had men at work all summer clearing his property and now has got some very good house lots.

—Last Friday evening a musicale was held at Mrs. B. S. Cloutman's for the benefit of the church, and though the night was very stormy the affair was very successful. A large attendance was present and greatly enjoyed the vocal and instrumental music which was rendered by the different artists. About fifty dollars proved its success.

—On Thursday evening, Nov. 13th, at the Woodward homestead, a very beautiful birthday party was given in honor of Fred R. Woodward. Progressive whist was participated in by the company present, after which a collation was served. The evening ended by a "cat in the hat" enjoyed by all present and particularly by one member. The whist prizes were in pairs and were captured by Mrs. E. R. Rand and Mr. H. S. Wayne.

HYSTERIC.

Women Should Understand This Strange Nervous Derangement.

A Symptom of Something Far More Serious—Mrs. Harris, of Beaver Springs, Relates Her Experience.

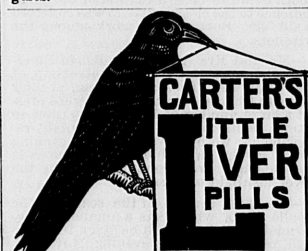

The spasm at top of wind-pipe, or in bronchial tubes, the "ball rising in the throat," violent beating of the heart; laughing and crying by turns; muscular spasms; throwing the arms about, etc., tell of a derangement of the female system.

Any female complaint may produce hysterics, which must be regarded as a symptom only. The cause, whatever it may be, yields quickly.

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It acts at once upon the organ affected, and the nerve centers; removes the cause, and dispels effectually the symptoms.

Mrs. Harris relates her experience for the benefit of others.

"I had been sick with ulceration of the womb, causing all kinds of disagreeable experiences, such as irritability, sleeplessness, faintness, and at times hysterics. My physician said it was the worst case he ever had. My back ached, leucorrhoea very profuse, and I had a severe bearing-down pain. The physicians thought I should never recover, and as the last remedy, they procured my Vegetable Compound. I had not taken more than one-fourth of a bottle, before I was more comfortable. I continued its use, also the Sanative Wash, and Liver Pills. After using four bottles, I was able to be out, and do almost all my work. I think the Vegetable Compound is the only medicine that will cure female complaints, and it will reach the worst cases in a very short time. I know it saved my life."—MRS. M. HARRIS, Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania. All druggists.

NONANTUM.

—The Chinese Laundry in Stuart's block has changed managerial hands.
—Mr. William Davis has taken a position at Yerxa's grocery on Watertown street.
—Mr. Bond of the Boston Traveller office will address the Buelah Baptist mission next Sunday.
—Joseph Murphy, who has been confined at the Newton Hospital suffering with diphtheria has recovered and returned to his home.
—Monday morning several cans of milk were stolen from the front of Yerxa's store. The theft occurred between 4 and 6 o'clock. The police are working on the case.
—Saturday afternoon a large and enthusiastic crowd witnessed a lively game of football on Stearn's field between the Garden city football club and a picked eleven. The former won by a score of 10 to 0.
—The directors of the Free Library have not yet established the agency for the winter, which was formerly at Mr. Kinder's store. It is said that there is a lively competition among several storekeepers for this prize.
—Rebecca Selmen, 14 years old, living at the corner of West and Watertown streets, fell over a chair and broke her leg while playing with companions at her home last Friday. She was taken to the hospital in the city ambulance.
—The following officers were chosen at the business meeting of the Lowery Y. P. S. C. E., last Tuesday evening: Pres., Mr. Christopher Morrow; Vice-Pres., Miss Edith Chapman; Cor. Sec'y., Miss Lottie Frye; Rec. Sec'y., Miss Florence Butterfield; Treas., Miss Lizzie Frye.
—Mrs. Julia Lane, wife of Michael Lane and one of the oldest residents of this place, died last week Tuesday at her home on Watertown street, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Lane was born in Waltham 63 years ago and with her family had resided on Watertown street over 25 years. She leaves a husband and a grown up family of four daughters and one son. The funeral was held Thursday morning from the Church of Our Lady on Washington street, and the interment was at Waltham.
—The "enterprising" correspondent of a local paper says that police surveillance in this district would be insured if a patrol box was placed at the corner of Rustic and California street. This is certainly not a compliment to the efficient squad stationed in Nonantum, and shows clearly that the writer either labored under a misapprehension or was trying to "roast" the officers patrolling that section. If the latter, it fell short of its mark and to any one acquainted with police affairs in this district, it was decidedly funny. Prejudiced people are often led to say some very foolish things.

—Mr. Fred Foss, who has been ill, is slowly recovering.
—Miss Penola Foster is having an addition built to her house on Adams street.
—The Y. P. S. C. E. meeting at the North Evangelical church last Sunday evening was led by Mrs. Alexander Blue.
—William Connelly, who was the victim of an assault at Newton two weeks ago, has been discharged from the hospital and is reported as recovering.
—A horse attached to a light buggy, the property of Antonio Narimano, which had been left standing in front of a store on Watertown street, ran away last Friday and badly damaged the vehicle before it was stopped.
—About 6.15 last Sunday evening Sergt. Clay and Officers McAleer, Lucy, and Costello broke up a wedding celebration which was taking place in the rear of Watertown street block and which rudely disturbed the usual Sunday quiet of this place. Nine men were arrested and in court Monday were charged with disturbing the peace. They were found guilty and their fines and bail money amounted to $90.
—At present there are in progress some needed improvements, which are greatly appreciated in this part of Greater Newton. Work has been commenced on the reconstruction of Dabry street, which is to be repaved the entire length. The Jackson school-house yard has been covered with fine gravel and new walks placed in the yard. The grounds about the engine house are to be covered with concrete except portions which will be left for the planting of shade trees or flowers.
—Much complaint has been heard of late among real estate dealers in this section who have lost considerable by the failure of their tenants to pay rent. It seems to be quite the thing with a certain class to frequently change their residences and "stick" the unsuspecting landlord. Apparently there is no remedy unless the property owners form a sort of protection league. One family who had failed to pay several weeks' rent was warned out and after they had left another family moved in without knowledge of owner or agent. Another family refused to pay and insisted upon using the wooden partitions in the cellar for kindling wood. This was stopped with the assistance of a policeman. Several cases of this kind have been reported and are quite general. Meaningless rent tate people will continue to lose unless some prompt and severe measures are taken.
The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could be had for less. For sale at 20 cents per bottle by A. Hudson, Newton; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton Centre; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

Newton Club Bowling.

Two matches in the Newton Club handicap team tournament were played off on the club alleys, Monday evening. The new 12-inch spaces troubled the players, and low scores were the rule. Team 9 won from team 1, and team 6 from team 8. The scores:

Six weeks ago I suffered with a very severe cold; was almost unable to speak. My friends all advised me to consult a physician. Noticing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised in the St. Paul Volks Zeitung I procured a bottle, and after taking it a short while was entirely well. I now most heartily recommend this remedy to anyone suffering with a cold. WM. KEIL, 678 Selby Ave., St. Paul, Minn. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton Centre; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

High School Notes.

The battalion will have two entertainments this winter, besides its regular prize drills.
Much praise is due to the High school chorus who sang at the Eliot Memorial last Wednesday afternoon.
Much complaint is heard at the lack of enthusiasm on the part of scholars while attending one of the foot ball games and it is said to be partly responsible for some of the poor plays made lately. The boys feel considerably the need of encouragement and each scholar should feel it his duty to be present at the game and "root" for the home team.
A change in the course of study has been made in the freshman class and instead of Algebra five times a week the pupils have French or German twice, and Algebra twice.
The foot ball game with Somerville was postponed until Thursday afternoon at Tufts oval, Somerville. Although the visitors showed up they could not play, as C. M. T. S. and "Hoppy" were playing on the grounds.

—There has been a decided improvement in the appearance of the Hemlock Gorge reservation since the work was commenced last summer under the supervision of Supt. H. H. Williams. Supt. Williams is very busy and has been since the beginning of summer. He is at present engaged in the removal of several old buildings which he hopes to have soon completed. When the entire work is finished, Newton Upper Falls can pride itself on possessing one of the handsomest parks, for its size, in the state.
—Mrs. Benjamin Newell, one of the oldest residents of this place, died last Sunday at her home on the corner of High and Boylston streets. Mrs. Newell had not been well for some time, having never fully recovered from the shock caused by the death of her husband a year ago. Mrs. Newell was 75 years old, and with her family had spent a greater part of her life in this part of the city. She had a large circle of friends. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Tucker, with whom she made her home. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, and the body removed to Dover for interment.
How to Prevent Croup.
Croup is a danger to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the very serious danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton; B. Billings, Newton Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton Centre; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J. H. Green, Newton Highlands.

"In vain! in vain!" Those who heard the young man's hopeless cry gathered about him and sought to help him. The human heart ever beats with a tender sympathy for those in sorrow. "In vain! in vain," he cried, in agonized tones. "What, dear, dear young man, asked a benevolent stranger, 'is in vain?' "The letter 'Y' he cried. Far up the street a pin fell with a clink, sickening thud, and the crowd, hearing it, moved on in search of a new excitement.—N. Y. World.

—A large crowd attended the football game between the Cambridge Manual Training school and the Boston Latin school teams. The game was not as lively as was expected as the former club had a walk over from the start. The score, Cambridge, 34, Boston Latin, 0.

—About 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a young lady while riding a bicycle through the upper square was thrown from her wheel in attempting to turn out and avoid colliding with a team. Her face was badly cut and she received severe bruises. She was taken to a drug store and her wounds dressed. She refused to give her name.

—For a week past a party of mischievous boys in the Thompsonville district have been amusing themselves by breaking the globes of incandescent lights. The police have the names of the boys concerned and several arrests will probably soon be made. If the offenders are brought into court they will be severely punished.

—The alarm from box 73, Tuesday noon, was for a fire in the yard in the rear of Mrs. Geary's house on Gibbs street, and was unnecessary. The firemen were misinformed by a small boy who said the house was burning. When the alarm arrived they found a pile of leaves burning briskly. The blaze was soon extinguished.

—The concert under the direction of Mrs. Geo. F. Spaulding, at the Unitarian church, Wednesday evening, was largely attended. The artists were Miss Caroline Gardner Clark, soprano; Miss Katherine Ricker, contralto; Mr. Clarence E. Hay, baritone; Mr. Herbert Thayer, tenor; Mr. John Orth, pianist; and Miss Evelyn Benedict, accompanist. All the numbers were given with fine artistic spirit and were heartily received by the large audience. Frequent encores were graciously responded to. Mr. Orth's selections for the piano were in his usual thoughtful and skillful manner, and the solo parts were most happily rendered. The singing of Mrs. Spaulding's new song, "Which is the way to Sleepy Town," by Miss Clark, was a charming incident. This song was dedicated to Miss Clark. The quartet at the close was full of life and had to be repeated.

—Union Thanksgiving services will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church on Thanksgiving Day, commencing at 10 a. m. and lasting for a brief hour. All will thus be able to attend. The order of the service will be that of a platform meeting with short addresses by the pastors of the churches and others. All are cordially invited.

—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Anthony, Kenilworth street, was the scene of a quiet home wedding, Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, the contracting parties, both of Boston, being Miss Ruby J. Bigney and Mr. Thomas P. Sutherland, a brother of Mrs. Anthony. The Rev. Arthur Bonner officiated. The bride was prettily attired in a gown of pearl white silk. Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland will make their home in Nova Scotia.

—On Tuesday evening Mrs. William Brooklesley gave a recital at her home. The artists were Mrs. Allen, pianist, Mr. Parker, tenor. It was a rare musical treat and much enjoyed by those fortunate enough to be among the listeners. Mrs. Brooklesley is an artist of unusual ability. She rendered her own compositions with power and skill. She is a woman of considerable note in the musical world and convinced her audience that she was deserving of the high praise afforded her.

—At the residence of Charles E. Clark, on Columbus street, last Wednesday evening, occurred a pretty home wedding, the contracting parties being Miss Jennie Parsons, sister of Mrs. Clark, and Mr. Albert J. Noble of Brookline, Mass. Miss Edith E. Jewkes was maid of honor, and wore a becoming gown of pink and white organdie. Mr. Arthur Parker of Dedham, a cousin of the groom, acted as best man. The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of tiny white muslin, trimmed with valenciennes lace, and carried bride roses. The Rev. George G. Phipps performed the ceremony. A collation was served, and at an early hour, amid a shower of rice and good wishes, the newly made pair departed for their home in Brookline.

—Mr. Charles H. Guild died at his home on Lincoln street, Tuesday evening. He was three times elected a representative to the State Legislature from Somerville. For more than a quarter of a century he was engaged in the leather business as a member of the firm of Chester Guild & Sons at the Charlestown Neck. He retired from active business life in 1876, and devoted his time to the study and collection of rare books. He removed from Somerville to Newton Highlands about nine years ago. His kindly interest and genial disposition endeared him to his neighbors, and he has made many warm friends in his new home. His widow and one son survive him. The funeral services took place at his late residence today at 1 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Havens officiated. Interment at Mt. Auburn.

—The mother of Arthur Morse died yesterday of cancer. She was 72 years old. Funeral services at the home on Cedar street tomorrow at 1.30.

—Dr. Howard H. Russell, the national superintendent of the American Anti-Saloon League, has been secured to come and deliver one of his great temperance addresses in the M. E. church, next Wednesday evening. Admission free. Everybody invited.

TRICKS OF MEMORY.

Some Amusing Tricks the Capricious Jade Has Played.

Some one has forcibly remarked that proper names escape from the memory as easily as greased pigs and illustrates the remark with an anecdote concerning Joe Jefferson, who never forgot his lines, but has an imperfect recollection of names.

Jefferson had been introduced to General Grant at a time when that distinguished soldier was the lion of the social world, and the popular actor was much impressed with the personality of the hero. A few hours later, as he went up in his hotel elevator, a rugged looking man, with a military bearing, bowed pleasantly to him and made an observation regarding the speed of the elevator, when Jefferson said: "I beg your pardon. Your face is very familiar, but I cannot recall your name."

"Grant," was the laconic but perfectly courteous reply.

"I got off at the wrong floor," said Jefferson, "for fear I would ask him next if he had ever been in the war."

A favorite trick of a capricious memory is to substitute some other name for the one wanted, a process due to assimilation. A couple of ladies on a Chicago street car asked the conductor to leave them at Pennsylvania avenue.

"There is no such avenue in this suburb," said the conductor.

"But there certainly is," reiterated the ladies. "We have friends living there and ought to know."

"Perhaps you mean Keystone avenue?" suggested a passenger, and they said that was just what they did mean, but they knew it had something to do with Pennsylvania, which was impressed upon their memories as the Keystone State.

Jefferson did worse than to forget the names of other people—he sometimes forgot his own. He called at a postoffice in a small place and asked the clerk: "Any mail for me?"

"What name?"

"Name? Good gracious, I don't know! Let me think. Why, I am to play 'Rip Van Winkle' tonight at your hall!"

"Joe Jefferson?" suggested the clerk.

"Yes, Jefferson—certainly. Thanks!" and, receiving his mail, the actor went away happy.

A good story is told of an excellent woman who had this fatal faculty of mis-constructing names. Her daughter was expecting a call from a gentleman and also impressed upon her mother the fact that his name was a very simple one and easy to remember—Cordery. The mother repeated it until she was sure she could not possibly forget it, and on the evening when he called hurried forward to meet him, saying graciously:

"How are you, Mr. Drycow?"—Chicago Times-Herald.

THE RETIRED BURGLAR.

A Lesson That He Learned in the Earlier Stages of His Career.

"When I turned my light along the top of a bureau in a house that I was in one night," said the retired burglar, "it made me laugh—jewelry till you couldn't rest; earrings and pins and bracelets, and I don't know what not, and now and then a diamond. How anybody could ever have been so everlastingly careless as to leave that stuff around that way I couldn't see. I let my lamp fall on the diamonds again and looked at 'em sparkle, and I looked at the gold things again shining in the light, and then I set my lamp down and opened my bag and began gathering in the things. There was enough right there, and I wasn't going to take any more risks. I just scooped in the stuff and got out."

"Next day, in the cold daylight, I looked it over. It was gilt, every bit of it, and the diamonds were glass. It may seem strange to you that I should have been so easily taken in, but I was new in the business, and the stuff did look beautiful."

"There's an old story about a new burglar who carried off a backlog of silverware. The stuff was new, too, and it looked like the real thing. There was so much of it that he had the greatest time you ever heard of getting it out through the cellar window, and when he got it home he found it all plated. Actually, for him, it wasn't worth carrying off."

"I never made that mistake. I suppose in the first year or two I was out I broke off more teapots spoons and busted more sugar tongs than you could count, but here I am taken in by a lot of sham jewelry. It only goes to show that a man may be mighty sharp about some things and not so sharp about others."—New York Sun.

—The work of tearing down the old depot is nearly completed. On this site, a little nearer the proposed Centre place bridge, will be erected the new station which, it is promised, will be one of the finest of the kind in the State. The old building was erected in 1868 and was at that time considered the best way station on the main line. It cost $22,000. Station Agent George H. Fiske was then in charge. It was succeeded by Mr. John D. Morgan who was then his clerk. Mr. Morgan has held the position for nearly twenty years.

—A complimentary dinner to S. S. Curry, Ph. G., dean of the school of expression, was given Wednesday evening by the students of the school at the Parker House, Boston. A reception was held in the parlors of the hotel from 5 to 6.30 o'clock, at which Dr. Curry received congratulations from his students and from the numerous guests. At the banquet Miss Martha S. Evans officiated as toastmaster. The guests of the occasion were Rev. George Shinn, D. D., Dr. Alvah Hovey, T. C. Evans, N. J. Rust, William Warner, and others.

—Shortly before 6 o'clock Tuesday evening two young ladies while crossing Washington street at the end of Thornton, were knocked down by a horse driven on an express wagon. One of the young ladies received a severe cut in the back of the head and the other escaped unhurt. The driver stopped to offer his assistance, but as this was declined he drove on. The young ladies refused to give their names. The street at this corner is very dark and the need of an incandescent lamp is plainly shown by this accident. It is said that the residents of that section are preparing a petition to present to the city council.

—Miss Lillian Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Seabury Bowen, and Mr. Henry Herbert Applin of Newton were married Tuesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents on Chestnut street, Watertown, by Rev. Mr. Capen of that place. The brides were Miss George C. Applin and William A. Sampson of Newton. The bride was gowned in white cord silk with trimmings of pearl and mousseline de soie. She carried a bunch of white roses. An informal reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Applin will reside on Oliver street, Watertown.

—The little engine that hauls the long dirt train up from the ditch over the Centre street crossing never fails to draw a crowd to watch the performance. It generally takes at least three trials to get the train up the steep grade, but the plucky little engine never gives up, although it makes a great fuss about it. Judging from appearances, it will run many weeks before the Centre street crossing is closed to the public. The piers of the Richardson and Church street bridges are about completed, and the bridges will soon be placed upon the car at Newton. The two men followed him up Washington street. When at the corner of Jewett street one of

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

SPECIAL SESSION OF THE BOARD FRIDAY EVENING—MR. MINER'S INCREASE REFUSED—ENTIRE APPROPRIATION INCREASED TO $668,571.02.

The board of aldermen met in special session Friday evening to complete their consideration of the appropriation budget for '97. In the absence of Mayor Cobb, Chairman Degen presided. Aldermen Downs, Green, Allen, White and Tolman being present. After action had been taken on several minor matters the board went into a committee of the whole with President Degen as chairman. At the conclusion of the meeting the appropriation had increased to $668,571.02. The question of Mr. Miner's salary was brought up for discussion. To place it before the board, Alderman Downs moved that it be increased to $1500. It was seconded by Alderman White. The latter stated his position in regard to the amount, and gave a brief review of the action of the committees and the board. "I am not trying to cut down any officer's salary," he said. Alderman Downs's motion was voted down. A motion that Mr. Miner's salary remain at $1000 passed.

The question of extra appropriation for clerical assistance in the assessor's office was explained as necessary by Alderman Green. It was to cover the amount expended in getting out the tax bills. On Alderman Green's motion the amount for clerical assistance in the assessor's office was raised from $2400 to $3800 an increase of $1400.

The printing appropriation which had been out at $4,000 by the council, and placed at $3500 by the upper board, was raised to the original figure of $4,000. This was done after it had been explained that the average appropriation for the last seven years had been about $4,000.

Alderman Degen said before an adjournment had been taken he would like to have the appropriation for the Newton Centre reading room increased $50, making it $800. There was no opposition and Alderman White's motion to that effect passed without discussion.

ORDERS AND PETITIONS

were presented and acted upon as follows: an order for the laying out of Ruthven road, adopted; for the construction of concrete sidewalks on Willard avenue, adopted; appropriating $4,000 for the care of poor out of almshouse, adopted; appropriating $9,000 for the widening, straightening and depressing of Laundry brook from Pearl street to Boyd's pond, adopted; for the construction of concrete sidewalks on sundry streets, adopted; for the laying out of Cheesecake boulevard from Watertown to Eddy street, adopted; for the laying out of Hobart road and Montvale terrace, adopted; for concrete crossings on River street, adopted.

A petition was received from Louis Vachon, who asked that he be licensed to keep and sell gunpowder, fireworks and fireworks. Referred to the license committee. Petition for the construction of concrete sidewalks on Newtonville avenue, Ridge avenue and Washington street, referred to the highway committee. Petition of A. C. Foster for one street lamp on Waban road. Referred to the street light committee.

The claims committee reported on the claim of Annie French, asking damages for the injury of her property on Parsons street by a heavy charge of powder used in street construction, recommending that the petitioner be granted leave to withdraw. A communication was received from W. F. Gammons, claiming damages for injuries received by the falling of a stone in the Cheesecake brook construction. Board adjourned at 8:15.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

TO BE HELD AT THE CLAFIN SCHOOL NEXT MONDAY.

A teachers' institute under the direction of the state board of education will be held in the Clafin school building, Newtonville, Monday, Nov. 30, 1896.

The high school teachers will be addressed at the new Petre building, West Newton, on consecutive days by Prof. J. K. Lord of Dartmouth College, and one or more other speakers; dates are not fixed.

This Will Please Children.

A large picnic and recreation ground is to be laid out at the Auburndale end of the Newton boulevard. A syndicate made up of people interested in the Commonwealth Avenue Street Railway, has purchased some ten acres of land, formerly the Holbrook estate, and will improve it. The grounds will be arranged to accommodate picnic parties and various amusements will be introduced. Of course, the object is to bring patronage to the street railway, it being believed that it will be possible to attract many Bostonians, who will, for a 10-cent fare, get a 10-mile ride with pleasant grounds for an outing at the end of it. The land fronts on Auburn street and through it runs the boulevard. It also has a long stretch of river bank close by and north of Weston bridge.

How to Prevent Croup.

SOME READING THAT WILL PROVE INTERESTING TO MOTHERS. HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THE DISEASE.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, first symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it take cold very easily and croup is almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness; this is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given all tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even after the croupy cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by A. Hudson, Newton, B. Boulevards Pay.

(Boston Herald.)

Newton is the latest city to realize the fact that money spent in parks and boulevards comes right back in increased valuations of adjacent property, and more than pays the bills. It is thus everywhere and always.

COMMON COUNCIL.

MEETING OF BOTH BRANCHES MONDAY EVENING—BUDGET DISPOSED OF.

The annual appropriation budget was finally passed by both boards of the city council after protracted debate in both the upper and lower branches. The appropriation for the assessors department was the principal point of contention, and Mr. Miner was finally granted his increase of salary, the council receding from its position.

The council first took up the consideration of the budget in committee of the whole with Pres. Wing in the chair. On motion of Councilman Cranitch the council concurred with the aldermen in making the salary of assistant assessors $5 per day instead of $4 as voted at the last meeting.

When the appropriation for clerk of the assessors came up Councilman Davis stated that if salaries were to be raised the principal assessors should be employed all the time. There should be some person in authority in the office all the time. Newton was paying more than other cities for its assessors department, and although Mr. Miner was an exceedingly competent official he did not favor the increase.

Councilman Bailey suggested that, if Mr. Miner was to resign on account of the refusal of the city council to raise his salary, this would be a good time to begin retrenchment in the office.

To bring the matter before the council, Councilman Sprague moved that three principal assessors be employed during the entire year at $1500 each. The motion was lost. Councilman Cranitch moved that Mr. Miner's salary as clerk of the board be made $1500. This motion was lost 8 to 2. The appropriation for clerical assistance in the assessors office after a long discussion, the council voted to concur with the aldermen. On motion of Councilman Parker it was voted to increase the appropriation of $800 for the Newton Centre reading room. The appropriation for printing after some discussion was increased to $4000 in consequence.

The public property appropriation was reduced from $15,000 to $13,000, including $1000 to be expended on the almshouse.

The council refused to make the salary of the paymaster $800, leaving the question of his ability to be decided by the treasurer, and established the salary at $1000 in non-concurrence. The salary of the assistant treasurer was established at $1800. The board of aldermen came together at 9:45 with Alderman White absent. A petition of Otis Pettee and others for additional protection at Upper Falls was referred to the police committee. George and John Ward were referred to the highway committee on petition for the abatement of flowage nuisance on Grant avenue, and the Walnut Hills land company was referred to the same committee on petition for abatement of street watering tax assessed on land on Commonwealth avenue.

The Newton and Boston street railway company petitioned for a track location on the laundry brook boulevard, crossing the street to connect with the highway centering in the square, and was referred to the street railway committee. An order was adopted providing for the extension of the laundry brook boulevard from Pearl street to Boyd's pond at a cost of $3000.

When the appropriation budget was taken up the board refused to make the appropriation the same as the council for clerical services in the assessors' department. On motion of Alderman Downs the appropriation for the salary of the clerk of the board was made $1500, and for clerical assistance $2200. The appropriations made by the council in other matters under consideration were allowed to stand. The order went back to the council and that body unanimously voted to recede from its position, and to concur with the aldermen. The order finally passed both boards making the appropriation for the year $668,571.02.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough Remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop., St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinsville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it to his family, and that he would rather have it than any other remedy, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. Free Trial Bottles at J. G. ALLENS 24, FISH ACADEMY 0.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR WEST NEWTON SCHOOL TO ADD TO ITS MANY.

Fish Academy was outclassed Monday in the second game with the Allen school. At only one point in the game did the academy boys show any team work. This was when they secured the ball by a fumble of the Allen quarterback on the academy's three-yard line.

By successive rushes through the center the ball was worked to the center of the field. Here Allen gained the ball on downs, and successfully carried it across their opponent's goal line, for the only touchdown of the second half. The final score was 24 to 0.

This makes the seventh game played by the Allen school. It has been beaten by only one team this season, Mr. Underwood of the Institute of Technology has done wonders for the school in the capacity of coach. The summary:

NEWTON'S BOULEVARD.

THE PROJECTORS HOLD A CELEBRATION AT THE WOODLAND PARK HOTEL.

About 20 gentlemen, guests of the Newton boulevard syndicate, enjoyed the hospitality of the Woodland Park Hotel at Auburndale, on Saturday afternoon. The party started from the Tremont House, Boston, in a special parlor car of the West End company at 1:30 o'clock, and was conveyed out over the Beacon street boulevard, and thence through Brookline, whence they were transferred back to the terminus of the line at the junction with the Newton boulevard at Chestnut Hill Reservoir. From the latter point a special car of the Newton boulevard was taken, and the party traversed the Newton boulevard as far as its present terminus at Auburndale. After the banquet at the Woodland Park Hotel remarks were made by the president of the Newton boulevard syndicate, Mr. A. D. S. Bell, Dana Estes, Judge George A. Blaney, Col. A. A. Rand, Mr. Chandler of Brookline and others. The gathering was one of justification over the practical completion of the Newton boulevard, which has so far proved so very satisfactory to the gentlemen who inaugurated it, Judge Robert R. Bishop and Messrs. Dana Estes and A. D. S. Bell, and the taxpayers of the city of Newton, who have found it to be a paying investment for Newton, and a great improvement.

Among the topics touched upon by Mr. Bell in his after-dinner talk was the question of better transportation facilities in Boston. He pointed out that in this matter the city and its suburbs were one, and that the prosperity of one meant that of all. Special attention was called to the conditions of travel between Park square and Park street, where the streams of vehicles and people from several streets were turned into Boylston and Tremont streets. The subway, while it would doubtless relieve those streets to a great extent, in Mr. Bell's opinion would not solve the problem entirely. He strongly advocated taking a strip from the Common on Boylston street, and if possible on Tremont street. It could be done now very easily and was greatly needed.

In the general discussion that followed, Dana Estes, Alfred D. Chandler and Col. Dana A. Rand, among others, were strongly in favor of the improvement, it being argued that it was needed and that public opinion should be roused to demand it. Many felt that unless this widening of Boylston street was obtained the necessity of the widening of Columbus avenue through the heart of the Common.

Another subject of general interest discussed was that of boulevard building. Mr. Estes recounted the history of the Newton boulevard and expressed himself strongly in favor of making such improvements by means of private initiative. That is, an agreement should be made among the land owners to give their land and otherwise assist the city, instead of the city's taking the land and having to stand by for damages with the very unsatisfactory betterment system to recoup it for the expenditure.

By the way, it may be of interest to the taxpayers of Newton to learn that the increase in the land valuations along the boulevard is already large enough to pay for the interest on the boulevard construction bonds and provide a sinking fund for their redemption. The widening of the avenue and new houses are erected along the boulevard, making it a money-making point of view.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed, it causes a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of the tube, the hearing will remain in a bad condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will cure your deafness, if you have any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Campello, 2, N. A. A., 20.

In a drizzly rain and on a field covered with slimy mud, the Newton A. A., and Campello football teams battled Saturday afternoon at Brockton. Newton had an advantage in weight and a splendid interference which, combined with magnificent work by Draper, enabled them to win. He made all four touchdowns after sensational runs of from 40 to 65 yards each. He went once around each end and twice through left tackle. With the exception of their inability to stop Draper, the Campellos played a strong game, contesting every inch pluckily, and once forcing Newton to a safety. Draper, Gallagher, Paul, Sears and Harris for Newton, and Holmes, Maguire, Mair, Cabot, Morrill and Bolling for Campello played especially well. The summary:

Harper's Weekly

With the end of 1896 HARPER'S WEEKLY will have lived forty years. In that time it has participated with all the zeal and power at its command in the great political events of the most interesting and important period in the history of the country, and it has spread before its readers the accomplishments of science, arts, and letters for the instruction of the human mind and the amelioration of human conditions and of manners.

What the WEEKLY has been in its spirit and purpose, as these have been manifested principally in its editorial pages, it will continue to be.

It is impossible to announce with precision all that the WEEKLY will contain during the year 1897. It were as easy to announce what is about to happen in the world, what triumphs for good or evil, what are to be won, what advances of the people are to be made, what is to be the outcome of the continuous struggle between the spirits of war and peace, what is to happen in the far East, what is to be the state of Europe twelve months hence, what new marvels of science are to be revealed, or what are to be the achievements of arts and letters, for the WEEKLY is to be a pictorial record of all this.

CARTOONS will continue to be a feature. SERIAL STORIES, A New England story by Miss MARY E. WILKINS, will begin in January. A tale of a Greek uprising against the Turks, by Mr. E. F. BENSON, the author of "Dodo," will follow. A sequel to "The House-Boat on the Styx," by Mr. JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, illustrated by Mr. PETER NEWELL.

MORE SHORT STORIES will appear in the WEEKLY than it has been possible to publish during 1896.

DEPARTMENTS: Mr. W. E. HOWELL'S "Life and Letters" have been among the most charming features of the WEEKLY. The WEEKLY will continue to present to its readers the world's news most interesting to Americans, to make important advances in both the literary and the pictorial art, and to retain for itself the leading place in the illustrated journalism of the world.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.

FICTION: THE MARTIAN, the new novel by DU MURIER, the eagerly expected successor to "Trilby," begun in October, 1896, with illustrations from the author's drawings. A new novel by FRANK R. STOCKTON—developing a Twentieth Century Renaissance—full of humorous situations and characteristically illustrated. A PAIROP PATIENT LOVES, by WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS. Other striking novelettes by AMERICAN authors. Short stories by MARK TWAIN, THOMAS NELSON PAGE, RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, and others. SCIENCE: THE PROGRESS OF SCIENCE during the Nineteenth Century, a series of papers by Dr. HENRY SMITH WILLIAMS, supplemented by contributions on special subjects by expert scientists. When the relations of curious physiological manifestations to physiology by Dr. ANDREW WILSON.

AMERICAN FEATURES: THE MEXICO OF TO-DAY, a series by CHARLES F. LUMMIS, splendidly illustrated; the result of a recent visit to Mexico undertaken for HARPER'S MAGAZINE. Mexico is pre-eminently a silver-producing country, and its monetary operations rest entirely on silver basis. Owing to the keen discussion of certain economic problems in connection with issues of urgent importance in America, these papers will command general attention. AMERICAN HISTORICAL PAPERS by WOODROW WILSON, JOHN BACH MACMASTER, and JAMES BAINES. The true story of SHERIDAN'S RIDE, by Gen. G. E. FORTY. Continuation of HOWELL'S PERSONAL REMINISCENCES of eminent literary Americans. AFRICA AND THE EAST: WHITE MOUNTAINS, a fully illustrated series of papers by FORTNEY BULLOCK, the result of personal observations during a recent trip to Africa, covering the whole field of European exploitation of that country. Illustrated articles by STEPHEN BONSAI, on the transformations going on in EASTERN SIBERIA, recently visited by the author. HUNGARIAN SKETCHES, written and drawn by E. HOPKINSON SMITH. The full story of the recent Coronation of the Czar, by RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, illustrated by R. CATON WOODVILLE, who was commissioned by Queen Victoria to paint a picture of the ceremony.

A Royal Kitchen.

VIEW OF QUEEN VICTORIA'S KITCHEN AT WINDSOR CASTLE.

All the roasts and joints served on the Royal Table at Windsor Castle are cooked on a spit before the fire.

The whole secret of the process lies in surrounding the meat with a circulation of live air instead of shutting it up in a tight oven where the stifling atmosphere ruins the delicate process of roasting.

The Wire Gauze Oven Door

takes the place of the spit in American kitchens, and allows a circulation of fresh, pure air through the oven and over the food.

The Wire Gauze Oven Door is used exclusively on the Hub Ranges, and the Hub Ranges are used exclusively by the Boston, New York and other Cooking Schools.

ANOTHER 49ER GONE.

Benjamin Burt, a California pioneer, and a member of the Boston and Newton Joint Stock Association, has passed over the river. He died on the 14th of October at his home in San Jose, California.

He was the son of Dea. Benjamin Burt of Freetown, Mass., and a brother of Mrs. Noah S. King and Mrs. David Hall of Newton Centre. He was a graduate of the State Normal school of Bridgewater, Mass., and just before starting for California was engaged in teaching school at Provincetown, Mass.

The Newton members of this association were Brackett Lord, D. J. Staples, Jesse Winslow, Charles Gould, George Winslow, Milo J. Ayers, W. H. Nichols, N. B. Loring, John F. Staples and Robert Coffey. Dr. Dean J. Locke of New Hampshire, a prominent member, died in California several years ago.

The association was composed of twenty-five members, each of whom contributed $300. Jesse Winslow of Newton Upper Falls was the treasurer and the oldest member of the company. Few of the members still survive.

It may be interesting to the residents of Newton of nearly half a century to live over again those days when these brave, noble, ambitious young men in the face of toil, suffering and uncertainty left friends and positions in the East in search for gold.

It may also interest the present generation to know something concerning the gold fever of 1849, and how emigrants got to California in those days. We all know something about the intense excitement of the presidential campaign through which we have just passed.

The news from the "gold diggings" was about as eagerly sought as election prospects have been. Every body was interested and excited, and that too, all over the country. The subject of gold was upon the lips of the young and of the old, but the land of the gold was thousands of miles away and no railroad had then been built across the country. How could our gold seekers get there? Some parties took the voyage of 16,000 miles in sailing vessels around Cape Horn; other parties went to the isthmus of Panama and ran their chances of getting passage in a sailing vessel up the Pacific coast.

But the Boston and Newton Joint Stock Association decided that they would take the almost unknown overland route after shipping their baggage and supplies around Cape Horn. They left Newton the latter part of April for Independence, Missouri, where they were to make preparations for the 2000 miles of prairie and mountain travel.

In passing through St. Louis one of the newspapers said of them, "No finer looking or nobler set of men have yet passed this way, and their conduct since they have been in our city proves them to be men of the true grit for an enterprise like this, every one of them." They were the "lower of the soundest laws of temperance."

In a letter sent East from Independence, Mo., dated May 7, 1849, Mr. Burt wrote: "We arrived here last Thursday morning, in four days from St. Louis and have been from Boston." As near as I can tell there are about 5000 emigrants here, and 10,000 at St. Joseph's. Some who have been here quite a long time have wasted their money in drinking and gambling and will return.

From St. Louis to this place we were annoyed by robbers. A member of our company while asleep on the cabin floor had his pocket rifled of $50. We now keep regular guard in camp; have two dogs with us. We think of taking with us a Spanish interpreter. We find the gold fever is on the increase as we go West. From the fourth to seven-eighths of those on the route are temperance, steady men; ministers, doctors and all classes of respectable citizens.

As we were obliged to travel on the Sabbath up the Missouri we had preaching by a Calvinist. This was the first Sabbath on which we travelled and it will be the last one. We shall keep the Sabbath as we would at home in New England. We are now 2000 miles from Boston, half way to San Francisco.

After spending about two weeks in Independence the company was ready to start on the 17th of May. They had purchased tents, four wagons, (one having springs in which to carry the sick, if need be), also forty mules and pack animals. They had dried pounds of provisions to each man were taken, but more than was needed. They averaged about 20 miles a day, resting Sundays. Ox-teams went slower. Other companies joined them in travelling for protection from Indians. Among them was that of William Jackson's son Edward, of Newton.

About one hundred persons usually travelled together. The Indians came around and wanted to trade, but were always peaceable when they saw strength of numbers. The men alternately walked and rode. Their property was guarded at night.

The first sad incident of the trip occurred near Fort Kearney on the Platte river. Here it was that George Winslow died after a few days of sickness. Mr. Burt, in a letter written at the time, described his burial in these words: "No useless coffin enclosed his breast, but wrapping his sheet around him after reading Scripture and having prayer, we consigned his lifeless clay to the cold ground, beyond the reach of the howling wolves around. How little do we know what is before us! In the midst of life we are in death."

Some of the way-grass was short as there were many thousands of emigrants on the road, but the mules could get along with very little food. For this reason they sold their horses before crossing the great 60 mile desert beyond Salt Lake City.

They spent a few days at this place boarding with the Indians. This city then contained 17,000 people, the houses being one story, and all being built of logs and clay.

Before entering the desert the party abandoned their wagons and packed their mules with food and water and grass. Many persons with ox-teams had to abandon everything and go on foot. The next climb was the Sierra Nevada. It was successfully made in the absence of rain or snow, which would cause the mules to slip.

After travelling 133 days from Independence the company arrived at Sacramento City on the 27th of Sept., all in good health and spirits. The first thing to do was to get their baggage and supplies at San Francisco.

This was a work of several days as the only way to go up and down the Sacramento river was by a sailing vessel, going when the wind and tide favored.

Mr. Burt was disappointed to get these goods. He said that he suffered more in returning from San Francisco than at any time during the overland trip. Another sadness occurred soon after the arrival of the company in California and before their dissolution.

Dr. Locke went prospecting in the mines and was taken sick.

Mr. N. B. Loring of Newton went to his assistance and was taken sick with lung fever and died.

Mr. Burt had to announce to Mrs. Loring the melancholy news of her husband's death.

Most of the emigrants to California intended to go to the "diggings" as soon as possible after arriving at Sacramento. That was the kind of business that nearly all had in mind. The nearest mines were about 30 miles from Sacramento.

The rainy season came on earlier than usual in 1849, and Sacramento, located at the junction of the Sacramento and American river, was inundated, thus causing much suffering and sickness among the waiting miners. It was spring before many of the immigrants could go to the "diggings." It is estimated that about 40,000 persons crossed the plains in 1849. Some experienced great hardships.

The Boston and Newton Joint Stock Association got along better, perhaps, than the average. After engaging in mining for a while the members sought various avocations, all being more or less successful. Some returned to their former homes.

It is generally believed that not less than 50,000 men were engaged in mining for gold at the end of 1850 and that twice that number were at work in 1852 and 1853.

At the time of their greatest productiveness (70-75), the Californian gold washings reached about sixty millions of dollars in value a year. At this time the "diggings" for gold were chiefly along the rivers, which were run by wooden flumes and the sand and gravel in the river beds were washed.

On the 7th of Sept., '50, a bill finally passed Congress admitting California as a state into the Union.

Soon after this Mr. Burt's brother, Mr. Simeon Burt, now of Philadelphia, started for California by the isthmus.

It seems that on the vessel that brought his brother was a young man who shortly after landing was attacked with cholera. Mr. Burt came to his rescue and cared for him till he himself was stricken down with this much dreaded and often fatal disease.

The brother during his voyage had taken precautions and had informed himself concerning this disease. He now, through a physician, acted as doctor and nurse for Mr. Burt, and so completely effected a cure that none of the bad after effects so common among the cured were ever experienced by him.

After five years in California Mr. Burt returned to the East, to carry back with him as his wife Miss Orilla Jones, daughter of Mr. Marshall Jones of Western, Mass.

Mrs. Burt, who was a graduate of the State Normal school of Bridgewater, Mass.

In Oct. '54, Mr. Burt took his bride to Andover county just before Jacob's band passed through that county murdering women and children. The day after the massacre the young bride rode horse back over the hills and mountains, caring for the dead and ministering to the wants of the disabled with the tenderness and sympathy of a true Christian woman.

In 1863 Mr. Burt made his next and last visit to the East, accompanied by his wife and three daughters. During the 47 years spent by him in California, a short portion was spent at Sutter Creek.

Later he was a ranch owner and also a merchant at Dry Town. From there he went to Amador City, where he lived till about 17 years ago, when he sold his property in order to reside permanently in San Jose.

On Saturday evening, Sept. 27th, Mr. and Mrs. Burt attended a re-union and banquet of the California Pioneers at San Jose. The occasion brought much enjoyment to the two pioneers. The next night Mrs. Burt was taken ill, pneumonia set in, and on Oct. 7th she passed away.

Before her funeral Mr. Burt was stricken down with the same disease and died Oct. 14th, just one week after his wife's death. The two funerals were at the same hour of the day, the same ministers officiated, the same hymns were sung and the same pallbearers were in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt left four daughters, all of whom reside in California.

Dandruff is an exudation from the pores of the skin that spreads and dries, forming scales and causing the hair to fall out. Hall's Hair Renewer cures it.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

THE WINDFALL.

There are few writers who know better what will interest boys than William O. Stoddard, author of "Crowded Out of O'Connell," and other popular books of adventure. They are all healthy, happy stories, told naturally and simply, yet with that touch of genius that makes them appeal to readers of all ages. His latest book, "The Windfall," has to do with a mining town in Pennsylvania, and the incidents attending a mine accident and also a great flood, and the two chief characters are a boy and a girl, who in the most natural way do some really wonderful things, and never seem to think that they are doing anything out of the common way. Besides these two there are a number of other characters who take an active part in the story, a faithful old Scotch miner, a civil engineer and his two intelligent dogs, a confirmed old croaker, the wife of a member of congress, and various relatives and neighbors of the boy and girl. The whole is wrought into a highly interesting story, which every boy and girl will be glad to read. How the boy went to the relief of the imprisoned miners, and how he escaped in his boat from his flooded home are incidents thrilling to think of, yet they are told in such a natural way as to seem but an ordinary occurrence. Stoddard's books are always safely recommended. The book, or any other of the same writer's would make a very popular holiday gift. Published by D. Appleton & Co. $1.50.

MIDSHIPMAN FARRAGUT.

In the series of Young Heroes of Our Navy, James Barnes has written of the boyhood life of Admiral Farragut. The story adheres closely to the facts known or recorded about the early life of the great admiral, as Mr. Barnes has drawn largely from the old records and journals kept by members of the family. The characters, with one exception, are historical, and such are the incidents that are mentioned. It is the early record of one of the greatest men in our history, and even as a boy, young Farragut showed evidence of the fortitude and knowledge that helped him to win such a high place in our history. Mr. Barnes has woven the facts into an interesting history, and one that will appeal to all boys who have any of that instinct of hero-worship, which very few outgrow even in later life. The book is an illustration of a charming one, relieved by the fact that the mother-in-law to be found "Its real convenient, bein' a Bowler" and a sufficient excuse for any amount of eccentricity. The companion story is a homely tale of love, cheerfulness and devotion, such as is often found in a country neighborhood, but whose pathos and beauty makes an indelible impression on the reader. Published in a dainty cover by Estes & Lauriat, 50 cents.

RODNEY STONE.

Admirers of Conan Doyle have been eagerly watching for his new book, which D. Appleton & Co. have just published under the above title. Dr. Doyle has made quite as great a success with the romantic novel as he did with the detective stories, which first made him famous. In this book the scene is laid in the time of the Georges, in the early days of the century, when England was at war with Napoleon, and the hero is the son of one of Nelson's favorite commanders. The Prince of Wales and Beau Brummel, the dandies of the day, are the heroes of the prize ring, and reappear in the pages of this stirring and fascinating romance. Every one knows the sanity and spirit of Dr. Doyle's work, and here he is at his best. He is dealing with a time which, despite its affectations, was full of virility and picturesque. Those were the palmy days of the coach, and the amateur whip was constantly in evidence. The race described in this romance will rank among the classics of its kind, and there are other episodes throughout the book which show that the author of "The White Company" has here excelled himself. It promises to be one of his most popular works, and the advance demand for copies is said to be very large. Published by D. Appleton & Co. $1.50.

—"Dan" O'Brien, a well known and faithful employee of the Boston & Albany for twenty-five years, was the sixth victim to meet his death in connection with the "Cape Cod" sinking, and was a boy, young man. He was at work with the big steam derrick of the B. & A. raising a flat car that had fallen down the bank at the Faneuil hall wharf. The derrick was toppled over him with it, he was badly scalded by the steam and also inhaled some. The accident occurred on Friday. Mr. O'Brien was taken to the hospital and died Saturday morning.

—The annual concert of the Congregational church, Sunday evening, Nov. 29th, is a chapel, Sunday evening. The annual concert is devoted largely to business, such as reports of officers, teachers, etc. The secretary and treasurer, Mr. David Parker, reported quite a successful year, over three hundred dollars has been distributed for various charitable purposes. Miss Mary Snow, the librarian, reported her department in good condition. Mrs. E. Almy made a very pleasing report of the primary department. Miss Lizzie Strong being absent. Mr. Arthur Kelly reported for the "Home" department. This class has grown quite rapidly. Mr. Carter gave a very interesting talk on his duties as superintendent the past two years and introduced his successor, Mr. J. Frank Ryder, who made his introductory remarks in a very feeling and earnest manner. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Southgate, spoke in very complimentary terms of the retiring superintendent, Mr. Carter, and urged the hearty support of the school for Mr. Ryder. A quartet, Mr. Waldo Cole, Mr. Ashenden, Miss Van Wagner and Miss Gertrude Young, contributed greatly to the pleasure of the concert.

—"Escaped being a confirmed dyspeptic by taking Ayer's Pills in time." This is the experience of many. Ayer's Pills, whether as an after-dinner pill or as a remedy for liver complaint, indigestion, flatulency, water brash, and nausea, are invaluable.

There is no joy in this world equal to the happiness of motherhood. A woman finds ample compensation for her trials and worries and labors in the soft, clinging little body nestling close to her own—in the trustful clinging of the little hands, and the love light in the little eyes.

A woman's health is her dearest possession. Good looks, good times, happiness, love and its continuance, depend on her health. Almost all of the sickness of women is traceable directly or indirectly to some derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Troubles of this kind are often neglected because a very natural and proper modesty keeps women away from physicians, whose insistence upon examination and local treatment is generally as useless as it is common. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will do more for them than 99 doctors in 100. It will do more than the hundredth doctor can unless he prescribes it. It is a prescription of Doctor Pierce, who for 30 years has been chief consulting physician of the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo.

"I lost six babies by untimely births. In the eighth month of my seventh pregnancy, as usual, I was taken ill. The family doctor was called, and he said he had no remedy for me. The baby must be born. I grieved excessively. I persuaded my husband, against the physician's advice, to let me try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Four doses quieted my pains. That child was born at full time. It is three years old, and I am the happiest mother in the world."

The occasion will be long remembered by all present, as one of the pleasant spots in their experience.

—An umbrella thief was abroad Saturday evening. It is reported that seven were stolen. Mr. H. D. Kingsbury of Ois street owes the recovery of his umbrella to the watchfulness of his dog, Bruno. While at supper a commotion was heard at the door, but upon investigation no one could be seen. Later Mr. Kingsbury started to go out and found no umbrella. After searching for some time the article was found near the edge of the lawn, where the thief dropped it when chased by the dog.

—Mrs. Walter L. Chaloner addressed the Home Club of Worcester on Friday evening at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Woodward. Mrs. Chaloner's subject was "A Summer on a Houseboat," finely illustrated by a group of her husband's water colors on the waterways and by-ways of Maine. It was gentlemen's night and a reception followed the lecture. Mrs. Chaloner received with the president, Mrs. Barnard, and was the guest of Mrs. Henry Quimby, the corresponding secretary of the club.

—A large and brilliant company was present at the residence of Mr. Charles N. Sladen, No. 85 Lowell street, Tuesday evening, and enjoyed a musical program of rare merit. It was Mr. Sladen's first recital of songs this season, and he was assisted by Mrs. E. L. Strong, mezzo contralto; Miss F. C. Leach, violinist; Mr. H. B. Day, pianist and Mrs. D. E. Baker, accompanist. The selections, charmingly rendered, were heartily applauded and in one or two instances demands for encores were complied with. The rooms were prettily decorated with potted plants and flowers, and after the concert refreshments were served.

—Methodist Episcopal church. Preaching by the pastor, Rev. Franklin Hamilton, both morning and evening. The morning service at 10:45 will be a special Thanksgiving service with an appropriate sermon and interesting music. At the evening service at 7:30, the pastor will deliver the third address in the series of "The Wayside Cross," which is so interesting to the large congregations which fill the church each evening. It is thought that this address will prove the most interesting of the whole series. The topic is "The Trail of the Sword Around Quebec." Mr. Hamilton will give personal experiences in visiting the scene of the deaths of Montcalm and Wolfe, the famous religious settlement of the L'Acadie Indians, the romantic Chateau Bigot and other points around Quebec. There will be a special solo. All seats are free. All are welcome.

His funeral services were held in Monson Wednesday afternoon.

—James Jackson, colored, was arrested Tuesday night by Patrolman Cole of division 1, on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on James Jones. Jones claims that Jackson tried to rob him Tuesday afternoon, and asked him for money due him for work. Jones stated that he would pay him when the work was finished. Words ensued, and finally Jackson left, only to return 15 minutes later with a razor in his hand. When Jones again refused to pay the money, Jackson assaulted him with the razor. Jones' clothes were cut in several places, but a wound on the arm was the only serious injury he received. In court Wednesday morning, Jackson was fined $20.

—The Ladies Aid Society of the Church of the Messiah will hold its annual sale of useful and fancy articles at Auburn hall, Ash street, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons and evenings, Dec. 2 and 3.

—The Village Improvement Society has shown its enterprise by placing sign boards for public use, in different parts of the village. All residents commend this and agree with the society that the handsome trees have been defaced long enough for cause of city notices and popular entertainment bills.

—Patrons of the Boston & Albany will be glad to learn that the railway to Auburn street at the depot is to be rebuilt and opened at once. The railroad company and owner of the adjacent land could not enjoy the benefit of the new road until the delay, now the stairs will be built the same width as they are now.

—The first in a series of assemblies was held at the Woodland Park Hotel, Wednesday evening. The matrons were Mrs. Geo. C. C. Butler, Mrs. John E. Alden, Mrs. Horatio L. Hackett and Mrs. William Hollings. Nearly 200 of the prominent young society people of the Newtons thronged the prettily decorated assembly hall from 8 until midnight, while dancing and singing. The floor was under the direction of William T. Coppins, who was assisted by John T. Alden, W. F. Hackett, W. D. K. Taylor, E. H. Hammond and L. H. Lindsey.

High School Notes.

Somerville high school won her last game in the junior interscholastic league, Thursday afternoon, and thus won the championship of Division B. The game was in Somerville's hands from the start although the Newton boys made a strong resistance at times. The first half ended in a tie, the Somerville team was exceptionally good, although Johnson and Andrews broke it up in good shape. One thing the Newtons were practicing which gave them the lead from start to finish. Somerville directed most of her plays on the tackles, and in the main was successful. Newton found a weak spot between left tackle and end and made most of her gains through them. Newton won the toss and took the field. Pipe kicked off to the 15-yard line, and Hackett ran fifteen yards before he was downed. In the line up before he was downed, a Somerville man fell on it. Stone made 15 yards and was pushed through the center for a touchdown. No goal was kicked. Chase kicked off to the 20-yard line. Somerville by a series of short rushes advanced the ball to the 20-yard line. Somerville by a series of short rushes advanced the ball to the 30 yards. Pipe made 20 yards around right end. Short rushes around ends brought the ball to the five yard line. Stone was sent through the line for another touchdown. No goal was kicked. Chase kicked to the 20 yard line. Pipe advanced 20 yds. before he was downed. Long rushes brought the ball to the 40 yard line. Somerville lost it on a fumble. Newton was held for three downs and Chase was forced to kick. Cotter made another long run and a touchdown. Chase kicked the goal. Chase kicked to the 10 yard line. Somerville was held for three downs and Cotter kicked to the center of the field. Here Newton made the best play of the game and advanced the ball to the 6 yard line. Cotter kicked the ball to the center of the field and time was called. Chase kicked off to the 10 yard line. Pipe made 30 yards and then in the next line up, made a touchdown. Pipe kicked the goal. Chase kicked off again to Almeida, who ran 25 yards and was downed. Newton held for four downs but lost the ball for off side play. Pipe then ran for 30 yards for a touchdown. No goal was kicked. The best playing was done by Chase, Bourdon, Johnson, Andrews, Sylvester, Hatch and McDonald for Newton, and Almeida, Pipe, Cotter, and Hayes for Somerville. The attendance was about 1500. The summary:

—Prof. A. H. Warren spent Thanksgiving at his home in Worcester.

—Mr. Jesse Black went to New York Wednesday, returning Monday.

—Mrs. M. E. Rowe left for New York, Saturday, to visit relatives there.

—Miss Cummings, Wellesley '97, spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. E. A. Phelps.

—The Misses Kemp moved into their new house on Beacon street, Wednesday.

—Mr. J. E. Morse returned Tuesday from a three weeks business trip in the West.

—Mr. M. Darcy is building the cellar of Mr. Eastman's new house on Beacon street.

—Mr. C. G. Jones of Malden is to build a house on the corner of Pine Ridge and Upland roads.

—Miss Gertrude Smith spent last Sunday in Arlington, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Beaumont.

—Next Thursday, Mr. R. H. White, Jr., moves into the house he recently leased on Waban avenue.

—It is pleasing to report that Mr. Morse's little girl is now quite well after having an attack of tonsillitis.

—"The Quiver," the name of the paper issued by the Waban School is a great little paper, and the boys deserve success.

—The new church has had its aspect changed a great deal this week by the painting of the ventilators, and the carving. The painting of the interior is begun today.

—There are letters in the postoffice for C. E. Palmer, Moses Stevens, Mrs. John Moore, Mary Coffin, Miss M. McKenzie, Mary E. Hazeltown, E. Rollins and Mrs. Kate McNeil.

—All of the schools closed, Wednesday, until Tuesday, for the Thanksgiving recess, and many of the Waban School students went away to spend the day with their relatives and friends.

—The Waban School eleven were defeated by the Allen school eleven of West Newton Monday, by a score of 2 to 0. Such a close score as the above should discourage the "boys."

—Mr. F. W. Webster returned Wednesday after a two weeks hunting trip in Canada, and while there saw the sun but once. He brought home with him thirty-three partridges, two chickens and two turkeys, though he had better success.

—The amusing incident has just reached us of how a citizen of this place was seen in Boston, running for a Waban band train recently, with collar, necktie and overcoat in hand, shoes unlaced, and messenger boy bringing up the rear with his travelling bag, no names were mentioned.

—"The Pie Party," which was originated by Mrs. De L. Shepley, and held at her place of residence last Friday evening for the benefit of the new church, proved a novel, entertaining and fairly successful affair. It would have been a greater success if as many had attended as was reasonably expected. However it was greatly enjoyed by the guests, and is to be repeated. What was indulged in by the ladies in the afternoon, and by all who wished in the evening. Those not playing whist enjoyed greatly the new game of "Pillow Decks," while other games were provided for the children, after which refreshments were served. The auctioning of the pies by Mr. C. J. Buffum, who always proves himself equal to the occasion, was a rare treat in point of pleasure for the assembly, and especially for the buyers, who appreciated a good pie, if they had to pay a good price for it. The pies brought from $2.50 to $4.15 each. A few of the pieists serve mention, especially the elaborate chicken pie given by Mrs. Wm. Saville, and purchased by Mr. A. H. Willis, for $4.15. One of the prominent gentlemen gave a nice cream pie, which was bought by Mr. W. H. Gould for one dollar and thirty-five cents. Mrs. H. K. Dresser greatly added to the entertainment by ably rendering several selections on the violin. Mr. J. J. Buffum also sang several selections in his usual good form. The whist prizes were captured in the afternoon by Mrs. F. W. Webster and Mrs. A. W. Vose, and in the evening by Mrs. Stone and Mr. A. H. Willis. The party broke up at eleven o'clock satisfied that they had a good time. Twenty-five dollars was realized.

Lectures on Educational Topics.

The educational committee of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs announces a course of six lectures upon subjects closely related to Public School Education. The speakers secured are President Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard University; Dr. James MacAllister, president of Drexel Institute, Philadelphia; Dr. Richard G. Boone, president of the State Normal School, Ypsilanti, Michigan; and Mr. George H. Martin, of the Boston Board of Superintendents. The lectures will be given on the evenings of dates soon to be announced, in the hall of the new Clafin school house, Newtonville.

The price of tickets for the course has been fixed at $1.25. Tickets for single lectures, 50 cents each. Course tickets, admitting two members of the same family, will be sold at $2 each. Tickets may be obtained through the secretaries of the clubs composing the Federation. The educational committee hope that their effort to provide this course of lectures will be cordially seconded by all members of the Federation. Other speakers are: E. H. Russell, principal of Worcester Normal School; Dr. W. J. Tucker, treasurer of Dartmouth College.

Well, Thanksgiving is over. Did you enjoy it? Was the dinner grand? I think not. I think all who read the Graphic last week took my advice. Such a rush of orders. Such goods as were sent out all day, and till ten o'clock at night. I hope all were well served. A few articles did not suit me, but they were the best in the market. I hope all were well served. We all did our best. I thank every one for the large trade given me. I shall try to merit it. Remember this: On Friday and Saturday of next week Messrs. Chase & Sanborn of Boston will demonstrate to you, at my store, the superior qualities of their Coffee. No house in the world sells as many coffees with collaterals. Come in Dec. 4th and 5th. The Electric Oil is a success. Customers tell me it is all that is claimed for it by the retailers. Call for a circular which explains it. A new Cereal Food. Next week I will tell you more about it. Said to be the best of all.

AN ANCIENT HABIT.

"Longin' for the good old days,"
Now in a new song,
Wise in a critic's eyes,
Telling us we're all gone wrong.
Got a book the other night
Telling 'bout old fashioned men.
Started in with keen delight
For to see their methods then.
Tattered blinck, every page
Yaller with the stain of years.
"This," says I, "will show an age When there wa'n't no chance for sneers."

Scarcely got a chapter read
Fore it started in to praise
Only things that then had fled—
Longin' for the good old days.

FIGHTING JOE.

"Who and what was he?"

I was standing in the churchyard of a small town on the borders of south Staffordshire one bright Sunday afternoon in April not many years ago.

I was a stranger in that part of the country and was passing through the place in the course of a long walk from the larger adjacent town to which my business had taken me the day before.

The extensive mining operations of the last 15 or 20 years had altered the unpretending place materially, and though the quaint old church and some long and low buildings, suggestive of farms and home-steads, still retained an air of rustic simplicity, they were being gradually obscured, the place itself sophisticated by the formal rows of plain and ugly tenements, built expressly for the mining population, which every year was becoming more and more numerous.

I had amused myself by deciphering some of the inscriptions on the grave-stones, well nigh obliterated by the weather and the moss that time had suffered to find roof hold in the hollows of the lettering, when a man, presumably a miner, in the Sunday clothes peculiar to that class, carrying a little child of 2 or 3 years, and followed by another somewhat portly, entered the churchyard and opened a conversation.

A civilly spoken fellow enough, though with the uncouth accent of the country. I readily accepted the invitation he offered, and we chatted pleasantly.

He had known the place many years, he told me—aye, long before it had grown into the town it is now—when it was nothing but a humble village, and when the long grass or rippling corn bowed its head to the wind on the spot where the unsightly engine house and tall, red chimney now stood, and where the heaps of slag and cinder marked the busy life of the toilers in the earth below.

That handsome marble monument, he told me, denoted the last resting place of the late rector, and this massive piece of granite was the tomb of a certain local squire, popularly known as "Squire Jack," who, it seemed, was much given to horse racing, cockfighting and such kindred sports, and who, being a sad "ne'er do well," a thoughtless, reckless fellow, but withal good natured and easy going, was as such gentry not unfrequently are, the most popular member of his family.

As my new acquaintance pointed out these objects and others which he thought, I suppose, would interest me he had risen from his seat, and we had strolled through the churchyard.

It was in a corner and rather in a hollow that, before a humble mound of green turf and decked with the pretty spring flowers, carefully placed in the form of a cross, we both, as of one accord, paused. It had not any grave-stone, but only a piece of wood, supported by two short uprights. On this was roughly carved, as if with a pocket-knife, these words: "Fighting Joe."

"That is a strange inscription to put over a man's grave," I said and then added, "Who and what was he?"

The man pointed to a stone close by and was silent for a few seconds.

He had set down the child he had been carrying, and the two little children, attracted by the bright flowers, had found their way to the mound and were about to gather them.

"Here, you mustn't touch them flowers," he said, and taking a hand of each led them away.

"Well, mate," he then went on to say to me in reply to my question, "I don't rightly know who or what he was. He was a stranger down here, and neither me nor my mates ever heard tell where he came from or who he was."

"When this here pit—Fenton's pit, we call it—was first worked, we had but few hands hereabouts, and men as could work had no call to wait long for a job and got good wages as well. Most of the hands were from Staffordshire, but we never knew where Joe came from, and I don't know as we asked, and I s'pose he wouldn't have told us if he had."

"He was quiet and lonelylike and said but little—that is, when he was all right—but when he'd had a drop of drink, as maybe of a Sunday night, when he had gotten his wage, of all the hands I ever see to swear, spend his money or fight there wasn't one like Fighting Joe."

"And hence his name, I suppose?" I asked. "And, of course, it is the old story again—drink, a quarrel and a violent death, though I cannot understand in that case the evident care that he took to get on the poor fellow's tomb, such as it is."

"No, sir," the man said gravely, after a moment's pause. "Not quite all that. A violent death, yes, and such a death as I might pray God might ne'er happen to the worst of us, but it wasn't drink, nor a quarrel, nor a fight with another man, that brought him to it. It was more the other way, poor lad, the other way."

The rough fellow beside me said this with a gentleness of tone and manner that was sufficiently out of keeping with his appearance to excite some degree of curiosity, and I told him I should like to hear more of the story.

"It's not much as such as you might care for," the man replied.

"Here," he said, turning to the little ones, who were straying toward the green mound again, "you mustn't touch them posies, though, knowest. Go and get some of them." And he jerked a small piece of coal he had in his hand toward where some daisies and dandelions were growing in among the rank grass.

"He worked in Fenton's pit along of me, and though we never had angry words, many a day would pass and neither him nor me would speak. He was quick, as I said, and when he hadn't had drink would keep himself to himself. There was a lass living in those parts then, and Fighting Joe was fond of her. I don't know that he had said much to her, but we could see he was about as fond of that lass as a lad could well be. I know that, for mother was living then, and this lass would often be between her house and ours."

"It seems that one Sunday night—it might be this—Joe had met her and told her how fond he was of her and asked her to become his wife. She told mother this that same night. Well, it seems she said that Joe mustn't look for that, for she was already promised and was going to be wed at Whitsuntide. When she told Joe that, he never said a word, but he grew very white in the face and turned quietly away."

"The next day he had to work beside the very man who was promised to the lass he loved. Well, they had been at work for some time when Joe's mate, turning round to get hold of a shorter pick that was lying near, sees him standing behind him with his arm raised and the pick in his hand, as if in doubt whether to strike or not, and with a look in his eyes as he had never been known to wear before."

"The two men looked at one another without speaking for awhile till Joe said, 'God forgive me!' and turned away, and from that day they never worked side by side again. I don't know how it was, but we used to think Joe kept away on purpose—I mean so as not to be in the way to strike the other one. That would be a matter of three or four months before the fire."

"What fire?" I asked.

"What fire?" the other repeated in a tone of astonishment. "Why, Fenton's pit. Did you never hear of the fire in Fenton's pit?"

"No," I replied. "You know, I am a stranger here."

"Ah, you must be, I should think," the man said somewhat roughly, "if you never heard tell of that."

He took out a small blackened pipe from his pocket and filled the bowl in a mechanical way, for his thoughts were evidently far away, and his face became saddened and almost tender in its expression under their influence.

He remained silent so long that I said, "I should like to hear about that fire if you don't mind telling me."

"Was you ever down in a pit, mate?" he asked.

I told him no, but had often thought I should like to see one.

"Better stay where you are," the man answered.

"Ah!" he added after another pause, "it's strange how we mining people die. But it's stranger how we live."

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"I've worked in the pit for more nor 20 years," he replied, "but I never go down in the cage now—that is, since that time I spoke to you—when I think I may be going to my grave. What with the rising of water, or the fall of the coal, or the choke damp that means death, the lives as such as us ain't worth much. But all these put together ain't nothing to a pit on fire."

"When the coal is bursting out with heat and the heavy masses of earth fall down, crushing or burning that can't get out, it's a fearful sight—when the cry is, 'Every man for himself and God above for us all'—when fainting and struggling they think for a moment of wife and children, and then they fall and die!"

"Well, that was the sort of fire I speak of, and all of those at work in the pit that day rushed for the lift that might carry them up away from the place where the flames were roaring and rushing with the noise of a great wind."

"Well, Fighting Joe was the last man in the lift, as they thought, but just as they were beginning to move they heard a loud cry for help, and they saw that other one—him who had married Joe's sweetheart—making for the lift and begging them, for God's sake, not to leave him behind."

"Well, I'll tell you, the lift was overfull then, but Joe sprang from it and seized hold of the other one, with the help of those inside, hauled him in, and all we heard him say was, 'Tell her I did it, and God bless thee, mate!'"

"Then we heard the roar of the flames, and we never saw Joe again for a second or two, and though his voice did not falter, he added in a softer tone:

"But the next day, when the fire had burned itself out, I was one of them that went down into the pit."

"There was a crowd of miners' wives and children standing at the pit mouth, and when we came up again we laid a body gently on the ground, and the men took off their caps and said, 'ne'er a word, while the women cried, and many of them sobbed aloud. It was blackened and burned, and but for where the pitman's jacket saved him, it might have been no more than the earth it was lying on."

"But as we stooped tenderly to raise and carry the body away, the jacket fell off, and there on that part where once beat a true heart, was a lock of woman's hair."

"He had begged it of her," she said, 'so often she had not the heart to refuse him,' and God only knows, mate, what comfort poor Joe might have felt in wearing it for her sake."

"We buried him with that little curl lying on his breast, and with many a sob and many a 'God bless thee, poor lad!' we lowered him to his rest."

"We planted them little flowers, and it seemed to me as if they grew brighter on his tomb than anywhere else."

He paused again, and as I stole a look at him I saw two large tears rolling down his hard face.

He was a little embarrassed at my observing them, I think, for he said:

"Don't think the worse of me, mate, because I'm giving away a bit, but I am the man Joe saved."—Spare Moments.

Who Was Prior's Chloë?

Spence, in his anecdotes, asserts that there was a woman of the lowest class. Others say she was ideal. "I know the contrary," says John Wesley, an unexceptionable witness. "I have known her eldest brother say her name was Miss Taylor; that he knew her well, and that she once came to him in Dean's yard, Westminster, purposely to ask his advice. She told him: 'Sir, I know not what to do. Mr. Prior makes large professions of his love, but he never offers me marriage.' My brother advised her to bring the matter to a point at once. She went directly to Mr. Prior and asked him plainly: 'Do you intend to marry me or not?' He said: 'Sir, in refusing to answer, you do answer. I will see you no more.' And she did see him no more to the day of his death. But afterward she spent many hours standing and weeping at his tomb in Westminster Abbey. There let her stand, ye inquisitive critics, the true Chloë as we would fain picture her!—Temple Bar.

Sweetmeats.

"I do not remember," remarked the cannibal king as he drew away from the table after mistaking the tips of his fingers in the finger bowl. "I do not remember that I ever ate a more delicious meal."

"I am so glad you liked it, sire," replied the grateful chef. "That was a sweet girl great you ate."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE BLUES.

A Graphic Description of the Dreadful Feeling.

What Is Meant by This Form of Acute Misery—Where Doctors Make Mistakes.

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into the perfection of misery, the blues, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:—She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached, and back also; has slept poorly; been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart has beat very fast; then that bearing-down feeling.

Her doctor says, "cheer up, you have dyspepsia; you'll be all right soon."

But she doesn't get "all right." She grows worse day by day, till all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake. She has lost faith in him; hope vanishes; then comes the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting blues.

Her doctor, if he knew, should have told her and cured her, but he did not, and she was allowed to suffer. By chance she came across one of Mrs. Pinkham's books, and in it she found her very symptoms described and an explanation of what they meant. Then she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice, feeling that she was telling her troubles to a woman.

Speedy relief followed, and vigorous health returned.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years, and the story recited above is the true experience of hundreds of women, whose letters of gratitude are to be found on file in Mrs. Pinkham's library.

Our Kitchen

No kitchen is kept cleaner than the premises devoted to the manufacture of NONE SUCH Mince Meat.

No housewife can be more fastidious in the matter of preparing food than we are in the selection and preparation of the materials of which it is made. The cleaning of the currants (for one thing) is more thoroughly done by means of perfected appliances, than it would be possible to do it by hand.

Its cleanliness, purity, wholesomeness and deliciousness are good reasons for using NONE SUCH Mince Meat.

The best reason is its saving—of time, of hard work, of money. A ten cent package affords you two large pies, without trouble to you beyond the making of the crust. Makes just as good fruit cake and fruit pudding as it does mince pie. Sold everywhere. Be sure and get the genuine.

Send your name and address, and mention this paper, and we will mail you free a book—"Mrs. Popkins' Thanksgiving"—by one of the most famous humorists of the day.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffering from neuritis for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep still, when Mr. Holden,
the merchant there sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting
Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her
within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5.00 if it could not be had for less. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by A. Hudson, Newton; B. Billings,
Newton; Upper Falls; B. B. Buck, Newton
Center; E. F. Partridge, Newtonville; J.
H. Green, Newton Highlands.

NONANTUM.

—James Murphy has disposed of his express business.

—The placing of new poles the whole length of Watertown street has already been commenced by the Telephone company.

—William Dunn has been appointed a regular letter carrier to fill the vacancy left at the Newton post office by the resignation of George Walker. John H. Gallagher has successfully passed examinations for substitute carrier to act in his place.

—Mr. George W. Billings the Republican candidate for councilman from Ward 1 is claimed by his friends as especially well qualified to hold that position. He has been years a selectman in the town of Ludlow, Vermont, and one of these as chairman.

—Antonio Skien, one of the Italian colony on the Bowery, has been missing from his home for nearly a month. This wife is unable to find out where he is, and has called on the police for assistance. When he left he had about $100 on his person.
The case is being investigated by officers of division 2.

—Wednesday evening Wendell Hudson, son of Mr. George Hudson of Bridge street, was given a surprise party by a large number of friends from the Beth Eden church, Waltham, in honor of his 17th birthday.
The guests also included many from Benis and this place. A pleasing entertainment program including musical and literary numbers was enjoyed after which refreshments were served.

—Mr. John F. Gallagher, employed by C. W. Bunting, met with a painful accident while delivering goods at a house on Dalby street, Saturday evening. He had left a barrel in the house and was returning to the team when he was struck in the face by a wire clothes line and had his jaw fractured. The wire was hanging quite low but in the darkness Mr. Gallagher failed to see it. He has been confined to his home on Allison street under a physician's care but is now able to be out again.

—Now that the city council has adopted an order appropriating $9,000 for the extension of the Laundry brook boulevard from Pearl street to Boyd's pond, Nonantum may confidently expect that this section will be greatly improved. When the work is completed an avenue will extend from Bullough's pond park, through Cabot's woods to Washington street, across the Jackson, Potter, Langford and Stearns estates to Morse street. This will not only benefit real estate but will add another to the handsome boulevards of Newton for which the city has become almost famous. Pedestrians and teamsters will also appreciate it as a very convenient short cut.

NEWTON UPPER FALLS.

—Mr. F. J. Powers of Chestnut street is quite ill.

—Mrs. A. T. Morrill has returned to her home on Chestnut street, after two weeks visit in Maine.

—The large barn owned by Amos L.
Hale on Oak street, is being remodeled for a tenement dwelling house.

—Holmes Bros., contractors, have commenced the erection of a frame wooden building on High street, to be occupied by Wm. Dyson as a market.

—William Sullivan, who was shot in the leg by Poles in Needham two weeks ago, is a patient at the Boston hospital undergoing treatment for his injuries.

—Thomas Probert of Mechanic street, who was badly injured in a recent accident at Pettee's, is rapidly recovering under the care of Dr. McOwen, and able to be out again.

—Considerable complaint is heard at the poor condition of High street. Some say that of a muddy day it is almost impossible to find the concrete crossing at the head of Winter street. High street is certainly in a bad condition and demands immediate attention.

—During the past week the Pettee Machine Company has laid off about 100 hands. This, it is said, is not caused by any decrease in the number of orders but by the large stock on hand that has not yet been shipped. The working time has been reduced from 40 to 35 hours.

—The residents of this place are anxious to secure additional police protection, and have petitioned the mayor and aldermen to station another night man here. Four new patrolmen will be appointed at the beginning of the next fiscal year. It is probable that one of them will be given a route which will include a part of Upper Falls.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS.

—The Craven family (father and son) have given up housekeeping and are boarding out.

—Our young aspirants for football honors play the game on Crehore's field, Thanksgiving Day.

—Mrs. Nathaniel Brewer of Providence is spending this week with her parents Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Lyon.

—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cain buried their infant child Saturday, whom death claimed very suddenly.

—It is reported that a cut in wages is to be made at the Dudley Mills. The mills are now running full time.

—Dr. Howard H. Russell gave a free lecture for the cause of temperance at the M. E. church, Wednesday evening.

—Mr. Frederick Curtis is convalescing from a continued sick spell of some weeks.
We hope to see him about again soon.

—The union services of the Episcopal and Methodist church societies at St.
Mary's, Thanksgiving Day, made a large congregation in India. She told, too, of addresses followed by the pastors of both.

—Officer Dunleavy of the Wellesley force assisted by Officer Tainter, arrested Martin McLaughlin, a dissipated young man, last Friday for drunkenness. He was taken before a trial justice at Needham, Saturday, and fined $10, for non payment of which he was sentenced to 60 days at Dedham. He had recently but completed a sentence of 90 days for an offence committed last June.

A cup of buddy coffee is not wholesome neither is a bottle of muddy medicine. One way to know a reliable and skillfully prepared blood-purifier is by its freedom from sediment. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is always bright and sparkling, because it is an extract and not a decoction.

Lasell Notes.

The Symphony party on Saturday evening was accompanied by Mrs. Wayne.

Madre Le Roger's pupils in French gave in the gymnasium a French play, on Saturday evening, inviting the faculty and their schoolmates. The play was "Monsieur de la Demoiselle Marie," and was given with intelligence and spirit.

A considerable number attended the children's concert at the M. E. church, Sunday evening.

The Sunday afternoon missionary meeting was addressed by Miss Clementine Butler, who spoke on the subject of "Personal Experience in India." She told, too, of the honor lately accorded to Marguerite, the young Chinese girl who was at Lasell a part of last year, and who has been chosen delegate from China to the Woman's convention to be held in 1898. Miss Butler showed a number of very interesting Indian curiosities.

Mrs. Norton's lecture on Home Sanitation, Monday evening, was unusually interesting.

Several heard Ian McLaren lecture at Tremont Temple, Tuesday afternoon.

The picture play, "Miss Jerry," by Alexander Black, was the star attraction of the week. A small party attended it.

The Poor Bacchante.

It is a pleasure to note that the poor, ill-treated Bacchante has at length found a resting place within the walls of the Public Library. I will willingly admit that the Bacchante is not a triumph of genius, but it is a charming work, nevertheless, and whoever can look into its charming face, with its fascinating smile, and call it ugly names, is a wretch to be avoided. The much-abused Bacchante has been insulted by a name that does not belong to her.
She is not a Dionysian at all, but only a pretty woman, showing a bunch of grapes and a naturalness, and there is not an indication of foulness. Studying this pretty, graceful mother, amusing her sick and malformed baby, one seeks in vain to discover the reason for the stories raised against it by the self-constituted protectors of public morals. There is more evil sug-gestiveness in one single chapter of the popular novels of the day than in a miserable, for when one gets drunk on principle, one indulges in an ugliness that is outside the limits of art. Fortunately, Mr.
Macmonnies is not fully acquainted with the old classic Greek and Roman authors, and so, the only thing in his statue, that recalls orgies, frenzies and murders is a bunch of grapes—from California, judging by the size.—Saturday Evening Gazette.

Others have found health, vigor and vitality in Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it surely has power to help you also. Why not try it?

ELECTRICS TO NEEDHAM.

A PLAN TO MAKE IMPORTANT CON-NECTIONS THROUGH THE NEWTONS.

The Boston & Wellesley Street Railway Company has filed a formal application with the town authorities of Needham for a right of way in that town, from the railroad station to Newton Upper Falls, where connection will be made with the Wellesley & Boston system, extending through the Newtons.

Unlike many towns, Needham is extending a very warm welcome to the company, and 700 or 800 citizens have signed a petition asking the street railway company to undertake the work, and the town to grant the necessary privileges. This road will give Needham transportation facilities not only within the town, but through the Newton system of street railways with Waltham, Watertown, Cambridge, Brighton and Boston.

Two routes are under consideration, each possessing certain advantages. If it were not for the grade crossing of the New England railroad the line would probably run over Highland avenue past the Newton pumping station, as it is the most direct and convenient route obtainable. If authority to cross the steam railroad at grade cannot be obtained the following route will be used, thus avoiding any railroad crossings at grade. Starting at the Needham station and going over Highland avenue and Hunnewell street, here crossing above the grade of the New England road, Hillside avenue, Webster street and Central avenue to the Eliot street bridge at Newton Upper Falls.

With this franchise and that which has been obtained in Watertown, the Wellesley & Boston system will extend from Needham through the Newtons and Watertown to the Charles River at Faneuil, and if the West End does not build a line to meet it there, the plan is to continue on to Union square, Brighton. This will give a line of about 12 miles in length.

SCHOOL BOARD.

MONTHLY MEETING WEDNESDAY EVENING—THE COMMITTEE'S ANNUAL REPORT THE CAUSE OF A LIVELY DISCUSSION.

The school board met in regular session Wednesday evening in the old Clifton school building at Newtonville. President Hollis presided and ten members were present.

A communication was received from the city council appropriating $200 additional for the removal of High School furniture. The same was accepted and placed on file.

The finance committee, to whom was referred the order recommending the appointment of a physical instructor at the High School, reported against the passage of the order. In explanation Mr. Bond said that the committee heartily favored the plan but considered that the condition of finances did not warrant such an action. It hoped that some practical scheme would be considered during the coming year and that it would receive favorable action next year. The committee's report was accepted.

The finance committee reported an expenditure of $14,374.41 for the school expenses during November. An order appropriating this amount was later adopted.

The committee's annual report was read by Mr. Bond and presented for acceptance. It commended the present working systems of the school and paid a high tribute to the efficient superintendent and corps of teachers. Enlarged quarters at Thompsonville were recommended. The committee regretted the crowded condition and thought that the fact that schools were soon filled after erection was a compliment. The deaths of the two late members was referred to, and the resolves already passed were embodied in the report.

Mr. Bond inquired the reason for omitting the statistical portion as given last year.

Mr. Bond replied the committee did not desire it.

Mr. Ward asked if there was any reason for the omission. Mr. Bond replied that the matter had been discussed by the committee, who were of one opinion.

Mr. Huntington said the matter had been brought up and discussed. The secretary would be unable to prepare the report in the short time that would be allowed. There were several reasons for this which he explained.

Mr. Ward was surprised at the inability of the committee to prepare this portion and asked Mrs. Sherwood regarding it. She replied that it was possible, but meant several afternoons' work. Mr. Ward continued and spoke of Mr. Bond's insinuation that the appendix might be misleading and asked what portion would be so affected.

Mr. Bond replied that the average cost of each scholar's tuition could not be accurately estimated.

Mr. Ward asked if the figures would not be published, to which Mr. Hollis replied that part would be given in the superintendent's report.

Mr. Ward inquired if the figures would not be published, to which Mr. Hollis replied that part would be given in the superintendent's report.

not be given with the exception of the cost of the education of an average High school, grammar, primary and kindergarten scholar. He thought the people should be given the greatest amount of information possible regarding the cost of the schools and of the average pupil's cost of instruction. He thought that an accurate division of the different costs might be made that the cost per capita could be obtained. There was every reason why the expenditures should be given in the report in statistical form. The citizens should be given an idea of the expenditures and a record kept year after year.

Chairman Hollis said the chair had allowed the question considerable latitude. The question was on the acceptance of the report and not on the criticism of the committee's methods.

Mr. Avery thought that the point should be discussed. The details of the report should be considered at this time, he thought. If the city was asked for an appropriation for the school board work it should be given an account of the expenditures.

At this point Mr. Hollis called Mr. Bond to the chair and went to his seat on the floor. He spoke of the committee's work. It had no specific duties. They could bring in any sort of a report as they chose. They could deal with what questions they chose and were not obliged to furnish statistics. They could do so if they wished. Demanding this was out of the question. If the board desired figures they could refer to the superintendent or the secretary. He never remembered any such action before last year. Going into details on figures was unnecessary.

Mr. Ward moved that the report was not satisfactory. It was exceedingly desirable that every fact should be known. He thought that the cost of education in the four grades should be known to every parent and child. There had been a position on the part of the committee to hold back facts. The utmost publicity should be given these and all should be published.

Mr. Fisher said there was no disposition on the part of the committee to hold back anything. The question was simply the accuracy of the estimated cost of each scholar. It was a question of the wisdom of publishing these figures.

Mr. Brackett read from the 91, 92 and 93 reports, which showed that nothing of the kind had been done in those years.

Mr. Hollis said that this was the point he was desirous of bringing out. The committee could bring in whatever report they chose. He did not think the publication of the figures necessary.

Dr. Adams was allowed to withdraw his motion.

Mr. Ward said he would vote in favor of the acceptance of the report if it was understood the committee would include the figures.

Mr. Bond said he would be agreeable if the last three items were excluded.

Mr. Ward was willing another motion could be made regarding them.

The motion accepting the committee's report with the instructions that the figures, with the exception of the last three items, be embodied in the report. The motion was passed.

Mr. Ward moved that these items, the cost per capita of educating high school, grammar and primary, and kindergarten scholars be placed on the superintendent's report. He spoke at length in favor of it.

Mrs. Martin thought it unnecessary. It would require considerable work and then be inaccurate.

Mr. Avery favored Mr. Ward's motion. After further discussion the motion was put and lost by a 5 to 4 vote.

An order was adopted for the closing of the schools from Dec. 24th to Jan. 4th.

An order appropriating $30 for the new Adams school furnishing was adopted.

The sum of $200 was transferred from the special appropriation to the general, and the sum of $500 transferred from the general to the incidental expenditure appropriation.

Mrs. Walsh, janitor of the Williams (Amundsen) school asked for increase of salary. His communication was referred to the finance committee.

An order authorizing the printing of 3500, 1896 reports was adopted.

In executive session Superintendent Aldrich was reappointed.

DARTMOUTH WINS.

THE THANKSGIVING DAY FOOTBALL GAME AT NEWTON CENTRE.

The weather interfered sadly with the football game yesterday. If the day had been pleasant 5,000 people were expected and the Athletic Association expected to make a handsome sum out of it. But the wet and dreary day kept all but the greatest enthusiasts at home. It was a fine game, closely and stubbornly contested from beginning to end. Dartmouth won by a score of 12 to 6. Dartmouth had her champion team, with the exception of Eckstrom, and the Newton A. A. had a strong combination, consisting of Murphy, L. E. Nash, L. E. Ginn, L. E. Hughes, C. F. Paul, R. G. Teale, R. L. Gallagher, R. E. Paul, G. B. Draper, B. B. Sears, H. B. R. W. L. Brown, L. E.

9. Touchdowns—Crotts, MacAndrew, Draper. Goals from touchdowns—Brown, McCormack 2. Referee—James Knox. Umpire—Jack Mouton. Linesmen—Kishin and Paul. Time—Two 30-minute halves.

As she had never kicked on a wagon, we commenced drawing hay in the afternoon. She behaved very well until she came to the place where she had kicked on the machine in the forenoon, and then she kicked with terrible violence until she had kicked the clasp from the whiffletree and the whiffletrees from the wagon and broken the breeching of her harness. When her strength was exhausted, she threw herself down over the wagon tongue under the feet of her mate and lay still on her back, feet up.

She began to make decided objections to being harnessed and would sometimes kick it off before it could be buckled. What is stranger still, she would kick just as hard, if not harder, while the harness was being taken off at night as when it was put on in the morning. From the great change which suddenly took place in her disposition at an age when horses' habits and principles are supposed to have become permanently fixed, I have no doubt that she was insane, with lucid intervals.

HORSES GO INSANE.

THE FACT CONFIRMED BY A MAN WHO HAS HAD EXPERIENCE.

He Gives the Particulars of Two Cases Which He Handled, and It Looks as if He Was Right in Declaring the Animals in Question Were Insane.

Insanity among animals is not very common, and we seldom hear much said about it, but there is no doubt that the minds of animals, like the minds of human beings, become deranged. That animals have minds and some of them minds superior to the minds of some men no person who is well acquainted with them will dispute.

My father traded for a fine large bay mare which had been raised in our neighborhood, and which we had often seen at work and never heard that she had any viciousness. She was turned out to pasture for a few days, and when my brother and I went into the field with a halter to catch her she came at us on a full run, with ears turned back, mouth wide open, nostrils expanded, and eyes glowing like balls of fire. She evidently meant murder, and of course we jumped the fence and got out of her way. Having provided ourselves with clubs, we returned to the field, when she charged upon us, and when we were only repulsed by the blows of our clubs on her head. Defeated in her purpose of trampling us under her feet, she showed her evil intent by wheeling and kicking at us with great violence. A day or two afterward she appeared gentle, offered no resistance to being caught, was harnessed peacefully, hitched to a wagon behind a team of horses and driven by my father across the river on a good smooth ford way. She behaved well until returning across the river in sight of home and near the home shore, when she suddenly stopped, and no coaxing or driving could make her budge a step until she got ready, which was a full half hour after stopping.

Not long after I hitched her to a buggy and took my mother and sister to a berry patch about four miles from home. The mare behaved as well as any horse going out and was put into a stable at the nearest house and fed and watered at noon. When we started for home at night, she went about 60 rods, suddenly stopped and could not be started by a word or a blow of the whip. I got out and tried to lead her, then tried to mesmerize her by setting, putting and stroking her nose and neck with my hand. It did no good. The more I tried to psychologize her the more fiercely she looked out of her eyes. My father and the other woman got out and walked on toward home. After standing about 15 minutes the mare of her own accord started on a run, and when the women were overtaken and I stopped her to let them get into the buggy she would not start. They got out the second time and walked on. This performance of the mare was repeated until the women got discouraged about riding and walked home, leaving me to get the mare home as best I could. After much trouble and vexation I got her home, having made the four miles in two hours.

Balky mare? Perhaps some balky horses are crazy. She got sick, medicine did no good, she lingered about four weeks and died. No tears were shed at her burial.

I once bought a span of 8-year-old colts, well matched (except as to color), well broken, kind and pleasant to work. When full grown, they were the best horse team in the woods for getting out logs I ever saw. They would work through brush, heaps and mudholes, climb over rocks and old logs almost as patiently and steadily as oxen. They grew to be a large, heavy team, strong, resolute and true as steel in every place. Up to the age of 10 years they had no vices, but then the mare commenced kicking without any provocation when plowing in the spring. Although the children were not allowed to hit her heels, she would kick with great violence when turning the corners. I told the teamster to hit her a blow with the whip when in the act of kicking. He did so, and it seemed to break her for the time being, but he told me afterward that whipping made her worse, and he discontinued it.

We managed to use her till spring work was done and we commenced haying. As I did all the mowing, I know exactly how she was handled, and how she behaved on the machine. The mower was an easy cutting one, the knives were sharp, the grass stood up well and the meadow was smooth. She had been accustomed to mowing with the same mate, on the same machine, in the same meadow, ever since she was 4 years old and had always behaved well, but this year from the very first the noise of the machine or something else seemed to make her nervous and cross, and in a short time after they were hitched up she commenced threatening to kick every time they turned at the corners. Soon afterward she would make one vigorous kick with both hind feet, and then go on well enough till making the next turn, when she would kick again. I don't think the best to pay no attention to her disagreeable behavior, and she could not have known from anything I said or did that I was not pleased with her conduct. At length she showed great mental excitement, carried her ears back all the time, her eyes seemed to project farther from her head, and there were a glare and fierceness in their expression which I had never observed before. Without any provocation whatever she commenced kicking with great fury and kept it up without intermission until she had broken the double whiffletree and one of the single ones, and of course I had to quit mowing.

As she had never kicked on a wagon, we commenced drawing hay in the afternoon. She behaved very well until she came to the place where she had kicked on the machine in the forenoon, and then she kicked with terrible violence until she had kicked the clasp from the whiffletree and the whiffletrees from the wagon and broken the breeching of her harness. When her strength was exhausted, she threw herself down over the wagon tongue under the feet of her mate and lay still on her back, feet up.

She began to make decided objections to being harnessed and would sometimes kick it off before it could be buckled. What is stranger still, she would kick just as hard, if not harder, while the harness was being taken off at night as when it was put on in the morning. From the great change which suddenly took place in her disposition at an age when horses' habits and principles are supposed to have become permanently fixed, I have no doubt that she was insane, with lucid intervals.
